When Col. Ewing Starts.

4 Billions of Diamonds.

Tom Slick's $30,000,000.

THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY announces a cut of five hours, beginning next summer, in the running time between Chicago and Seattle. Other lines, doubtless, will follow suit.

The run will be made in 63 hours, bringing Seattle as near to New York, Chicago and other Eastern and Midwestern cities as Los Angeles and San Francisco are now.

Fortunately for the Pacific coast and, the two hundred million inhabitants that will live one day between San Diego and the Canadian line, "the coast" is a winter resort and a summer resort.

No part of the coast is more marvelous in summer climate and scenery than Seattle and the whole State of Washington.

Go there this summer, from the Atlantic, and you will spend the 10 hours saved on the round trip telling your friends that you really have seen America.

Spoon-fed newspaper publishers and others who say the race of fighting editors has vanished should see recent numbers of Colonel Ewing's newspaper, the New Orleans States, with Colonel Ewing's fight against the governor of Louisiana.

Charles A. Dana, in his most energetic days, telling what he thought of President Hayes, could not surpass Colonel Ewing!

The colonel, of brachycephalic type, responds to things he doesn't like as a stick of dynamite does to a sledge hammer blow.

This country owns four thousand million dollars' worth of diamonds. At 6 per cent, which is a low rate, it costs the owners $240,000,000 a year to look beautiful and shiny, not far from a million dollars a day. But it is worth it if it makes the owners happy.

A small part of the four billions represents diamonds doing useful work, cutting glass, etc.

The most useful diamonds are little black stones, hardest of all, that Professor Michelson of Chicago University employs for ruling with marvellously fine lines on spectroscopic plates. The black diamonds, attached to an automatic machine in a cellar far below ground, where the temperature doesn't vary, move back and forth hour after hour, no man watching them.

When Professor Michelson takes you down where the black diamonds are working you may stay only a minute, and are asked to breathe as little as possible, that the heat of your body and breath may not change the temperature of the small room. That is exactitude.

Tom Slick, when young, was a mule driver, roustabout and tool dresser. He was also an American, intelligent, his eyes open. As he worked he thought, and he has just sold part of his oil holdings to the Prairie Oil Company for $30,000,000.

Mr. Slick, who does business as "Tom Slick, Incorporated," thinks he will spend a year in Europe, think up new plans and start working again.

The American's mind, with few exceptions, is unable to endure idleness, and that keeps at work all those that know how to work.

The big war proved that war is unprofitable, sometimes worse for the loser than for winner. Mexico's war seems to shake the theory.

Mexico says that Gen. Escobar, who intelligently got out of Torreon as soon as Mexican airplanes began dropping bombs, is well on his way to Chihuahua carrying with him valuable loot, including millions of dollars taken from banks in Monterey, Saltillo, Torreon and other small cities temporarily occupied.

However, to say that temporary profit can be made from banditry doesn't prove that real war can be made profitable.

The fierce Jones law, planned to chill the hearts of bootleggers, wipe out the whiskey trade and make prohibition a success, claims its first victim in New York city.

Ten thousand dollars' fine, five years in prison, was the program. Would not that frighten you?

It didn't frighten the first victim. He pleaded guilty.

The judge sentenced him to three months in jail, warning all the wicked that later the term would be six months in jail.

'Tis one thing to "put teeth into a law," another thing to use the teeth.

Other prohibition news: In Brooklyn, a bigger city than old New York, on Manhattan Island, bootleggers engaged in what is called a "racketeers" fight. Policeman Daniel J. Maloney in plain clothes entered the battle as an ally of one of the gangsters. Sergeant McGarity also entered the battle and shot Policeman Maloney dead. Nobody else was killed.

Broker Is Accused in Theft

Frederick Kauffman of Brookline, a broker, with offices in Beacon st., was arrested today by Inspector William F. Connolly on a warrant charging him with larceny of $10,600 from Mrs. Margaret Ellwood of 1 Green st., Brookline.

The warrant charged that he secured the signature of Mrs. Ellwood to a "written instrument" for the purpose of fraud and deceiving to the amount of $10,600. He is charged with securing $1000 from Mrs. Ellwood on Jan. 5, 1926; $1000 on Jan. 27; $1000 on Jan. 31, 1927; $1000 on Jan. 5, 1928; $500 on Jan. 9; $1000 on Jan. 10; $1000 on Jan. 27; $2750 on Jan. 30; $1000 on Feb. 24 and $9000 on the same day.

After his arrest Kauffman was arraigned before Judge Michael J. Creed in Municipal Court and upon his request was granted a continuance until April 3. He furnished the required amount of bail and was released to appear for trial on that date.

17 KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH

Toronto, Ont., March 20 (AP)—Seventeen persons are dead, including 13 passengers, and 40 are seriously injured as the result of a headon collision between two crack Canadian National Railways trains today at Procourt, near Parry Sound, Ont.

This is according to an official statement issued from the office of the general manager of the Central division here this afternoon.

Both trains were on the Toronto-Winnipeg run.

When the crash came one of the cars caught fire and several of the passengers were unable to escape. Survivors told graphic stories of heroic attempts by entrapped comrades to escape cremation.

Among the known dead are Conductor Barstead and Brakeman Ferguson of one train crew.

The injured included Engineer Gauvreau, Fireman Horace A. Smith and Brakeman Savage. Baggageman McRoberts was reported missing.

Access to the wreck, which occurred in one of the loneliest sections of the country, is difficult at this time of the year.

LEADER OF ALLIES PASSES AWAY
Marshal Foch, commander of allied forces in World War, who died today after a prolonged illness.

DEATH FINALLY TAKES MAN WHO LED ALLIES TO WORLD VICTORY

Paris, March 20—Marshal Ferdinand Foch, famous generalissimo who led the Allied armies to victory in the World War, died at his home today after a lengthy illness. He was 77 years old.

He died at 5:50 p. m. (12:50 p. m., Eastern Standard time).

Although it had long been apparent that the great general was fighting his "last campaign," his warrior heart would not give in and day after day he fought off the inevitable and with grim courage, but a coalition of heart trouble, kidney disease and a lung infection were too great at his age.

It was the sudden collapse of his heart after several days of improvement that brought death to the intrepid warrior.

The foremost fighter of the great war, displayed in illness that same grit that he had displayed as the commander-in-chief who led the allied armies to victory in the World War.

FOCH PAID HIGH TRIBUTE ON HIS VISIT TO BOSTON IN 1921

Bostonians will long remember the one day visit paid to this city in November, 1921, by Marshal Foch.

Seldom, if ever, had a visitor to the Hub been given as enthusiastic a reception as was accorded to the generalissimo of the Allied forces in the World War.

Huge crowds, estimated at half a million people, turned out to greet and cheer him, as he was borne through the streets, and thousands of children added their shrill voices to the applause.

State and city paid homage to the distinguished leader, three colleges conferred degrees upon him, the 104th Infantry and American Legion decorated him, and a beautiful gold watch was presented to Marshal Foch under the Washington Elm in Cambridge, as a gift from the people of New England.

It was a breathless, memorial day, crowded with events and ovations, all combining to demonstrate the affection and esteem in which the leader of the victorious Allied forces was held.

On leaving he told State Commander James T. Duane of the American Legion that his reception in Boston was the most spontaneous and remarkable accorded him

URGES BASIN BE 'STORROW PARK' IN HONOR OF DONOR

Changing the name of the Charles river lower basin to that of James J. Storrow Park and recreational center was suggested to the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs today by Atty. George L. Barnes.

The committee was hearing remonstrants to the so-called Harriman $4,500,000 plan for improving the basin, especially that part which contemplated building a sunken motor roadway in the rear of Beacon st. property.

Atty. Barnes said he represented 20 or more Bay State rd. residents and the town of Weymouth.

Referring to the $1,000,000 offer for basin improvements made by Mrs. James J. Storrow, Barnes declared it would be "unfortunate" to take this donation from Mr. Storrow's widow and "sink it in a motor roadway." It was at this point that he made his suggestion for renaming the lower basin.

Barnes told the committee if the sunken roadway is taken out of the

ASSERT CONGRESS CAN GIVE U. S. LIGHT WINES AND BEERS

New York, March 20—That Congress has full power, of and within itself, to repeal or modify the prohibition laws, regardless of the 18th Amendment, is the opinion of two eminent constitutional lawyers, one of them internationally known.

It is their opinion that Congress can enact such laws, that its manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of light wines, cider and malt beverages, may be immediately resumed throughout the country, without any possibility of criminal prosecution or injunction proceedings, save only where these acts are forbidden by local or State laws.

The opinions were given in response to questions submitted in connection with the Hearst $25,000 temperance contest. Not only will the answers serve as a guide to all contestants in that great nation

MISSISSIPPI AT NEW HIGH LEVEL; LEVEE BREAKS FEARED

Quincy, Ill., March 20 (AP)—The Mississippi river was approaching the top of its levees today, still rising after reaching the highest stage in 13 years.

The river was expected to reach its crest here some time today, just short of the flood stage of 22 feet. There was danger, nevertheless, that the levees, weakened by the continual pressure of the last few days, might give way, especially in case of rain or hard winds.

Seepage had already caused some damage and cracks were being stopped with sandbags. Firemen were called out to pump out overflow in manufacturing plants along the river here.

The present rise had extended as far north as Keokuk, Iowa, and down in Mation County, Missouri, the line lake drainage district in Illinois, which was flooded last fall, was endangered again today as well as the Quincy and Indian Grave districts north of here. The river was also unusually high at Gregory Landing and Mark, in Missouri.

Water covered railroad tracks between here and Keokuk and trains were being routed over other roads. The area which would be inundated

2 'WIVES' CLAIM PILOT OF AIR WRECK THAT KILLED 14

Newark, N. J., March 20 (AP)—Two women today were claiming to be the wife of Pilot Lou Foote, sole survivor of the plane crash Sunday in which 14 were killed.

A telegram from Turlock, Cal., inquiring about the condition of Foote, who was severely injured in the crash identified the sender as the wife of the pilot.

The woman known here as Mrs. Foote said at her hotel that Foote had a divorced wife and seven-year-old daughter in Turlock, Cal., and that her own marriage to Foote took place in that State.

At the hospital Foote was said to have a chance for recovery.

Today the "divorced" wife wired that she would come East with the five-year-old daughter if Foote cared to see her. She added that sex was not "weeping" for him.

ADAMS PROMISES BOSTON NAVY YARD LOTS OF WORK

There will be plenty of work shortly at the Boston Navy Yard, Charles Francis Adams, the new Secretary of the Navy, declared today in his State st. office, to which he returned to clean up some personal business.

The Navy Secretary indicated that the song lean years at the Hub yard, resulting in hundreds of men being laid off, have ended.

No decision has been reached yet, however, he said, as to whether Boston will be alloted the contract for one of the 15 new cruisers to be constructed under the navy program.

COUNCILLOR BUSH ATTORNEY FOR EXCHANGE ST. LAND BUYER

HAD BEEN RETAINED SEVERAL TIMES BY ABRAM LIPP

employing Bush in connection with the land deal.

Lipp was one of the men who invested money in the lot at Exchange and State sts., of which site they finally obtained three-fifths for $84,000, while the city got two-fifths for $1,750,000.

He said he had employed Bush at various times because Bush was a war veteran, and asserted that he saw nothing unethical in engaging the services of a City Council member at a time when something of interest to him was pending before the council.

Two days after the council tabled the Exchange st widening measure, Lipp paid Bush $150, he admitted, but he insisted this was for looking up a matter in connection with an estate, and he denied ever talking with the councilman about the widening.

There was a clash of attorneys when Lowell Mayberry, counsel for Lipp, reminded James J. McCarthy, special Finance Commission counsel, that Bush had vigorously opposed the widening and voted against it.

"Of course, of course, that's easy," retorted McCarthy.

"I suppose it is entirely unnatural for Mr. McCarthy to believe anyone is honest under any condition," shot back Mayberry.

PLANNED BUILDING

Samuel L. Lowe, another witness, and one of the men interested with Lipp in some of the negotiations for the property, testified that Lipp mentioned the possibility of the city's taking the land, as an argument to induce him to continue in the combination trying to buy the site.

Lowe said, however, that he never was a speculator on the chances of the city widening Exchange st., but was interested in a proposition to erect an office building on the corner, referred to throughout the hearing as 40-44 State st.

Atty. McCarthy had Lipp produce records of his employment of Bush.

Q—When did you last retain Bush? A.—February 19, 1929.

Q—Did you employ him in 1928?

A—I think during September.

Q—What did he do? A.—He looked up an undivided interest in the Boston estate involving probably $12,000. I acquired the interest of one of five heirs.

Q—Did you know what the property was? A.—No.

Q—Did you know who the trustee was? A.—No.

Q—During eight years that you had the property you never employed anyone but Bush? A.—No.

Q—Is there any particular reason why you employed Bush in September, 1928, on a matter that had been lying dormant for eight years? A.—It should have been attended to before that.

Q.—Well, on September 10 the mayor had sent a loan order to the City Council on the Exchange st. widening, hadn't he? A.—I don't recall what the exact date was when I engaged Mr. Bush.

Q.—Was there any special reason that you should employ Bush when a matter involving your property was before the City Council, of which he is a member? A.—Only to have a report on this particular matter.

Q—Didn't the ethics of this thing occur to you? Didn't it occur to you as highly unethical to retain Bush on a transaction when he was about to vote on a matter involving property in which you were interested? A.—It did not.

Q.—Does it occur to you now? A.—It does not.

HOW BUSH VOTED

Atty. Mayberry—I would like to call it to the attention of the commission that each time the widening project was before the city council, Mr. Bush vigorously opposed it and voted in the negative.

Atty. McCarthy—Of course, of course, that's too easy.

Chairman Dowling — Mr. Mayberry, the commission is well aware of that.

Mayberry—I suppose it is entirely natural for Mr McCarthy to believe that anyone is honest under any condition.

Q. (by McCarthy)—How old is Mr. Bush? A.—In his thirties.

Q.—How long have you known him? A.—I knew him before he went to Europe. For eight or 10 years.

Q—Did you talk with Mr. Bush about the property, 40-44 State st.? A.—No.

Q—Did he know about that property? A.—I don't know.

Q—What did you pay him for the work he did for you? A.—$150.

Q—By check? A.—Yes, by check.

Q—Will you produce that check? A.—Yes, I'll bring it here.

Q—Just what did he do for you? A.—I asked him to look up a tenant named Benton who was a beneficiary. I wanted to see if he had died. There was another Benton who lived in Newton. I wanted to see whether he was the beneficiary I was interested in.

Q—Well that wouldn't mean much expense. Just a carfare to Newton. A.—There was other work to be done.

Q—Where did your Benton live; in Newton? A.—No. If he had died my interest would have dropped.

Q.—Did he make a report on what he did? A.—Yes.

WAS "GOOD" TO BUSH

Q—Where is that report? A.—My wife has it or it is in my safe.

Dowling—Is that correspondence you had with Mr. Bush? A.—Yes.

—Let me see it, please. (Takes letters.)

McCarthy—When did you pay Mr. Bush? A.—October 24, I think. I would have to look up the record.

Q.—Did Mr. Bush work for you prior to September, 1928? A.—Yes, to 1925 and 1926. In fact I gave him all my law work which did not deal with titles and real estate matters.

Q.—You gave Mr. Bush all the special matters? A.—Yes.

Q.—You gave the real estate work to others? A.—Yes.

Q.—You sent plans to Mr. Bush also? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were good to him? A.—Yes, I think I ought to be good to Mr. Bush. I felt that he was good to his country. He was so good to his country he didn't have to be grateful to anyone.

Q.—You were speculating on the possibility of the city taking that land, weren't you? A.—At what time?

Q—At any time. A.—Not until the last agreement and then there was always a contingency. I had received a promise.

Q.—What promise? A.—Dan Cronin told me I could get some more money if I put up another deposit for building purposes.

Q.—Did you know there was an order filed for tearing down the building? A.—Yes, that was provided for in the agreement.

Q.—You were watching things pretty closely then, weren't you? A.—I was watching the land.

Q.—That wouldn't run away, would it? A.—Well I was keeping in touch with Dan Cronin.

Q.—Did Cronin have a source of knowledge that you didn't have? A.—He was close to Mr. Winslow.

LETTER TO MAYOR

Q.—Did you know that a few days after the application to tear down the building was filed by Winslow, that Hurley (street commissioner) sent a letter to the mayor saying it was a good time for the city to make the taking? A.—I read all the papers.

Q.—Then it looked t oyou as if the city was going through that time? A.—Yes.

Q.—And when the city put up the money you could get back yours by the taking? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know that on October 22 a report of the committee on finance stated that leave had been given to withdraw the petition of the mayor and recorded "Ought not to pass, without prejudice"? A.—I probably read of it.

Q.—Did you know the vote was tabled, 15 to 7? A.—I probably did.

Q.—And on October 24, two days later, you paid one man voting on it $150? A.—Yes.

Dowling—In all your association with Bush as your lawyer, did you ever speak to his about the Exchange st. widening? A.—No.

Q.—You met Bush continually between Sept. 24 and Oct. 24, did you? A.—I probably met him, I intend say.

Q.—Did you discuss the widening at all in those days? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did he tell you he was going to vote against it? A.—No.

Lipp also testified to the negotiations for purchase of the property. Four agreements were made, all but the last lapsing. In the first three, those associated with him were Samuel L. Lowe, Augustus Holaman and Joseph Paul. In the fourth only Paul.

The witness, Lowe, denied Lipp told him of any outside activity by Bush or interference in the agency at City Hall or conferring with anyone at City Hall on the widening project.

The hearing was adjourned until this evening, the afternoon session being called off because the school board was to use the auditorium at 15 Beacon st., school committee members and some of the Finance Commission inquiry.

CRAWFORD IN A PLEA FOR JOB

William Crawford, ousted junior chemist of the Massachusetts public health department, never absented himself from his work for public business but once—and that once was to testify as an expert before the United States District Court.

So argued Atty. William E. Weeks, Crawford's counsel, addressing Judge Arthur D. Hill of East Cambridge District Court today in support of a petition for the reinstatement of Crawford to his post.

Attorney Weeks said that Crawford was dismissed after Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow and the public health council had found him guilty on two counts, the judge

BRIGHTON THUGS ROB SAFE OF $700 IN CASH

STAGE DARING ROBBERY NEAR POLICE STATION

Working almost within the shadow of the Brighton police station, crackmen early today forced open the safe in the branch office of the Edison Electric Light Co. at 318 Washington st. and escaped with about $700.

While the burglary was in progress men were working in a cemetery adjoining the Edison office, unaware of what was taking place.

The safe, its combination knocked off and the vault drilled through, gave evidence that the intruders were experts in their line. Similar operations on other safes in Greater Boston recently led authorities to the theory that the same gang was responsible.

Patrolman James F. Burke of the Brighton station discovered a rear door to the office forced open while on his tour of duty. On entering, he saw the battered safe.

Officials of the company said that the safe had contained approximately $700.

Inspectors from the bureau of criminal investigation at police headquarters were to examine the safe today in search of finger prints and other clues that might lead to arrests.

GUARD CAPONE FROM POLICE

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—"Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago gang leader, summoned to appear before a federal grand jury, today appeared suddenly and mysteriously in the United States district attorney's office a few minutes before he was scheduled to go before the jury.

Capone was seated in the district attorney's office while deputy United States marshals guarded a corridor leading to the marshal's office where he had been expected.

Capone was called regarding liquor and gambling syndicates in Chicago Heights and other suburbs.

Police, who at first had represented themselves as anxious to question Capone about the Moran gang massacre February 14, said they did not want to talk with him, but added they might change their minds.

Capone's attorneys said they would not allow the police to converse with their client while he was in Chicago on the grounds that he was under federal jurisdiction.

Capone posed for a picture and the district attorney's office was thrown into confusion and stenographers screamed as deputy marshals rushed in when a photographer's flashlight gun exploded prematurely.

Half a hour after Capone appeared he still was cooling his heels in the district attorney's office, no official recognition having been taken of him.

Supreme Court Refuses Aid to Swig

Judge Sanderson of the Supreme Court today denied a petition of Simon Swig to review a decree obtained by the bank commissioner in which Swig is ordered to pay $119,577.83, representing his liability as a stockholder in the Tremont Trust Company.

Swig was defaulted in proceedings brought against him by the bank commissioner. At the time the summons was served, he said, he was unable to care for his affairs. He was in bankruptcy and was under the impression his trustee in bankruptcy was looking after his affairs, the petition stated. The bank commissioner in his answer said that at no time during the four years of litigation did Swig suggest his bankruptcy or plead his discharge therein.

June, the three members of the Byrd expedition missing since last Thursday in the Rockefeller mountains of Antarctica, have been found, according to a radio dispatch from Chilton Press, copyrighted by the New York Times and St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Comdr. Byrd, who flew to their rescue, reported that their plane had been destroyed by severe winds while on the ground.

ALLEN SIGNS HUB TAX BILL

Governor Allen today signed the bill fixing the tax limit for Boston at $12.75 a thousand, an increase of 25 cents over the rate fixed by the legislature a year ago.

The action spelled a complete victory for Mayor Nichols over the Finance Commission which had recommended a substantial decrease.

The mysterious visit of Chairman Dowling Saturday to the State House to confer with John D. Wright, secretary to Governor Allen, it was learned today, had to do with this piece of legislation. At this interview, it is understood, Dowling recommended that the rate be placed at $12.25.

Sees Chicago as Air Center of the World

Washington, March 20 (INS)—America is on the way to aerial domination of the world, with her commercial aviation already grown from an infant into a billion-dollar giant within five years.

This is the opinion of William P. MacCracken, Jr., retiring Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics.

He predicted Chicago would become the air center of the world, forging ahead of Berlin, where more planes now arrive and depart daily on schedule than any other place.

WHERE TRAFFIC SLAYS THE SOUL OF MUSIC

Boston's famous "musical neighborhood" went on record today as objecting to such horrid public noises as the "plop" of pedestrians' feet being pulled out of mud-holes and the squeak of auto springs overtaxed by bumps and gullies.

Complainants in the cause of melody vs. discord were 40 women residents of a series of West Roxbury streets named for celebrated composers. The delegation was headed by Mrs. Theresa Holtz of Brahms st. Housewives were also present from Liszt st., Schubert st. and several similarly titled thoroughfares.

The troubles of the "musical neighborhood" were aired in a petition presented to the Beacon Street Commission, asking public hearing on the question of the acceptance of the "composer" streets by the city.

It is high time that municipal authority and assistance be given for construction work in the specified West Roxbury area, declared the 40 feminine committee members emphatically.

One of the speakers asserted there is "bitter irony" in living on an avenue named for art but subjected to the agony of traffic which limps creekingly through almost impassable mire and roughnesses.

TOBACCO HEIR'S WIFE FIGHTS

Reno, Nev., March 20 (INS)—Mrs. Garnet Helene Patton Inman today prepared to fight the effort of Walker P. Inman, multi-millionaire heir to the Duke tobacco fortune, to obtain a divorce. She has demanded a jury trial.

Inman's original complaint charged extreme cruelty, declaring Mrs. Inman "gave vent to fits of temper before friends and servants and remained away from home as long as two days at a time." This complaint revealed there had been a legal separation under which Mrs. Inman was to receive $5000 on Dec. 1, 1927; $10,000 in May, 1928, and $15,000 a year until her death or remarriage, with provision that payments should not be for more than five years or $75,000 in all.

The agreement gave her all her jewelry and two automobiles and provided she should be pre..nt if Inman ever started divorce proceedings.

Who Cares for a 5c Fare If He Has a Speed Boat?

New York, March 20 (AP)—When the United States Supreme Court decides whether the subway fare shall stay at a nickel, or go to seven cents, it will mean flaring headlines in this city here, but the decision will have little effect on one class of commuters—speed boat owners of Long Island Sound, the Hudson, and the Jersey coast.

There are half a hundred or so of these commuters and with the coming of spring the rivers are once more ploughed twice daily with their fast furrows. Most of them live along the Sound, in Long Island or Connecticut, and they come roaring down through Hellgate and the East river to bank into an upstream landing at the New York Yacht Club at 26th st. A smaller number, to whom the North river is more convenient, use the Columbia Yacht Club at 86th st. and the Hudson.

These commuting boats are mostly from 40 to 100 feet in length, from 25 to 50 miles an hour in speed, and from $40,000 to $75,000 cost.

IN 230-HOUR COMA

Nell Fincher, 17, pretty captain of the Charlotte, N C., basketball team, was knocked unconscious during a game February 8. After being in a coma 230 hours she lost her memory, which, doctors say, she'll never recover. (International Newsreel photo.)

THIEVES FLEE POLICE SHOTS

Two shots by Patrolman William Donovan failed today to halt a pair of thieves who Donovan surprised in the act of breaking into the City Hall Spa on Highland ave., Somerville.

The policeman was ringing in a box in front of City Hall on School st. when he heard a sound like keys dropping.

He crossed toward the rear of the spa and as he did so an auto started up and sped away, and two men emerged from the rear door of the store and ran across back yards.

Donovan gave chase and fired at the fleeing men, but they had too long a start on him. Investigation disclosed, however, that they fled before having time to get anything.

Husband Slayer to Appear on Stage

Paris, March 20—Marie Fahmy Bey, who created a sensation recently when she slew her husband in a London hotel, is shortly to appear on the Paris stage, it was just announced. The name of her starring vehicle was not disclosed She was acquitted on the ground that she had acted in self-defense.

Shirley Nonagenarian Dies

Shirley, March 20 (AP)—John C. Ayers, known as Shirley's "grand old man," is dead at the age of 91. He was a veteran of the Civil War. He was born in St. Albans, Vt.

PRINCESS SEES ANTI-LOVE PLOT

Berlin, March 20 (INS)—In an interview printed today by the Achtuhr Abendblatt, Frau Zoubkoff, formerly Princess Victoria Zu Schaumburg-Lippe, sister of the former Kaiser, alleged that her paternal house of Schaumburg-Lippe brought bankruptcy proceedings against her merely to separate her from her young husband.

Frau Zoubkoff's husband, Alexander Zoubkoff, a Russian refugee, is 25 years younger than his wife.

"My cup of brutality and humiliation is now full," Frau Zoubkoff was quoted as saying. "Now I will fight them to the last breath. They tore my husband away by force. They stopped my annuity and rented part of my house to others. My husband knows that I will stick to him despite all my troubles. My burning wish is to see him in Paris, but I am told that is impossible."

Admits His Guilt in Padlock Case

In Charlestown court today William Morris of Grant ct. admitted a finding of guilty of keeping and exposing liquor in the Water st, Charlestown, building, a section of which was the first premises to be padlocked in Massachusetts.

The padlock was placed on a store on the ground floor of the building in January. Grant paid a fine of $100.

King Joins Gay Multitude to Acclaim Next Queen

Oslo, Norway, March 20 (AP)—Princess Martha of Sweden spent her last day of unmarried life today with Norwegians outdoing themselves to make her happy.

Tomorrow she becomes the bride of Prince Olaf, Crown Prince of Norway, but before the ceremony she will have experienced the full measure of Norway's welcome to the woman who one day may be its queen.

Not since the dissolution of the union of the Scandinavian peninsula in 1905 has there been such a demonstration for a Swede in this country as in a ride through Oslo for an hour and a half longer than planned, she and Prince Olaf were pelted with flowers from cheering throngs.

Prince Olaf caught many of the bouquets skillfully while his fiancee blew kisses to her admirers. At the end of the drive the tall King Haaken was forced to lift her bodily from the mass of flowers.

King Haakon in the course of the demonstration entered the crowd like any of his subjects and waved and cheered with the most humble. In the midst of the enthusiasm a man nearly bowled the monarch over. Hurrying to apologize the man was astonished to find his victim his own ruler. The King laughed heartily, seemingly delighted.

Princess Martha appeared at a palace ball in a gown of yellow chiffon with motifs in sparkling rhinestones. She opened the dancing with Prince Olaf, while King Haakon danced with her mother, Princess Ingeborg, and the Queen with the Duke of York.

It is understood part of the honeymoon tour of the royal pair will be made in Southern Europe in a two-seated automobile with no chauffeur.

CHALLENGES HEFLIN TO S. BOSTON DEBATE

LLOYD GEORGE TO WRITE HIS MEMOIRS

London, March 20 (INS)—After 10 years of indecision, David Lloyd George is to write his memoirs.

He will undertake the work shortly after the forthcoming general election, the manuscript to be in the hands of his publishers before the end of the year.

Miss Stelhenson, his secretary, who deals with all his work in relation to foreign countries, has been busy for years compiling essential documents, and has almost completed her task.

The memoirs, it is understood, will take the form of a chronicle of the war rather than controversial comments upon those who took part in it.

Lloyd George will answer attacks made upon him by publishing the naked facts from documents, many of which have not been published.

In view of the many parts he has played upon the national and international stages, the memoirs are expected to have a wide appeal in many countries.

SHOT BARELY MISSES GIRL IN AUTO

Miss Jennie Nauss of 20 Grove st., West Somerville, narrowly escaped death or injury when a bullet crashed through a side window of the automobile in which she was riding.

In company with Walter Rafuse of 45 Bellevue st., Dorchester, she was on her way home when the shooting took place on the Mystic Valley boulevard, near Arlington.

Miss Nauss at the time was talking with Rafuse and splintered glass entered her mouth as the bullet shattered the window and passed within an inch of her head.

Believing that a holdup was being staged, Rafuse drove the car at full speed until he sighted a metropolitan district policeman, to whom he reported the affair. A hurried search failed to reveal the assailant.

3 Asked Questions, Lose College Jobs

Columbia, Mo., March 20 (AP)—The executive board of the curators of the University of Missouri today ordered the dismissal of three faculty members whom the board held responsible for recent circulation of questionnaires among students asking intimate questions as to sex and marriage.

Those dismissed are Max F. Meyer, professor of experimental psychology; Harmon D. Degraff, assistant professor of sociology, and O. H. Mowrer, student assistant in psychology.

Danced Too Hard

BROKE HER ANKLE
Miss Alice Mortimer, 22, of 573 Bennington st., East Boston, certainly likes to dance—and how! City Hospital surgeons discovered three small bones in her left ankle were broken after dancing at a dinner party when she twisted her ankle. Staff photo.

MISS EDERLE IS TO BE CAUGHT ON SIGHT

New York, March 20 (INS)—Gertrude Ederle, who three years ago received the keys of the city for swimming the English Channel, today earned a city decoration of another sort.

Because she failed three times to appear in traffic court to answer a speeding summons, a bench warrant was issued for her "arrest on sight."

Industrial Leaders Meet Here March 28

Producers, receivers and shippers of freight, as well as other representatives of industry will attend an all-day session, the fifth regular and fourth annual meeting of the New England Shippers' Advisory Board in the Copley-Plaza Hotel. Practically every branch of New England industry and business is represented in the shippers' board membership.

W. F. Garcelon, secretary and treasurer of the Arkwright Club and general chairman of the New England board, will preside. He will be assisted by F. J. Ford, traffic manager of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, and L. M. Rose of the American Railway Association.

2 Burned to Death, Scores Hurt in Blast

Marcus Hook, Pa., March 20 (AP)—Two men were burned to death and three were seriously burned today at the Sun Oil Co. plant here, after an explosion in an oil distillery.

Scores of workers and firemen were hurled to the ground as flames spread over the scene by physicians from nearby towns. The still which exploded was filled with crude oil in process of "cracking up" into gasoline. Eight tanks filled with crude and lubricating oil caught fire, as did three stills as the fire swept along the half mile frontage of the plant. Homes 200 yards away were threatened by flaming oil.

Trial of Harry Furman of Walk Hill st., Mattapan, charged with manslaughter in the death of Charles Totten, Jr., five, who was struck and killed by a truck driven by Furman, according to the evidence, was continued until March 27 when he was arraigned today before Judge Hayden in Roxbury court.

Court Asks Cat Doctors to Tell Who Pussy Is

Veterinarians from the Angell Memorial Hospital and from the Animal Rescue League were prepared today to take the witness stand in Brookline court in a solemn effort to let science help one handsome but indifferent Angora tom-cat make up his august mind as to which of two would-be mistresses ought to have the responsibility of catering to his future wants.

The question was whether the cat was "Dickie," belonging to Miss Gethra Wilson of Vernon st., Brookline, or whether he was "Cutie" belonging to Miss Annie H. Blumeberg, Miss Wilson's neighbor.

Dickie or Cutie, himself, plainly didn't give a hang who he was or whose he was. Judge Healy, therefore, decided that the cat doctors would have to be called in.

"Dickie," according to Miss Wilson, was only a year or so old. "Cutie," according to Miss Blumeberg, was twice that age. Expert opinion was expected to establish his identity.

COYNE ASSURES KLAN ORATOR OF GUARD

Challenging U. S. Senator J. Thomas Heflin to a public debate in Bethesda Hall, South Boston, and promising, if a loser, to "sour China preaching the Heflin gospel," ex-Representative Francis X. Coyne of South Boston wrote the fiery-tongued Alabama Senator the following letter today:

I have read with much interest your recent speeches, and I now challenge you to a public debate. You will be guaranteed all expenses, including transportation and hotel bills. The only reservation I make is that I be allowed the privilege of naming the hall. My selection will be Bethesda Hall, South Boston, where you will have an impartial hearing—and a rousing welcome.

Awaiting your reply,
FRANCIS X. COYNE.

P. S.—I can assure you of adequate police protection! If you are declared the winner in the debate, I shall join your forces and tour China, preaching your gospel.

MAYOR DROPS VET RELIEF CHARGES

Fitchburg, March 20 (AP)—Grand jury action in connection with alleged negligence in the handling of soldiers' relief in this city is not justified by the information in the hands of the authorities at the present time, Mayor Joseph N. Carriers said today.

He commented on a report made public by Richard R. Flynn, commissioner of state aid and pensions, who conducted an investigation into the administration of the fund and who termed the expenditures as "reckless" and a "waste of public funds." He also charged negligence and fraud in the disposal of the relief funds.

Mayor Carriere, at whose request Flynn conducted his investigation, today characterized the commissioner's report as showing "an amazing disregard of facts and lack of intelligent investigation."

COUPLE PARTED BY 'DESERTION'

The decision by Judge Joseph R. McCoole in Dedham Superior Court that Mrs. Miriam S. Gutterman of Brookline is living apart from her husband for justifiable cause was on ground of desertion and not of cruel and abusive treatment, according to a correction made today by the husband, Louis Gutterman, Boston cheese importer.

In his correction Gutterman declared:

"On February 18, 1929, Judge Joseph R. McCoole dismissed the petition of Miriam S. Gutterman of Brookline against Louis Gutterman, charging Mr. Gutterman with cruel and abusive treatment.

"Thereupon Mrs. Gutterman filed a new petition upon the ground of desertion, and this petition Judge Dedham granted.

"The matter of the custody of the children was not contested, Mr. Gutterman believing that under the circumstances and for the time being they would perhaps fare better by being with their mother, and Mr. Gutterman, of his own accord, furnished a suitable home for his wife and children."

350 Scarlet Fever Victims at Berea

Berea, Ky., March 20 (AP)—Doctors, nurses and volunteers have united to wage a battle against an epidemic of scarlet fever numbering 350 cases among 3000 students at Berea College here. Dr. Gladys Dick of Chicago, who with her husband discovered the antitoxin for scarlet fever, arrived here today to assume charge of the situation.

The entire community surrounding the college is under quarantine and the disease has not spread to the town at large.

STONEHAM FIRE DOES $50,000 DAMAGE

notified at Pinehurst, N. C., will probably fly home.

Through traffic on the State road was detoured through Wakefield, the tie-up lasting for several hours as the firemen fought the stubborn blaze.

Although the icehouse was located only a short distance from Reading sq., the blaze was first discovered in Stoneham, and a general alarm sounded in that town, bringing out all its apparatus, together with equipment from Reading and Wakefield.

The flames illuminated the countryside for miles, attracting hundreds of motorists, who blocked the roads and handicapped the firemen.

Several small buildings near the icehouse were threatened, but were saved by firemen. The home of Mr. Kimball, which is some distance away, was not endangered.

Police and firemen, pending the results of an investigation, were inclined to believe that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Sick Woman Calls the Firemen for Small Blaze

Police and firemen rushed to 279 Codman st., Dorchester, today after a frantic woman telephoned police headquarters that the building was ablaze and that she was trapped on the third floor.

There it was discovered that Mrs. Evelyn Schultz, who is ill and in care of a nurse, had become unduly alarmed when a small fire broke out in a woodpile in the cellar of the three-story dwelling.

The blaze was extinguished with chemicals and did not spread to the floor above.

Falling Chandelier Rouses Four in Fire

The dropping of a chandelier, its supports burned away by a fire early today, aroused Mrs. Lawrence G. Thompson on the second floor at 75 Saunders st., Medford, with the result that she and her husband with their baby, together with Lionel Colburn on the first floor, escaped to the outer air in nightclothing.

The blaze started from an undetermined cause in the attic of the two-family house, and burned through the ceiling into the Thompsons' apartment. Awakened by the crash of the fallen chandelier, Mrs. Thompson discovered the apartment was filled with smoke. She aroused her husband, who seized the baby, and they made their way to the street, awakening Colburn, owner of the house, who lives on the first floor alone. The damage was placed at $2500.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR ALLSTON

Three adjoining lots of land at Commonwealth ave. and Warren st., Allston, have been sold by the State to the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital.

On the site a new hospital will be built at a cost of about $2,000,000. It had been proposed previously to construct the new hospital at Commonwealth ave. and Granby st., Back Bay.

The three lots sold by the State total 1,088,685 square feet and were purchased by the State in 1915 for $225,356. The price paid by the hospital for the property was $306,000 or about 28 cents a foot.

When the land was bought 14 years ago the State intended to build on it the proposed new Normal Art school now situated at Newbury and Exeter sts. Last November, however, a new site for the school was acquired at Longwood and Brookline aves. at a price of $106,697.60. Plans are being drawn for the new school.

According to Supt. Pollock of the Homeopathic Hospital, plans for the new hospital building are indefinite.

'Phantom Stabber' Flees Hospital

Worcester, March 20 (AP)—Bridgeport's "phantom stabber" has escaped from the Worcester State Hospital, where he was confined, it became known today. He is Lorenzo Demarais, 18, and has a record of stabbing 29 people, police of Connecticut say.

Demarais and a pal, John Deane, 26, of Somerville, escaped from the hospital by picking a lock. Police of several cities where both had frequented, were asked to keep a watch on them.

Florida Folk Flee to the High Land as River Rises

Atlanta, Ga., March 20—The Apalachiola river in Florida was still on a rampage today and warnings were issued to inhabitants along its banks to flee to higher ground. In other flooded sections of Florida, Alabama and Georgia, the waters were either subsiding or barely holding their high level's.

Report from Florida was that many refugees had found safety on high ground.

A modern Paul Revere has arisen from the Apalachiola flood. Edward H. Calvin, Red Cross worker was being congratulated today for his drive southward in an auto from Bainbridge, to beat the crest of the flood and to warn natives to seek safety on higher ground.

The Alabama river alone was dangerous today. Its waters, like others in the lowlands, were receding, however.

Food and other supplies were being delivered by aviators on a regular schedule to the south Alabama towns and the northwest Florida towns which were flood-swept. The planes were from the Naval Air Station at Pensacola.

Caryville and Milligan, along the Yellow river in Florida, were hard hit. Only three houses were reported left in Milligan, and they were damaged.

Under the direction of the Red Cross, succor and relief went forward systematically throughout the territory.

Thousands Homeless in Danube River Flood

Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, March 20 (AP)—Thousands of families along the right bank of the Danube were suddenly bereft of their homes, cattle and other belongings today by the worst flood since 1872.

The great river, which is choked with millions of tons of thawing ice was rising steadily and threatening further disaster.

Churchbells tolled along its 1800-mile length, warning riparian dwellers to flee for their lives.

GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC TEA CO. MANAGERS HOLD BANQUET

SAYS U. S. FACES PROSPERITY

Speaking before an enthusiastic audience of men and women in the Imperial ballroom of the Hotel Statler, at the 12th annual banquet of the North and South side branches of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Managers' Benefit Association, W. J. Davidson, president of the New England division of the company, predicted that the coming four years will be prosperous ones.

"We have before us four years of prosperity," he said, "prosperity such as this country has never seen. We want to be prepared to take advantage of this prosperity."

Referring to the business of his concern, President Davidson said: "The keystone of our success in the grocery business is service—service to the customer."

Other speakers were W. S. Hillyer, national association representative of the A. & P. Co., and L. W. Thompson, vice president of the New England division. The former said: "We must have sincerity and truth. The man who does not possess sincerity and truth will not succeed in this organization.

"The chain stores have come in for criticism recently. As far as our organization is concerned this is unjust. Our ideals and our principles are right, and so are our men, or we wouldn't be where we are today.

"The successful man in business today is the active man. It is men of action who have made this company what it is today."

L. W. Beebe, general superintendent of the New England division, was toastmaster.

Man and Wife Freed of Liquor Charge

Michael O. Lucash, who formerly acted as interpreter in the Charlestown municipal court, was today found not guilty by Judge Charles S. Sullivan in that court, of the charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale in a building on Elm st., Charlestown. His wife, Mary, was also charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale, and she was also found not guilty and discharged.

plan, there will be complete harmony on the project.

Barnes warned the committee the proposed fills in the basin should be carefully studied before they were made in view of the fact that two of the engineers connected with the basin's original development have expressed fear that any appreciable shortening of the water expanse may result in overflows with property damage.

Redraft Chiropractor Bill

The legislative committee on state administration today voted to report a redraft of a bill calling for state recognition of chiropractors. It is understood that the bill, under one provision, calls for the appointment of two chiropractors to the state board of registration in medicine.

HUNT FOR GIRL AND MAN IN AUTO CRASH

An automobile crash at Melrose ave. on the Herron rd., in Saugus today resulted in the arrest of Leo Norton of Highland rd., Brookline, a search through Saugus woods for a girl passenger, a hunt for another man—and the practically total loss of a brand new car.

Although Norton denied he was driving the machine, he is charged by Saugus police with drunkenness and with operating while under the influence of liquor.

After Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gilbert of the Herron rd. heard a crash at the curve below their house today, Norton, covered with blood, reeled into the house and gasped that there was a girl in the wreck of the machine that had piled up against two boulders and a tree—then turned over.

The Gilberts searched the wreck, but could find no one. Police arrived, and Norton, who had become unconscious, was treated by Dr. Myron R. Davis of Saugus for hurts the doctor declared were not serious.

Norton was placed under arrest and a search of the woods was made for the girl.

Meanwhile, an official of the Boston company that rented the car last night arrived at the scene and declared Norton was not the man to whom the new machine had been let out. Then a hunt was begun for a man who gave a Jamaica Plain address in hiring the machine.

Charged With Fraud in Borah Forgery

Berlin, March 20 (INS)—Formal charges of fraud were lodged today against two alleged Russian forgers, Vladimir Orloff ad Michael Sumarkoff who were said to be involved in the forgery of documents using the names of Senator Borah and Senator Norris.

Several additional arrests have been made in various cities in connection with the so-called Gumanski anti-Bolshevist information service.

Lens Block Moulders Strike

Southbridge, March 20—Forty men employed in the lens block moulding department of the American Optical Company went on strike here because they were unwilling to continue a new wage plan which had been introduced by the company.

Smoking Ban Lifted for Girl Students at Pembroke

Providence, R. I., March 20—Flaming youth will have its fling—and its smoking. Today the ban on smoking by girls at Pembroke College, Brown University is lifted, and smoking will be permitted in the conference room and college dormitories. Suitable furniture is being put in, so the girls may enjoy the fags in comfort. Smokerettes, including trays, will be added. Heretofore, girls caught smoking were subject to expulsion.

NAVY YARD IS TO GET BIG JOBS

The Boston Navy Yard, as now arranged, is not ideally fitted for cruiser building, according to Secretary Adams, and it would be necessary to spend $700,000 in extending the ship ways before work on this type of building could begin.

Boston is better adapted to carrying out repair work on cruisers and it is probable, the new Navy secretary said, that much of this type of work will be assigned to the Boston navy yard.

At least, the present force of 1800 men at the navy yard will find sufficient work to keep them busy. Secretary Adams declared, and it is probable that under the contemplated navy program there will be enough to require the services of the full personnel of 2000.

READY FOR PILGRIMAGE TO THE HOLY CITY

A partial list of the residents of Massachusetts and other sections of the country who will accompany Cardinal O'Connell on the American pilgrimage to Rome next month was announced today by Thomas Cook & Sons, the travel managers.

The list includes 127 names. Simultaneously with the announcement comes the news that only 50 more places are available on the Presidente Wilson, the liner chartered for the tour.

The Pilgrimage will be the first from America to greet the Pope during the Holy Year which he has declared in observing the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

In addition, it will be the first to arrive since the Papacy achieved its new status through the concordat with the Italian Government.

WILL MEET THE POPE

The itinerary as completed calls for a month's absence, from April 19 to May 18. Visits will be paid to the Azores, Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples, Palermo and Lisbon.

The climax of the pilgrimage comes during a week's stay in Rome. There will be a special audience with the Holy Father. Some time will be spent in visiting the great Basilicas of Rome — St. Peter's, St. Mary Major, the greatest of 80 Roman churches dedicated to the Blessed Virgin and St. John Lateran, the original mother church of the Catholic faith.

Tours of both ancient and modern Rome are included in the program—the Coliseum, the Arch of Constantine, Hadrian's Tomb, the Catacombs, the Vatican Museum and the Sistine Chapel.

With the departure of the main body from Rome on May 7, special tours will leave for Italy, Egypt, the Holy Land, Turkey, Greece, France and England.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

CLUB AIDE URGES FRIEND AS TYPICAL AMERICAN GIRL

THEY come from all over New England and from all walks of life, these nominations in the Quest for the Typical American Girl. Schoolgirls, shopgirls, decorators, switchboard operators, secretaries, office workers, nurses—and from among them one will be chosen by the Boston Evening American s committee of local judges to receive a $500 award and later to be considered by the National Committee for Smart Set Magazine's award of $5000.

To make nomination simpler, a nomination blank is printed in the Boston Evening American and will appear until the end of the Quest, April 1. The blank is offered for the convenience of readers.

Now comes along Miss Anna M. Martin, of 10 Prospect ter., Springfield. Miss Martin was nominated in this contest by Grace M. Jameson, chairman of the Women's Committee of the Springfield Electra Club of N. E. L. A.

Miss Jameson's nomination follows:

"As a reader of Smart Set I am particularly interest in the article, The Quest for the Typical American Girl, appearing in your April issue.

BUSINESS GIRL

"I would like to propose the following candidate for regional winner of Western Massachusetts.

"Candidate- Miss Anna M. Martin. 10 Prospect ter., Springfield Mass.

"Miss Martin is a young lady of particular interest to me. She is 27 years old, weighs 110 pounds and is five feet 3½ inches tall Large blue eyes, light hair and a clear coloring, she impresses one with the sweet wholesome spirit of America's best type of young womanhood.

"Miss Martin is a graduate of the Oakland school, Chicago, Ill Professionally she is a business girl, having been connected with the United Electric Light Co. Springfield, Mass., for several years. In this organization she has proved herself most proficient when waiting on the public as a cashier and as a bookkeeper in the treasurer's department.

"Socially, I would say that alias Martin's many friends are a proof of her good disposition, tactfulness and pleasing personality. I have seen her acting as hostess for our open club festivities, greeting some 200 or more people as easily as one far more used to such duties and much more advanced in years.

"She has served this club as publicity chairman for the last three years and it is due to her exceptional ability along this particular line that the growth of our club has been so pronounced.

PRIZE ESSAYIST

"Tennis, aviation and niking appeal mostly to Miss Martin in the athletic line. Due to her enthusiasm, some 30 members of this club and several friends were given their first airplane excursion Through her untiring spirit, her willing co-operation and unselfishness, the Springfield Electra Club votes her its best in all ways.

That letter is printed because it represents exactly the spirit of this Quest, and whether the candidate is selected or not, the nomination is made in just the right attitude.

Remember we do not ask for a lengthy letter with each nomination. The blank alone will suffice to enter a candidate.

Science Sees a 'Heatless Living Light' in Future

New York, March 20 (AP)—Scientific steps necessary to develop a light which will burn indefinitely, without heat, feeding on its own ashes, were described at a meeting of the American Institute here.

"Living light, such as that from the fire-fly, said Dr. E. Newton Harvey of Princeton University, is the basis from which this new type of illumination for human use may possibly be developed.

Though the steps necessary for success are few, he said, they are among the most difficult in research. In all the 40 known groups of animals and the two groups of plants that glow, the cause never is phosphorous, as popularly believed. It is some thing more difficult to imitate.

The "cold light," Dr. Harvey said is a combination of water, oxygen, luciferin and an enzyme. While all four seem indispensable luciferin appears as the principal ingredient. It is one of the proteins, which are nitrogenous substances that occur in profuse varieties in all living things Enzymes are activating agencies, dynamos, small in proportions but of powerful effect.

Won't Let King Hear Radio Story of Race

Liverpool, March 20 (AP)—King George, convalescing at Bognor, not only will not see the Grand National run off at Aintree, but will not even risk the nervous excitement of listening to accounts of it broadcast over the radio. The Prince of Wales, however, plans to take the day off, and with crowds of other Londoners, pile into one of the 300 special trains which will speed from the capital to Liverpool early Friday and return immediately after the great chase.

HEX FEAR BALKS MURDER CASE

Allentown, Pa., March 20 (AP)—Developments in the investigation of the death of Verna Octavia Delp, 21, led authorities to believe she was slain at a gun club near Catasauqua.

Police said the investigation had been hampered because residents of the community had kept silent for fear a "hex doctor" would cast a spell on them.

"It is hard to believe people will withhold information at this time because of such ridiculous reasons, said Dist.-Atty. Gerhart, "but it is true nevertheless. The investigators have encountered silence at nearly every point."

He said he was convinced the girl's death was the result of the practice of witchcraft This association was made after Frank Masters, a former friend of Miss Delp, had been absolved of any connection with her death Masters said he had stopped going with the girl when he learned she was friendly with another man and declared he had not seen her for several months.

Send 'Old-Fashioned Cook' Back to Jail

Greenfield, March 20 (AP)—Thomas McGregor, whose flair for making a potable beverage from chair shellac helped him while away a term in Hampden County jail, according to his statement to the court in that city, and who was released on his offer to "head north and keep going," began a six-month stay in Franklin County jail for stealing accessories from an automobile. MacGregor, who is 66, admitted serving terms for counterfeiting. He characterized himself as an "old-fashioned, law-abiding crook."

Mail Flier Downed in Burning Field

Baltimore, March 20 (INS)—Dropping flares to see the ground when engine trouble necessitated a forced landing, Verne E. Creat, air mail pilot on the Philadelphia-Richmond, Va., route wrecked his plane in a field of fire at Glen Burnie early today. The flares ignited the underbrush.

Uninjured, he retrieved the mail sacks, stamped out the flames near the plane then ran to call firemen. A motorist took him to Washington with his mail.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX FLAYED BY DUNCAN SISTERS

SIX young children and an invalid woman are being supported by the famous Duncan sisters—Rosetta and Vivian—but none of the money they spend for this laudable purpose is deductible from their Federal income tax. The only exemption they get is $1000 for support of their father.

And so, with a wealth of experience to back up their opinions, the Duncan sisters, who are among the most famous stage and screen stars in this country, favor a downward revision of federal taxation on earned incomes. A nation-wide movement with that end in view is being supported by Hearst newspapers.

All the young children whom they support are the kiddies of relatives and they would have few of the advantages of modern American life if it were not for the two clever artists, appearing in Boston this week after their triumphal tour of Europe.

But let the Duncan sister, appearing at Keith's Memorial Theater this week, tell the story.

"The federal income tax is all wrong and should be radically changed," said Rosetta, the older sister.

"You're right," chimed in Vivian "It's all wrong, not only in taxing earned income as heavily as it does but also in the matter of exemptions where persons take care of others on whom there is no legal exemption.

"Take our own case for instance," said Rosetta, taking up the thought of Vivian. "We are getting $4500 this week for playing in Boston and everybody asks, 'What do you do with your money?' Well, we spend it and a large part of it goes to support the children of some of our relatives who would be practically destitute if we did not help them.

"We are glad to do it but the government makes no allowance for these sums on such a worthy cause. We feel it should allow deductions of all money spent in such a manner by us or any other person.

"Our brother, Alvin Duncan, died July 4, 1925, after a prolonged illness. During the last two years of his life we spent at least $10,000 on doctor's bills and gave his family $100 a week to live on during that period. The government allowed no income tax deductions for those sums.

"Alvin's widow works in Los Angeles as a cashier at $18 a week and could not possibly support her three young children on that amount. We have practically supported the family since my brother's death.

"We've supported our aged grandmother, Susan Duncan, ever since we've been on the stage and we paid her funeral expenses when she was burned to death, two years of $100,000," said Vivian.

"So far as the $1000 deduction allowed us for supporting our father is concerned, it is a ridiculous amount as we spend more than that for his food in three months.

"And I think the Government should have allowed a deduction for the $10,000 a spent as a result of that automobile accident I was in at Oxnard, Cal., August 16, 1926, when we had to close 'Topsy and Eva' for six months at a loss ago in Los Angeles.

Sign This and Cut Your Taxes

To the Congress of the United States:

THE undersigned respectfully urges that Congress give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all taxes on earned incomes.

This is urged because in many instances earners of salaries, wages, fees or commissions for personal services have only a few years of good incomes, and prior to and after that period have substantially smaller incomes.

Their period of better earnings, which might give them a chance to accumulate some savings, is heavily taxed. Labor in general, clerical workers, salesmen, lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects, journalists, accountants, actors, musicians, singers and members of all other professions are in the same plight in the matter of earned incomes, as compared with earnings on capital.

The use of my name on a petition to Congress is hereby granted.

Wife To Face Trial For Handing Suicide Mate 'Death Gun'

Elizabeth City, N. C., March 20 (AP)—Because Mrs. Rogerson Sawyer has admitted that she handed her husband a pistol when he threatened during a quarrel to commit suicide, she must stand trial in June charged with moral responsibility for his death.

She was at liberty today under $1000 bond after the grand jury had returned a true bill charging that she encouraged the final act.

DEATH CLAIMS W. C. POLAND

Providence, March 20 (AP)—Death has brought to a close the career of one of the country's most distinguished classical scholars, William Carey Poland, since 1915 professor emeritus in art at Brown University. He died last night, aged 53 years.

Dr. Poland was born in Goffstown, N. H., and was graduated from Brown in 1868, later receiving his master's degree in art. After 13 years as an instructor in Latin and Greek, he became associate professor of Greek, and from 1892 to his retirement held the chair of art.

He was a member of the American Philogical Association, of the Archaelogical Institute of America, a director of the Providence Athenaeum and a former director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens. A widow and three sons survive.

3 Die in City Hospital After Accidents

Three men died in City Hospital today as a result of accidents, one of them the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

Patrick Brennan of 274 Dudley st., Roxbury, was knocked down in front of his home by a machine, in the slight of his wife. He was taken to the hospital suffering from a fractured skull. Police are seeking the motorist.

Angelo Campbell, 50, of 84 Warren st., Charlestown, fell downstairs Sunday afternoon at his home and was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital suffering from a fractured spine. He was transferred to City Hospital.

Erhard Adler, 47, of 1352 Dorchester ave., Dorchester, died today at City Hospital from injuries suffered when struck by a Boston Elevated bus while crossing Dorchester ave. near his home.

Many Communists Arrested in India

Bombay, India, March 20 (AP)—Police made numerous arrests here and at Poona and Calcutta today in connection with an alleged conspiracy against the State.

Activities here centered at the "Youth League" offices. Three Communist labor leaders were arrested on a charge of "waging war against the king" in speeches. When news of the arrests reached the Tata mills at Dadar, north of Bombay, workmen struck.

PROBE FORGED ESCAPE FROM U. S. PRISON

Kansas City, March 20 (AP)—Astounded by revelations that a man forged his way and that of another man out of the largest federal prison in the country, United States officials today planned to return Hays Van Gorder, recaptured "master pen artist," to his cell at Leavenworth, and continue a search for C. Von Esch, his confederate.

The escape of Van Gorder and Von Esch, accomplished March 2 through forged court orders, was revealed when Van Gorder, arrested in Milan, Mo., for forging money orders, was recognized by postal inspectors.

The inspectors knew Van Gorder was supposed to be in the Leavenworth prison. They learned he had been released on a writ of habeas corpus and documents purporting to be orders from the United States Circuit Court at Topeka, Prison authorities received the fake documents through the mail.

Van Gorder obtained the documents from the clerk of the District Court at Topeka last month when he applied for two certified copies of a writ of habeas corpus on which he was to be taken to Cape Girardeau, Mo., for trial on charges of postal theft, according to Alton H. Skinner, assistant United States district attorney. The forger altered one copy changing the case number from 79 to 179 and the date from February 8 to 28.

He then obtained a blank letter head with the government water mark and wrote a letter purporting to be from the United States marshal at Topeka attesting that the copies of the writ and the orders from the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals were true copies. Apparently the documents were mailed by an outside accomplice or slipped into the mail by a convict employed to open letters.

Floyd Collins' Body Is Back in Cave

Horse Cave, Ky., March 20—The body of Floyd Collins was back on exhibition in its metal and glass casket in Crystal Cave today after its mysterious removal.

Three sheriffs and Dr. H. B. Thomas, owner of the cave, were unable to suggest the motive that prompted vandals to carry off the body in a burlap bag and abandon it a quarter of a mile from the cave.

Trotzky Adherent Banished to Siberia

Berlin, March 20 (AP)—Telegrafen Union dispatches from Moscow, by way of Kovno, today said that a Trotzky adherent named Martinoff had been banished for five years to Yenies-Eisk, Eastern Siberia. Martinoff, who was an old Marxist, played an important part in the Russian revolution.

Maybe It Could Be Worse—But How?

New York, March 20 (AP)—A great boon to humanity could be even greater. Livingston Welgh Gibbs-an, literateur and musician has invented a folding cello that can be put in a suitcase. Suppose he were to devise a collapsible bull fiddle!

Arches are fitted more accurately— "since Coward came to town"

TIME was when arch support shoes were simply arch support shoes. Whether the arch was high, low or in between, one could choose a shoe of only one arch elevation.

But things have changed since Coward came to town. Coward builds arch support in three distinct arch elevations . . . high, low and medium. That way, the arch can be fitted accurately. That way, people suffering with weakened or fallen arches get more comfort in shoes than they have ever had before.

Remember always that at Coward's, expert fitters have the largest range of styles, sizes and widths in the world to help them do their work well. That alone explains why so many more feet are comfortable since Coward came to town.

IMPORTANT DUTIES OF FLAG UNIT CHIEFS OUTLINED

ONE of the most important duties of those in charge of contest units in the grand, patriotic, nationwide Flag Contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association, is to be absolutely sure of the number of contestants in their respective units.

It is, therefore, requested that those heads of contest units who have not as yet filed statements of the number of contestants, that they do so immediately.

While the approximate number in each contest unit has been received by the Flag Contest Editor, it now becomes imperative that the contest heads report the exact number in each unit.

These figures are needed in order that the amount of awards to the winners in each contest unit may be placed in the hands of the heads of the units in ample time before the date set for the awarding of medals and testimonials of honorable mention.

HAVE THREE WEEKS

For example, if you are the head of a contest unit, or flag board, that is conducting a unit of both boys and girls, please send a statement of the number of boys and the number of girls in the unit.

If you are the head of a contest unit with boys only or with girls only, the number of boys or the number of girls competing should be mailed immediately.

The enrollments should close immediately if you have not already done so. This will give the contestants a full three weeks to prepare answers to the 75 official questions and also enable them to prepare the accompanying essay. The date of closing for this is April 12.

This date is the last date on which papers may be submitted to heads of flag units by any contestants. It does not, however, prevent the heads of local contest units from accepting papers from contestants any time from now on.

BEST ESSAYS

The Flag Contest Editor is today printing paragraphs 17, 18 and 19 of the rules and regulations, which he calls to the attention of the heads of units and flag boards for their perusal.

17. SELECTION OF BEST SIX PAPERS.

(a) Method. As determined by the marks given (1) on the answers to the questions and (2) the composition of the essay the Jury of Award will select—

(a) The best three papers submitted by boys and the best three papers submitted by girls, in case of a Flag Contest participated in by both boys and girls.

(b) The best six papers, in case of a Flag Contest participated in by boys only or by girls only.

(b) Notifying Contestants. The contestants whose papers have been selected will be immediately notified and instructed by the head of the Contest Unit to memorize their essays preparatory to reciting them as prescribed in Paragraph 18.

(c) Essays not to be changed. The essays that are recited must be the identical ones that were submitted and marked by the Jury of Award. In other words, no change whatsoever can be made in an essay after it has been turned in by a contestant.

TO MAKE AWARDS

18. RECITATION OF ESSAYS. The authors of the best six papers will be required to memorize and recite their essays before the Jury of Award at a public meeting to be held at such place and at such time during the week of May 4 to May 11, as may be selected by the head of the Local Contest Unit, who shall preside at such meeting or designate some one to do so. Announcement of the winners of the Awards of the Old Glory Medal (or Medals), and the Testimonials of Honorable Mention will be made at this meeting.

19. PRESENTATION OF AWARDS. The presentation of the Old Glory Medal (or Medals) and the Testimonials of Honorable Mention may be made at the public meeting mentioned above, in Par. 18, if the head of the Local Contest Unit so desires; or, if there are several Contest Units in the town or city, either the heads of such units or the regional sponsoring newspaper may arrange, if desired, to have the awards of all the Contest Units presented at the same time and place.

In either case, the presentation of the awards will be made the occasion of a public patriotic ceremony which prominent citizens should be invited to attend and which should be addressed, by one or more well-known persons, including, if practicable, the mayor of the city.

A further request is made to heads of units that they forward at once the makeup of their Juries of Award. This step in the contest is of equal importance and should be adhered to.

The Flag Contest Editor is at the services of all flag unit heads and he will be very glad to supply any additional information or forward supplies that they may need.

Spring Due Tonight But Summer-Like Day Beats It Here

Although spring is not officially due until 9:35 tonight, Boston enjoyed near-summer weather today.

In two hours the mercury climbed from 46 degrees to 62 degrees and was still ascending.

Tonight it is expected that another bit of chill will be visited upon the city, to be in turn dispelled again tomorrow. The temperature is not expected to sag under 25 degrees for a minimum.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Thursday; somewhat cooler tonight; moderate west to northwest winds becoming variable Thursday.

SKYLIGHT GANG IN 10TH HAUL

"Skylight burglars," executing their 10th such "haul" in two weeks, robbed Pop's Cigar Store at 504 Adams st, Dorchester, today.

The burglars got $90 in cash, several watches, cigarette cases, three boxes of dice, pen and pencil sets and cigars and cigarettes.

A short time later the same burglars are believed to have tried to break into the Famous Lunch, a few doors away. A cook who awoke and turned on the electric lights after hearing noises at the skylight said more than one man ran over the roof.

The "skylight burglers" break out a pane from a skylight and then lower themselves by a rope.

Benton Is Head of Bridge Commission

Former Atty-Gen. Jay R. Benton today was elected chairman of the commission appointed by Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court to apportion the cost of the new Cottage Farm bridge among municipalities, corporations and individuals benefited by the improvement. The other two members of the commission are David A. Marshall and James E. McConnell. Hearings will begin at the State House on April 8.

Reparations Group to Recess for Easter

Paris, March 2 (AP)—The reparations experts committee has come to the conclusion that it will be unable to complete its work before Easter, consequently a recess will be taken March 28 and the committee will reconvene on April 3.

Lord Revelstoke, British delegate, today made his report on the proposed creation of a trustee reparations bank. It was heard by the experts in full committee with approval, but has not yet been accepted.

Count Is Held for Murder of Father

Berlin, March 20 (INS)—The arrest of Count Christian Friedrich von Stolberg-Wernigerode at Jannowitz, Silesia, on the charge of murdering his father at the ancestral castle at Jannowitz, is becoming the biggest sensation of recent years in Germany.

The police were investigating today to determine if other members of the family were implicated. The count, who is 27 years old and heir to the vast estates of this wealthy family, claims his father was killed by burglars.

$32,235,423 Jump in Income Tax Receipts

Washington, March 20 (AP)—An increase of $124,901,510 in income tax collections Monday over the amount reported Saturday sent the total for the fiscal year starting last July to $32,235,423 more than was collected in the same period of the previous year.

The figure bore out expectations of treasury experts that the tax would bring greater return this year despite a cut of 1½ percent in the corporation tax. Collections from income taxes Monday totaled $161,743,857, bringing the total for the month to $271,090,711.

Cattlemen Demand $32,000 of State

Worcester, March 20 (AP)—Echo of the recent cattle fraud cases in Massachusetts is heard in the determination of counsel for the cattlemen to press claims for more than $32,000 indemnity on tubercular cattle. Payment was held up during the court proceedings.

Contestants Take Notice

Contestants must not send their answers and essays to the Flag Contest Editor, but must deliver them to the person sponsoring the local contest units.

INSTEAD of exercise
Don't suffer the consequences of persistent lack of exercise. Learn the simple secret of the exercise in the vest-pocket box for a dime! Millions know it!
Cascarets make bilious, headachy, constipated people feel wonderful. Their effect is not only quick, but it's lasting. They give the bowels as much real exercise as they get from an hour in the saddle.
Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives do not act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They actually weaken the bowels. You have to keep dosing with them.
Each time you use Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the natural peristaltic action of the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That accounts for the popularity of Cascarets and their tremendous sales of over 20 million packages a year!

BRUSH LARGE HOLDER OF COPPERS

By FRANK H. MELOON

change. A Wall Street writer says Mr. Brush's "investment trust" is a large holder of Radio Corp. and copper issues. This writer says: While the exact amount of Radio now held is unknown, A. I. C. at one time had 20,000 shares of the old stock, written down to a cost of $20 a share through trading profits. A. I. C. is understood to have been liquidating highly profitable lines in the market advanced.

Perhaps you noticed the statement in the newspapers this week from the Civil Service Commission declaring that private business was copying its methods. It would be very interesting to learn just what private business is conducting civil service examinations or anything in the examination line that could be construed as an imitation of "civil service." Perhaps someone will be able to enlighten us.

We did hear the advice given at a Boston conference that employers study the daily life of their employees. We thought that was really going the celebrated civil service "one better."

Business picture continues generally cheerful. Undoubtedly the earliness of Easter has accelerated the pace in some seasonal lines, and in these the weeks after Easter are likely to show an earlier falling off than usual. Automotive and associated lines continue to show rare promise.

The building industry, a "key line," is surprising all the students of construction. February construction contracts awarded in the 37 states east of the Rockies were 12 per cent less than the record for January, 1929, and 22 per cent below the total for February of last year. But February building and engineering contracts in the New England states were the highest February contract total ever recorded for that district, the figure being $26,430,700—an increase of 15 per cent over the total for February of 1928. Who said New England was a laggard?

We really should have cotton consumption figures compiled by districts instead of for the nation as a whole. That would enable business students to get a clearer understanding of what is meant when the Federal figures are issued.

Actual offering of European Ford Motor shares in Germany will be made during the second half of March or early in April, according to advices received by bankers here. The Ford officials, it is expected, will allot shares to German subscribers only. Total capital of the company is to be raised from 500,000,000 to 4,000,000 reichsmarks, of which 60 per cent will be retained by the English Ford Motor Co., and 40 per cent offered to the German public at par.

Analyzed, the above means that, while you are unlikely to be able to buy German Ford shares in themselves, you can secure a controlling interest therein by buying Ford of England. A lot of people are wondering if Ford will duplicate overseas his success in America. It would be marvelous if he did, con-

How Local Enterprise Was Made Popular With Town

By B. C. FORBES

OMAHA, Neb., March 20—Is it possible for an executive to take hold of a corporation that is hated by its community and transform it into the most popular of all local enterprises—yet raise it from weakness to strength, from poverty to profit 4 unfavorably with corporations in the prices charged for its product? I knew before visiting Omaha that it had made a corporation be cause this corporation h a d won a national silver cup for these achievements. How can such a feat be accomplished—and by, of all companies, a public utility?

Last week the Nebraska Power Company announced a voluntary cut in rates, using a half-page newspaper advertisement. It is an article I believe in frank and full publicity. These new rates, I'm assured, are absolutely the lowest for home consumption in America notwithstanding that the power has to be generated by steam. The old rate was 5½ cents per kilowatt hour regardless of quantity used. If more than 10 kilowatt hours per room is used, the rate for the next 160 hours is now only three cents and a second cut considerably more, a cent and a half. The old rate for the small-est consumption stands, so that not one bill will be increased.

Omahans accepted the announcement as nothing tremendously unusual since James A. Davidson—affectionately known as "Davy"—took over the management 10 years ago.

"Before you can cut rates, other things have to be done," President Davidson explained under quizzing. "The most important of all is to get your own organization right to win their enthusiastic loyalty. Then train them to give the very best service by making them eagerly want to give the best service that can be rendered, easily to effect many new economies and efficiencies.

"He would be a poor executive who could not, given these conditions, manage to reduce rates."

The following facts were furnished me by an employe. The company believes in the human touch in its dealings with employes and the public. It is not uncommon for the women employes to be surprised at the noon hour in summer with cold lemonade, grape fruit, watermelon or the like. Every summer we have an employes' family picnic and every winter an employes' dinner. The various departments also have picnics and other affairs. The day before Christmas the employes gather in noon, sing carols, give presents to one another and listen to a talk by a prominent citizen. A relief association helps employes in need. Every employe is encouraged to take part in civic activities, in the Neighborhood improvement clubs and do other things to make the city a better place to live in.

The Nebraska Power Company orchestra entertains at many public gatherings. The employes enjoy group insurances for employes is provided. A committee of executives gives free legal, financial and such like services.

Organizations for educational and social gatherings are encouraged. Sports are vigorously promoted and teams enter practically all the city sports leagues, such as baseball, volleyball, bowling, basketball, handball, golf—and incidentally win many championships.

Consumption of electricity, thanks to the lowered rates and attractive service, has doubled in less than nine years; every large business establishment now prefers to use the company's power and farm electrification is being energetically pushed. Yet no man in Omaha impresses more fine and effort to public-spirited activities than the mainspring of this extremely successful company, Jim Davidson.

It can be done.

Gypsum Industry to Meet on Practices

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission has authorized a trade practice conference for the gypsum industry March 28 in New York city, Commissioner William E. Humphrey will preside.

Approximately 40 per cent of the industry, including 50 per cent of the producers east of the Rocky mountains, has applied for representation at the conference. Among the trade practices proposed for the discussion are price discrimination, misrepresentation and secret price rebates.

EXCHANGE Trust Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of $3 a share, payable April 1.

STEEL PLAN IS ENDORSED BY TAYLOR

New York, March 20 (AP)—The proposed capital readjustment of the United States Steel Corporation, involving substitution of common stock for funded debt, is described as "highly advantageous to all of the stockholders and conducive to the best interests of the corporation" by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee, in a letter to stockholders.

He urged ratification of the plan at the annual stockholders' meeting in Hoboken, N. J., April 15.

One of the inactive stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange has turned up in the trading for the first time in more than two years. A sale of common stock of the Pettibone Mulliken Company, a railway equipment concern, was recorded at $13 a share yesterday. In the previous sale, on February 23, 1927, it was quoted at $23.

Production and consumption of chemicals in the first quarter of the year promises to reach higher levels than had generally been predicted at the beginning, Harris as a whole, finds itself in a favorable position, says Chemical & Metallurgical Engineering.

A large part of the production has been sold ahead. The majority of the chemicals held a steady price course in the past month.

Foreign Exchange

Offering was made today of $1,-250,000 6½ per cent preferred stock and a like amount of common stock at $32 a share of the Mangel Stores Corporation, which is being formed to acquire Mangel's, Inc., operating a chain of 92 apparel stores in 86 cities.

Calls Preferred

Hart-Parr Co. has called for redemption May 1 its outstanding $6.50 cumulative series A preferred at 105 and accrued dividend.

1928 Cotton Crop Set at 14,450,007 500-Lb. Bales

Washington, March 20 (AP)

—The 1928 cotton crop was ginned to the census bureau at 14,450,007, equivalent 500-pound bales, compared with 12,956,043 in 1927 and 17,977,374 in 1926.

RADIO IS MAKING STARS ALL ITS OWN

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

THERE IS a constantly growing "listener acceptance" to radio tenors and sopranos these nights. The change in public appreciation is probably due not so much to a difference in public taste as to the vast improvements in acoustical reproduction in the average receiver. Nowadays a tenor sounds like a tenor and not a bowling brake-band. A soprano is really a soprano and not a heterodyne whistle. There may be some what uncertain as to the exact identities of Paul Oliver, Julian Oliver, Jane Vanee and Gertrude Smith and the various other high C hitting gentry of the air, but he has learned to like a well-trained singer and the songs that he sings

DISTINCTIVE PERSONALITIES

THE SOPRANO LADIES offer an interesting study. A few months ago the general supposition was that only the deep-toned contralto could be tolerated by the radio listener. Now, the most popular radio entertainers among the singers of the air are not the famed operatic stars, but such distinctive radio personalities as Irma de Baun, Olive Palmer, Dolores Cannielli, Olive Kline and other regulars who so endeared with voices that are light, high, and birdlike. With the tenors and sopranos in the ascendant, it looks as though the day of the jazz-band squawker is approaching its twilight.

DEMAND OPIUM PRODUCTION BE LIMITED

By KENNETH CLARK

Washington, March 20—American authorities all agree that the only way to save civilization from the ravages of the dope evil is for world powers to limit opium production and manufacture through concerted action.

That program was vigorously advanced by the American delegates at the Geneva Opium Conference under the auspices of the League of Nations.

The controlling powers at the conference rejected the plan.

A glance at the vast revenues derived by European governments from opium production in their colonies in the Orient gives the answer.

REVENUES FROM OPIUM

For instance, of the total revenues of British Malaya and Hong Kong, 26.4 per cent comes from opium. For a five-year period, the total in money was nearly $1,000,000,000.

The opium revenue in the Netherland East Indies is 6.5 per cent, and in French Indo-China, 20 per cent.

For the individual British colonies and possessions, the opium revenue follows:

Federated Malay States, 17.8 per cent; Straits Settlement, 38.6 per cent; Hong Kong, 22.2 per cent; unfederated Malay States, 34.3 per cent; Sarawak, 24.5 per cent; Brunei, 19.7 per cent, and British North Borneo, 40 per cent.

Concerning the colonial opium revenues, Miss Ellen N. LaMotte, an authority on the international opium trade, declared in a letter to the House foreign affairs committee:

"How can you expect to reduce the production of raw material if it is grown to supply opium smokers in the Far East?

"And how can you expect governments which foster and encourage this traffic to be anything except lenient to the manufacture of drugs?

INSINCERE GESTURE

"You can not feed opium to the people with one hand and make anything but an insincere gesture with the other.

"Either opium (whatever its form) is good for us all or bad for us all. If good for us all, then let there be no discrimination, no selection as to which persons shall be drugged and which protected. Let us have open opium shops in London, Paris and New York.

"But if it is bad for us all, then let us extend to the people of the Far East the same protection that we seek for ourselves. No exploitation and no profiting from the weakness and ignorance of helpless people. The opium—and drug—problem can never be solved until this double standard is abolished."

Seek Hoover Views on Farm Relief

Washington, March 20 (AP)—President Hoover was requested today by Representative Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, to have Secretary Hyde appear before the House agriculture committee and explain the President's views on farm relief.

League Speech Is Heard in Paraguay

Geneva, March 20 (AP)—A cablegram received at League of Nations headquarters today from Asuncion, Paraguay, said a speech broadcast in Spanish last night was heard perfectly in Paraguay. The speech took the air at the Netherlands station of Kootwijk.

5 Men Arrested in $25,000 Liquor Raid

Stockbridge, March 20 (AP)—Two large stills, 500 gallons of alcohol and other materials and equipment valued at $25000, were seized near Stockbridge by State troopers and federal agents. Five men were arrested.

Can't Swear Before Wife; But—And How!

South Bend, Ind., March 20 (INS)—One of the most unusual court orders in Indiana history was entered today against Harry Brazy, professional bondsman and real estate dealer, by Judge Orlo R. Deahl, in one of the preliminaries incident to the divorce suit of his wife, Helen. Brazy was restrained from swearing—in the presence of his estranged wife. If he violates the edict he will be found in contempt of court.

Jury to Decide Patrick Will Suit

Judge Dolan of Suffolk Probate court has granted a petition asking that jury issues be framed for trial to determine whether Daniel Clifford exercised undue influence over Patrick Clifford, his brother-in-law, in disposing by will of $10,000 in cash.

The heirs of Ellen Clifford, wife of Patrick, who died one month after the death of her husband, are contesting the will.

Hoover and Tilson Plan Program

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The legislative program for the extra session of Congress was discussed today by President Hoover and Representative Tilson of Connecticut, Republican leader of the House, who said afterward that it still was the intention to limit legislation very sharply and that the work in hand should be completed within two or three months.

Capt. Dollar, 85, Is Happy in Hard Work

San Francisco, March 20 (INS)—Hale and hearty, Capt. Robert Dollar, dean of American shipping, today rounded out 85 years of life.

Capt. Dollar disagreed with Edison's reported remark, "No man is happy." "I am in perfect health and can do a hard day's work. That ought to make any man happy," the mariner said.

Insurance Lost Due to Hubby's Drinking

Atlantic City, N. J., March 20 (INS)—Because her husband took more than one drink a day Mrs. Jennie Mott today was without any claim on the $5000 life insurance policy, under a ruling in chancery court here.

Witnesses testified that Mott consumed many drinks in a day as opposed to the statement he had made in his application for insurance.

Anthracite Price Cut 60 Cents a Ton

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 20 (AP)—A cut of 60 cents a ton in the domestic prices of anthracite has been announced here by a number of producers. The reduction will take effect April 1. Hard coal producers, in making known the new price, declared the reduction was 10 cents greater than any cut in the past.

Each year on April 1 coal prices are lowered to stimulate spring and summer buying, but until this year the reduction was always 50 cents a ton.

ANOTHER SIX-DAY NOVEL

by JOHN MURRAY GIBBON

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

What Has Gone Before

DURING a shipwreck at sea, Maurice Arden, youthful New York artist, meets the fascinating Mrs. Stuart, famed as Jacqueline, Palmist Extraordinary. Their friendship continues aboard the rescuing liner, Bellonia, on which Maurice is pleased to find an old acquaintance, Kenneth MacLean, and his charming sister, Peggie, both of whom are artists. Maurice introduces Jacqueline, who, upon learning that the MacLeans' home is in the Canadian Northwest, tells of a proposed camping trip to that district accompanied by Black Louis, a half-breed guide. The latter is known to the MacLeans as a follower of the religious fanatic, Dominic, who operates among the Indian tribes of the Northwest and who also was a survivor of the wreck. Both Kenneth and Peggie advise against the camping trip alone in the wilds with the half-breed guide, but Jacqueline refuses to change her plans.

Upon his arrival home Maurice learns of his father's death and realizes that he must forego his art and take over the business of Arden and Son. He renews his acquaintance with Jacqueline in New York and visits her magnificent studio. Peggie and Kenneth plan to remain in New York for a while and Maurice aids Peggie to sell some of her pastels. Senator Bonham, millionaire clubman, in whose sensational divorce suit Jacqueline had been innocently involved some years earlier, becomes interested in Peggie, but she dislikes him and seeks to avoid him.

Peggie, Kenneth and Maurice accept an invitation to Jacqueline's studio for dinner. Maurice arrives early and the Palmist tells him much about herself and her antecedents. The MacLeans arrive, and Peggie, fascinated by the magnificent settings and myriad colors of the studio, dons Jacqueline's gypsy costume. During dinner, Miklos, Jacqueline's brother, whom she suspects of being in league with Senator Bonham, and his orchestra play wild, biting Gypsy melodies which fascinate the three visitors. Jacqueline later leads them to her so-called Tent of Destiny, where Peggie gazes into the crystal ball and sees a startling vision of Black Louis and the fanatic Dominic in camp in the far-off Rockies. Jacqueline commissions Maurice to paint her portrait. Peggie, deciding to lengthen her stay in New York, accepts a position with Maurice's firm.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER 3

THE first sitting for Jacqueline's portrait was a day of days for Maurice. She posed in gypsy costume and her grace and glow enchanted him. All sentiment vanished; he was in tent only on translating to canvas her form and color.

The MacLeans and Maurice saw Jacqueline, too, in the MacLean studio apartment and as the days went by Maurice found himself thinking more and more of capable Peggie who seemed able to do anything she turned her hand to.

Only once did Peggie visit Maurice's studio; Kenneth brought her while Maurice was painting the portrait. There was something in the picture that Peggie didn't like and Maurice was crestfallen. It was as if Peggie had said there was something about Jacqueline she didn't like and he wondered for a moment if she were jealous.

All the while he was studying Peggie's face; what a cover she would make. He started to do a portrait of her from memory for himself; it showed her in homespun with the blue sky to match her eyes and mist curling around a mountain top.

He did not tell Peggie, but Jacqueline saw it and was delighted, promising to keep his secret. Once she leaned over him and a wisp of hair touched his cheek. Her nearness thrilled him and he had to restrain

Mine Leader's House Bombed, Wife Hurt

Bridgeport, O., March 20 (AP)—Five members of the family of James Kunik, insurgent mine leader in the southeastern Ohio coal fields, escaped death when a bomb wrecked their home at Brookside, near here.

Mrs. Kunik was injured.

Kunik attracted state-wide attention a year ago when he broke away from the United Mine Workers' Union, of which he was an active member, and led an insurgent group that proposed to return to work for $5 a day.

He was away when the explosion occurred.

Daugherty Says He's Proud of Record in Office

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION

Do you think a college education is a detriment to the earning power of American youths as stated by Dr. Harold F. Clark of Columbia University?

MRS. S. F. MARTIN, 1074 Centre st., Newton Centre, housewife—It seems to me that a college education instead of being a detriment to the earning power of the American youth is a mighty valuable asset. Of course a great deal depends on the character and courage of the youth in question and in many cases the youth without a college education will rise to far greater heights than the youth with one but no matter how intelligent or backward a youth may be a college education will help rather than hinder him.

VELMA TAYLOR, 38 Holyoke st., Atlantic, student—Well, while I wouldn't call a college education a detriment to a man I think that the old school of "hard knocks" is the better education of the two. The fellow who is out in the world struggling with thousands of other men in an effort to earn a living is learning things that no college can teach and when, reverses and hard luck come the experience he has gained will be more valuable to him than all the college education in the world.

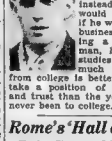
DEXTER HILL, 35 Danforth st., Jamaica Plain, chauffeur—Absolutely not. A college education is something that once gained cannot be taken away from a youth and it gives him the poise and self-confidence that he must have if he is to succeed in the business world. How can education be a detriment to a man? If he lives to be a hundred years old he can never have enough education. My one regret in life has been that I never had the opportunity to go to college.

• • •

MELVIN PATTERSON, 35 Danforth st., Jamaica Plain, chauffeur—I don't agree with Dr. Clark when he says that a college education is a detriment to the earning powers of the American youth. Of course a youth who goes to college and wastes his time on social activities instead of studying would be better off if he were out in the business world earning a living. The man, however, who studies and gets as much as possible from college is better qualified to take a position of responsibility and trust than the youth who has never been to college.



Rome's 'Hall of Fame' Gets Some New Ones

Rome, March 20 (AP)—Pietro Mascagni, composer, was the most prominent among new members of the Academy named today in the "artistic category."

Others were Armando Brasini, architect and director of archaeological works in Rome, who has been charged by the Pope with construction of the monumental Temple of the Sacred Heart in Rome; Pietro Canonica, sculptor; Umberto Giordano, author of numerous operas, among them "Andrea Chenier," and Antonio Mancini, painter.

Philadelphia, March 20 (INS)—The will of Rodman Wanamaker, head of the Wanamaker Stores, on file at Norristown today, disposed of his estate valued at more than $56,669,000, exclusive of real estate.

The estate is to be held in trust, and the income is to be shared by his children, John Wanamaker, Jr., Mrs. Hector Mann and Mrs. Gurnee Munn. The merchant prince was reputed to have been the most heavily insured man in the world. The total value of the policies, which were held in 44 companies, has been placed at $6,000,000.

ASKS ONLY FOR FAIR PLAY

(This is the second of a series of articles based on an exclusive interview with Harry M. Daugherty, formerly a member of the Harding Cabinet.)

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
Copyright, 1929, International News Service.

Sarasota, Fla., March 20—"I never did anything while I was in public office, as a servant of the American people, that I would not do again.

"I was worth a million dollars when I took the office of attorney general of the United States. I was not worth that much when I left the office, and I am not worth that much now."

Harry M. Daugherty, attorney-general in the cabinet of President Harding, made this statement in an exclusive interview with International News Service today as, for the first time, he made a detailed defense of his record as a public official. The conduct of his office was investigated by a Senate committee, and the close of his public career was marked by a bitter battle on Mr. Daugherty's part to uphold his reputation for honesty.

HIS CONSCIENCE CLEAR

"I have a clear conscience," Daugherty declared. "I go to sleep promptly at night. I am out of public life and I do not know that I ever will return. I harbor no bitterness against any man, even my enemies, and everybody knows Harry Daugherty was never afraid to make enemies."

"Hardly any man in the country has been assailed with the vigor I have been. I made plenty of enemies. That is why. Any man who is a positive character is bound to make them.

"I made enemies during the railroad shopmen's strike when I went to Chicago, after consulting no one but the President, and obtained that injunction that enabled the mail trains to run in spite of the strike. I made more enemies, and perhaps more bitter enemies, because of my prosecutions under the Sherman anti-trust act.

ENEMIES HIT UNFAIRLY

"I was the first attorney-general who prosecuted under the Sherman law. It so happened that I prosecuted several millionaires. Now, I have nothing against capital but I was determined to do my duty.

"That was why I was attacked and investigated. They struck at me below the belt. They deliberately misled the American people."

During the interview, Daugherty talked affectionately of his aged mother, showing a letter which indicated that she still was vigorous despite her age. And he mentioned the fact that for 25 years he watched over an invalid wife, although he took no credit for doing so.

PROUD OF HIS RECORD

"If you are all right here," said Daugherty, putting his hand on his heart. "You are all right. The great thing for any man is to know he has a clean conscience and that he has done his duty regardless of consequence.

"The attorney-general didn't handle the money when I was in office. I organized the Department of Justice so that from five to fifty persons knew what I was doing all the time. I did it as a precaution—as a matter of safety.

"I resolved that I'd not take a drink while prosecuting the dry laws. And I did not until I became a private citizen again.

"All I ask is that the American people consider my record. I am proud of my record. The attorney-general's office is the easiest of all to run as far as peace of mind is concerned. He has to ask himself but one question, 'what is the right of it?'"

(The third and final article of International News Service's interview with Mr. Daugherty will be published tomorrow).

OPENS WAR ON LIGHT RATES

The great fight started by the public utilities commission in the courts to force companies selling light and power to "keep within the line on rate-making," today has started the biggest battle of this legislative session on Beacon Hill.

Important bills being pushed by the commission and the Public Franchise League have caused the two sides to "lock horns," and power and light stood out as the chief issue of the legislative session so far as a struggle went.

CASES TAKEN TO COURT

Upholding the Bay State policy of rate making, the commission took several cases against light and power companies to the courts. The bills, it is explained, are aimed to crystalize the issue in one of statutory authority to force the companies into line hereafter without necessity of court ruling.

Other big problems at the State House are the Boston Elevated and auto insurance.

A sub-committee of the committee on power and light conferred with the department of public utilities for more than two hours, and at the end of the conference no agreement on a bill had been reached.

BACK BAY STATE PLAN

From authoritative sources, however, it was learned that some progress was made, and that at least the department members, as well as a good number of the membership of the power and light committee are hopeful of bringing out a bill which would require the lighting companies to agree to accept the Massachusetts "prudent investment" theory of rate-making, as well as a bill which would leave cities and towns free to enter directly into competition with private companies in the sale of gas and electricity.

Holland on the Air Over WGY First Time

Schenectady, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Radio fans within the daylight range of WGY, the General Electric Company's broadcasting station here, listened to a transatlantic broadcast from Holland today.

The station picked up the program broadcast by PXI at Huizen, Holland, on a wave of 16.8 metres and rebroadcast it on its regular wave of 379.5 meters. General Electric radio engineers said it was the first American broadcast of a Dutch station.

BETTER HOUSES URGED TO REPLACE 'SLUMS'

Housing conditions in some Boston districts were called "a serious reflection on our civilization" today as speakers before a legislative committee at the State House urged thorough study of a plan which has as its chief aim abolition of unsightly parts of the North, South and West Ends.

Under the proposed plan cities and towns would be authorized to take property by eminent domain to relieve congestion, and insurance companies and other organizations would be allowed to invest in housing projects.

Present conditions were assailed by John F. Doherty of Boston, former Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, while Dr. Nicholas Du Vally declared "it is folly to provide public parks and playgrounds if the children have to go back to conditions which now exist in Boston."

Proposed legislation would give abolishing power to the commission on the necessaries of life.

Norway, Me., March 20 (AP)—Howard D. Smith, '83, retired as president of the Norway National Bank, died here today.

DIALS POISON 2 OTHERS

Waterbury, Ct., March 20 (INS)—Two other suspected victims of radium poisoning were being watched with care here today following the death of Mrs. Mildred Cardow, who contracted the malady four years ago while painting watch dials.

Mrs. Marjorie Barrett Dumschott of Naugatuck, lies bedridden from the effects of the poison and science is believed unable to help her. Miss Elsie Kleinschmidt is the other suspected victim, but her disability does not prevent her from doing light work.

Clubwomen Urged to Support Clean Plays

Members of the Professional Women's Clubs were called upon by Prof. Robert Rogers of M. I. T. at the annual "governor's day" meeting to turn a cold shoulder to realistic drama "that boldly portrays the lowest types of society" and to support generously the clean, decent entertainment characteristic of productions originating in Boston.

Governor and Mrs. Allen were the guests of honor. Mrs. Bertha S. Davis, president, introduced the speaker to the 500 members assembled.

"Comedy has run [illegible] the American dream [illegible] that it is no more hopeless a child now than ever before," Prof. Rogers began, "This has been a year of such utterly shameless productions, enormous failures and depression as New York has never before seen. Competent critics agree that the American theater has now gone as far as it can in showing unvarnished realism—bold, profane, low, to the exclusion of decency, purity, innocence and other 'small town virtues' which have been mercilessly laughed at as in time of Samuel Pepys, 300 years ago.

Bachrach Photo
Mrs. Bertha S. Davis

"The fear that repression (Puritanism) in censorship will go still further in this country has produced a certain radical reaction not unlike the theater of the Restoration when the people went from one extreme after the years of Oliver Cromwell to the other under Charles the [illegible]

"Just as after seven years of prohibition the pendulum seems to be harder than ever to swing to either extreme," he continued, "so I worry. Bostonians feel pulled between these two opposing forces which leave a great gap wherein the average intelligent American finds nothing to feed upon. Neither between the two [illegible] the other one to enter."

This [illegible] calls for stronger leaning upon our own players, Prof. Rogers concluded, with the plea for building up local institutions that the "self respect of drama lovers may be maintained in Boston."

Other speakers were Gov. Allen, Prof. H Addington Bruce of Harvard, Ros'l Farnum, head of Mass Normal Art school, Mrs. Charles Simmer Bird and Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols. Polly Walker and Joseph Wagstaff, from the cast of "Billie," were special guests.

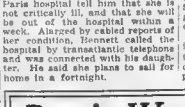
Constance and Dad in Trans-sea Chat

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—Richard Bennett, the actor, has heard no later than yesterday the voice of his daughter, Constance, from a Paris hospital tell him that she is not critically ill, and that she will be out of the hospital within a week. Alarged by cabled reports of her condition, Bennett called the hospital by transatlantic telephone and was connected with his daughter. He said she plans to sail for home in a fortnight.

Don't Worry About Silly Gossip

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

DOES my handwriting indicate any talent for writing, acting or singing? I'm interested in all three. I try so hard to make myself liked by all but it seems I am always being talked about. As I am quite sensitive I do not like these things. I am by nature very warm-hearted and it seems that I am always being back-bitten. Should I ignore the gossip or take matters into my own hands or go to the authorities to have it stopped?



My dear girl, what you really need is a mental dose of medicine. You have gotten yourself into a state of mind where nothing is normal. You say that you never gossip about others, and that is no doubt true, but you are extremely sensitive and a person with a too highly developed sense of self-importance.

I am sure that many of the people whom you think talk about you do not even remember most of the time that we are alive.

Look out, or you will go to extremes and become the victim of that "delusion of persecution" which is something from which a great many people suffer and which is very destructive.

If you feel that people are gossiping about you just shut your mouth tight and refuse to do or say anything about it.

As for possessing talent for the three greatest professions—really, my dear, don't you think it would be well to be more modest? You really have good taste in these lines, but so far you are not creative. I can't tell about singing, since the voice does not register in the writing.

You are a nice, good-hearted, intelligent girl and I would not hand you this sort of a moral wallop if I did not believe that you have the good sense to take it and to allow it to do you good.

Pull yourself right out of the state of mind into which you have worked yourself. You'd be a wonderful secretary.

NOTE: Send sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice for analysis. To cover clerical costs enclose 10 cents in silver or stamps. Also enclose a stamped,self-addressed envelope. The individual analysis will be returned to you within a period of one or two weeks. Letters will not be published if sender so requests.

FLOWER SHOW HUB'S BEAUTY SPOT TODAY

If you want to throw off dull cares, and lose yourself in the wondrous beauties of nature and the colorful outdoors, the Flower Show at Mechanics Building is the place.

There you will find the exotic products of the greenhouse, the Dresden-like orchid, the hardy blooms of the desert, an acacia forest three stories high, tropical and old-fashioned gardens; virtually every flower of the nation is to be seen.

Nothing has been spared to make this centennial anniversary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society the greatest flower show ever to be witnessed in the Hub.

This flower show can be appreciated by every lover of nature Sweet pea, roses, carnations, tulips, lilies, nasturtiums, and even the kitchen-pansy are presented against a resplendent background.

BURRAGE DISPLAY FINE

Here you have an old-fashioned garden, and in it a little Maine log-cabin house 100 years old. And through its dainty window you see a picture of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. And out in that lovely garden (every detail perfect) you thrill at the sight of the old oaken bucket and the well.

The onrush of water which sounds from a huge waterfall built from one wall at entire end of the main hall is one of the magnificent effects of Albert C. Burrage's tropical garden display, in which vegetation reaches from floor to ceiling.

Mrs. Sherman Hoyt of Pasadena, Calif., brought to the show $25,000 worth of desert garden, which required the efforts of 15 men who for weeks gathered material in Western deserts and Death Valley.

15 CLUBS CONTRIBUTE

And for Milady of the chiffon negligee and the pale green mules, there is the garden of choice orchids, displayed by Albert C. Burrage, "orchid king" and also by Mrs. Curtiss James of Newport.

Over 25 garden clubs in this State contributed. There is a Mayle Standish cottage, serving as a background for one garden and an original Salem doorway for another.

Judge spent most of the morning evaluting the displays and at the close of the show, on the fourth day, awards will be made to the prize winners.

BRIDES-TO-BE ARE FACING BUSY DAYS PICKING TROUSSEAUX—BETTY ALDEN

Barbara Meserve to Plight Troth With Frederick Hinckley Wood in Early Summer

HOWEVER MUCH MATRONS with the philanthropic bee all a-buzz in springtime bonnets, may agitate the social seas on successful dollar hunts, refreshingly there comes a breath of romance to sweeten the turbulence. She's a busy person, the money hunting matron. But there's one busier—the bride-elect going up and down the fashionable thoroughfares questing the trousseau, in the exalted state that scarcely admits of decisions between satin and moire for her own sweet self, and whether the motif most alluring for bridal attendants shall be radiant hued or opalescent tinted.

A BOYLSTON ST. MODISTE had paraded before the rapt eyes of Miss Barbara Meserve something gorgeous in the way of wedding raiment—a something much too lovely to exist as eo very temporary an adornment as the wedding gown. Briefly they illuminate the picture, do the bridal maid and tulle. Before they are laid tenderly by in lavender scented tissues. Miss Meserve joins the galaxy of the star-eyed ones and selects an early summer day for her troth with Frederick Hinckley Wood.

SHE IS THE DAUGHTER OF Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jackson Meserve of Chestnut Hill, and spent some of her schooldays at the Lee establishment, where young ladies of pre-debutante age receive a bit of the final polish so necessary for the social entry. Miss Meserve's coming out winter is just past and so she is one of the few adding orange blossoms to coming out posies and passing from the bud stage to the full blown matron, with an establishment to preside over. Her coming out was done via the tea and dance route and she has become a full fledged Junior Leaguer.

A BRIDE AS WELL AS A BUD all within the span of a first season, Miss Katherine Adams takes a day in mid-June for the solemn ceremonial and will give her marriage troth within the colonial classic King's Chapel. The downtown edifice is for wedding ritual and the Karl Adams family establishment high on the crest of Beacon Hill will be for the reception afterward. So society generally, and the debutantes of the year in particular may jot down another affair of romantic import in the already nearly filled June wedding calendar.

BABY DUCKLINGS TAWNED and stretched their fluffy yellow wings in a miniature pool at the Flower show, scarcely realizing their importance in the decorative scheme of one of the most delightful tables. Mrs. E. H. Bristow Draper's contribution to the floral and ornamental richness in Mechanics building is a yellow and white table designed for a children's party. The yellow that matched the ducklings' soft baby down came from the shining oilcloth table cover, and the bonquils about the pool. And for blue there were bachelor buttons and tiny bright blue blossoms. It was a merry conceit for tiny guests.

THE MINIATURE GARDENS, perfect in their minuteness and astonishingly elaborate, held a throng entranced. Within a circle the compass of less than a square yard are set forth sunken gardens, kitchen gardens, velvety stretches of emerald turf, tiny groves and every conceivable adornment in the way of fountains, stairs, pools and pergolas to delight a Titania. The Clement S. Houghtons had a hand in some of these tiny perfections. Of course, the Albert Burrage tropical garden, the Thomas Roland acacia forest and the formal tulip garden were breathtaking in their elaborateness and massiveness—main exhibits of the Horticultural Society's Centennial.

IN SOFTEST AMETHYST PURPLE and jonquil yellow, Mrs Harry Hayward achieved one of the most satisfying table decorations Ancient glass reflected the gleam of a velvet runner and the sunny yellow rose from tall candlesticks. In the throngs for the opening, Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson looked springlike in a chapeau bound with [illegible] and [illegible] ribbon-rose with ensemble of tan. Mrs. Bristow Draper in transparent printed velvet, Mrs. Walter Hunnewell in blue, Mrs. Joseph F. Woods in black, were a smart assemblage.

ANOTHER PAIR OF NEWLYWEDS deserts Boston for the Big City. Blake Cabot, who recently espoused the dark-eyed, attractive Miss Frances Dewart, has made a business affiliation in New York, and so the Cabot menage moves down to be set up within commuting distance of the metropolitan vortex, in Hempstead. The Cabots have been domiciled with Mrs. Follen Cabot, the Directory of the Elect giving them an address in Charles st. Mrs. Cabot the younger is a daughter of the Rev. Mr. William Dewart and Mrs. Dewart, and has for sister-in-law the former Miss Emma Dickerman, now Mrs. Gordon Dewart.

ON AMATEUR STAGE
Boston Evening American staff photo of Miss Betty Spalding, who is the lead for "La Foire de Seville," the play in French, to be presented by Lee School girls on March 22 at the Fine Arts Theater.

THERE STILL ECHO THROUGH Mayfair domiciles the exclamations of delight at the "Webster" party. Young Mr. Edwin Sibley Webster, Jr., stepping as excellently into the host role, and giving a party at the Webster establishment in Dartmouth st., acts as example that other young men of the haute monde might well follow. Of course, the Edwin Webster mansion, on Dartmouth st meets the tree-lined avenue, is majestic in its proportions, and marvelously arranged and designed for brilliant entertainments. The former Miss Polly Webster, now Mrs Harris, had a lovely coming-out tea there, and since that, when Mrs Frederick Lothrop Ames was its chatelaine, functions designed for the elect of the town were frequent occurrences.

FLUTELIKE FEMININE voices rise and fall in the perfect French accent as Lee School girls go through grilling hours of rehearsal for Friday's presentation at the Fine Arts Theater. Miss Betty Spalding, as the Governor's daughter, wears some delectable Spanish garments, the swirling satins and fragile laces with which the Senorita of high estate adorns herself through unchanging ages. Miss Spalding, daughter of the Eliot Spaldings, has the lead in "La Foire de Sevilla," having a budding Theoplan talent and much versatility with the French idiom.

PALESTINE ST. CARNIVAL IN HUB HOTEL

Showing Palestine in its gayest mood and beautiful dress, a gigantic carnival and spectacle will be staged at the Hotel Statler March 27 and 28 by 4800 members of the Boston Chapters of Junior and Senior Hadassah.

It is to be a big affair, with not a single detail omitted in the effort to bring the real and colorful Palestine to the Hub, affording an enviable opportunity not only to witness a typical street scene in Palestine, but to swell the annual contribution of the organization to the rehabilitation work of the national homeland.

A two-day program of fashion and food shows, treasure chest, dramatic entertainment and children activities, will culminate in the formal ball on Thursday, March 28.

Exotic in a riot of color of the Near East will be the representation of the Damascus Gate as the main scene. From this avenues will lead to the countries of that section where their own products will be on display and sale. Brightly-garbed and beautiful Hadassah girl workers will vend their wares in the interest of Palestine charity and service.

For months the Jewish women of the city have worked on this project.

The Statler ballroom will be decked out in old world splendor with gay colored booths, joyous girls, brilliant costumes and songs and dances.

Many women have given of their time and energy, among those who are Mrs. Alexander Burmon, Mrs. George Wyner, Senda Goldman, Celia Sidnick, Mrs. N. S. Albaum and others

CONCERT GIVEN YOUNGSTERS

By MOSES SMITH

Attending one of the current pale of Young People's Concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the observant grown-up has a chance to see the increasing interest of the youngsters at these concerts. More and more their applause comes as a sign of enjoyment, not merely a polite curtsy. The children like their diet and they are waxing fat on it.

Nor is the diet one of milk and water. With the exception of the pleasing piece, Johann Strauss Waltz, "Vienna Blood," the program was of a character to frighten grown-ups of less than a generation ago. Handel and Bach were then but partially digested; they were still in the initial stages of roughly known as "heavy."

As for Prokofieff, whose "Classical" Symphony opened the children mightily, he had not yet been heard of. Moussorgsky was still a bugbear to many, but yesterday afternoon the youthful listeners found much to interest them in the Ravel Pictures at an Exhibition."

Again the audiences was favored with a glimpse of the conductors—Mr. Koussevitzky and Mr. Burgin. Aside from a trumpeter's smile-back in one of the Moussorgsky pieces, the program was well played. Jean Bedetti played a Bach Arioso with beautiful tone and exquisite phrasing.

Dulls Teeth

It is a constant danger

It is the chief source of decay and pyorrhea. The way dentists urge to combat it.

FILM is the great enemy of teeth and gums—a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum disorders. Film absorbs the stains from food and smoking and gives that cloudy look. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. To remove film use the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film and easily remove it in gentle safety to enamel.

Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — SPEED ACCURACY INTEREST — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS — WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1929

HUB TEAM FAVORED IN 2D FRAY

By BILL GRIMES

Due to a clever piece of combination play by Capt. Lionel Hitchman and Cooney Weiland in the opening game of the divisional championship which gave the Bruins the lone goal of the game, the Bruins will step on the Garden ice tomorrow night with a big advantage over Les Canadiens

Much to the surprise of the fans, the Canadiens failed to display that sensational offense for which they are famous throughout the hockey world The Flying Frenchmen did not appear to be able to function. At times Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliet, Sylvio Mantha and Pete Le Pine flashed, but in general they were waiting for a break.

On the whole the game did not measure up to predictions. The first period produced some fast and exciting hockey, but after that there was little of interest aside from the thrill of watching the Bruins protect their one goal lead.

There was no logical reason for the Bruins taking the offense after Cooney Weiland had scored and as the Canadiens were banging back and waiting the game developed into a defensive affair.

The lone goal was scored before half time in the opening chapter. Hitchman started the play and with Weiland raced for the Canucks' goal.

He went down the left side of the rink, and just as he reached Biddle ice he swung to the right, sailing over the defense, and then rushed a pass to Weiland.

WEILAND SCORES

As Weiland came from behind to complete the pass, he was traveling at top speed and there was no chance of Sylvio Mantha checking him. Weiland went in and lifted the puck into the upper part of the net.

The Bruins showed the best defensive hockey of the season. They had their thinking caps on and seldom were outfoxed by the crafty Frenchmen.

So airtight was the defensive work of Shore and Hitchman that Tiny Thompson had what might be termed an easy time. Morenz was in on Thompson on two occasions and Tiny did a fine job kicking out his shots, but with the exception of the flip shots of Leduc Tiny had no difficult saves.

But with George Hainsworth it was a different story. The Bruins peppered the Canadiens' goalie from every angle, and but for his smart work the Frenchmen would have been swamped.

Dit Clapper alone was credited with no less than 18 shots which were on Hainsworth. Harry Oliver, Lionel Hitchman, Bill Carson Dutch Gainor and Cooney Weiland all drove well-directed shots at Hainsworth, but Cooney was the only one who beat him

CLOSE CALL

There was more or less discussion over a goal scored by Armand Mondu in the second period. On his play Howie Morenz went down and let fly a shot at Thompson which the Calgary boy blocked but before he could clear George Patterson caught the rebound and gain Tiny was in the path of the drive, although Patterson shot from close up.

With Patterson in on Thompson, Mondu grabbed the second rebound and scored but the goal was not allowed. Referee Cooper Smeaton ordering that Bruins' ball ice.

This is the first victory the Bruins have scored over the Canadiens here since November 16, 1926, and it will give the home team added confidence in the second game of the series which will be played tomorrow night at the Garden.

Trailing one game, the Canadiens must open up tomorrow and this contest should be the greatest game of the season, providing the Flying Frenchmen swing into their offensive strides.

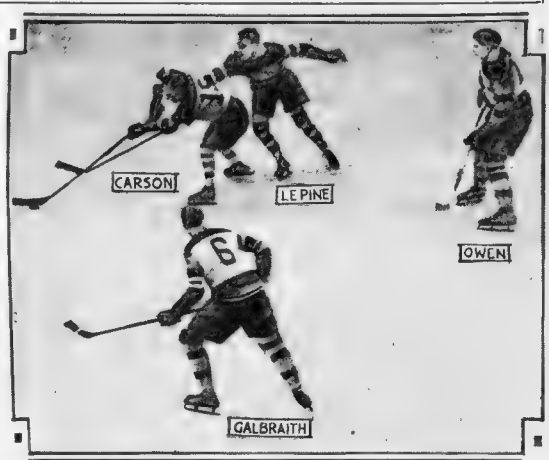
BRUINS JOLT CANADIEN TITLE DREAMS IN BOSTON GARDEN



LE PINE FLASHES

Pete Le Pine played a good game for the Canadiens at the Garden. In the above photo he is starting down the ice after a pass from one of his mates. The Canadiens will be out for revenge in the second game of the series tomorrow night.

DOC GETS PAST PETE

YANKS WAR WITH TRIBE TODAY

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla March 20—The blundering Braves and the stumbling Yankees go to it again this afternoon. The series between these clubs has not been anything to write much home about.

The teams have been pushing runs around these bright Florida afternoons, but it is beginning to annoy the Brave board of strategy. The team somehow fails to give any idea of a machine that may get oiled up and run for any distance on high [illegible] Fuchs and Johnny Evers have tried various shifts and lineups but the lack of punch makes most plans go blooey. Day after day glittering chances for big innings roll right out the window The kick in the punch does not seem to be present.

"We will keep on working things around," chirps the judge, "and one of these days we'll hit the combination. There's one very encouraging thing about these Braves, they get plenty of men on the bases against all kinds of pitching."

"They haven't been knocking

Sox Fielding Well; Work on Hitting

By JOE CASHMAN

Bradenton, Fla., March 20—The four exhibition games in which the Sox have engaged have convinced Bill Carrigan that his ball club is progressing rapidly, defensively speaking.

They have also convinced him that his athletes can stand a lot more batting practice.

So, less fielding and more hitting will be in order during the two days which the Fenway flock have to prepare for the next exhibition tilt with the Braves, at St. Pete, on Friday.

"The failure of our players to display much punch up there at the platter is neither surprising nor any cause for worry," said Mr. Carrigan, in explaining the situation this morning.

"They have been in training a much shorter time than any of the other clubs down here, and they haven't had the advantage of facing pitchers who had a week's start on them, as have the players on other teams.

"I brought my whole squad down at the same time. In the long run, I figure that all concerned will be as well off as if I had the batterymen report early.

"For the first couple of weeks, however, a team's attack is likely to suffer as a result of this arrangement, and it is only natural that my club isn't hitting as hard as some of the others, just now.

PLENTY OF PUNCH

"There is a lot of punch packed in the lineup, unless I miss my guess, and I think that it will come to the surface in short order, after a little more work.

"I am satisfied with the pitching and fielding we have been getting, so, for the next few days, batting will be stressed at all training sessions.

"The attack may or may not show improvement in the game with the Braves, there is such little time left for practice, but before we start to trek north, I feel confident that we will be as strong offensively as we appear to be defensively, today."

Weak hitting was the chief reason for the loss of the second game to the Cards. Our noble athletes got better pitching and supported it better than the National League champions, but went down to a 5-to-3 defeat because they couldn't hit in the pinches.

HITS NOT TIMELY

They made as many safeties as the enemy, each team getting 11 but hits were missing when they meant runs, and that's the only time they amount to anything.

Ed Morris, Charlie Ruffing and Jack Russell all hurled great ball Morris was touched up a bit in the second, allowing three hits, which the Cards converted into three runs, but otherwise he was invincible, and the hard-hitting Mound City aggregation never could do anything with either Ruffing or Russell.

WOBURN TENNIS TEAM SEEKS ACTION

By DICK McSWEENEY

Woburn high tennis team has sent a challenge to all high school net teams in the State. Tennis is a sport which reaches the height of its popularity in warm weather particularly in the months of July and August, while few schools in Massachusetts have tennis teams the sport is rapidly growing in popularity among the schoolboys

Woburn has had some tennis teams in the past and the material at hand this year is especially good, all of which leads us to believe that this year's crop of racquet wielders at Woburn will be the best which has ever represented the school.

Win Lang, Carl Roessler and F. Goddard, members of the team, have the experience and speed necessary to cope with the strongest opponents whom they may be called upon to face. Practice is being held on the indoor court at Woburn high school.

Plain and fancy swimming, diving, and other aquatic didoes will take place today at the Cabot St. Baths when English opposes Mechanic Arts in a dual swimming meet.

South Boston and Charlestown are also scheduled to compete in a dual meet in the same tank.

Fifty battery candidates reported to Coach Art McManus of the B. C. High baseball team for the initial workout of the season.

Boost Youngsters for Davis Cup Team

By LES CONKLIN

New York, March 20 (INS)—Why not give the youngsters a chance?

This query, advanced by friends of America's younger stars such as George Lott, John Hennessey, Wilmer Allison, Fritz Mercur and John Van Ryn, has the skeleton rattled in the closet of tennis today to the annoyance of the officials who will select the United States Davis Cup team.

Tilden and Hunter have been unable to wrest the championship from the French since the latter won the Davis cup.

One large and growing faction in the tennis world feels that these ageing veterans have seen their best days and that the youngsters should be allowed to meet the French in the finals on the ground that they will gain invaluable experience even though defeated.

"Big Bill" and Hunter plan to leave for Europe in a few weeks to play in tournaments abroad, after which they will be "ready to represent the United States in the Davis cup matches if wanted."

The probabilities are that they will be named to the exclusion of the younger American stars

The question will be decided by Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the Davis Cup committee, and Fitz-Eugene Dixon, chairman of the selection committee.

Assuming that the United States will triumph in all of the preliminary matches, the association announced that the winners of the Canadian and United States matches would meet the Japanese team at the Chevy Chase Club at Washington on May 23, 24 and 25, and that the winners of this series would clash with the winners of the Mexico-Cuba matches at the Detroit Tennis Club on May 30 and 31 and June 1.

Silver basketballs will be presented to the Arlington high team, which was runner-up, next week.

Triple Tie in Norwich Election

Northfield, Vt., March 20—Despite repeated balloting, the Norwich track men have failed to break a deadlock in the election of a captain for the coming season it was disclosed by Maj. H D Potter, director of athletics.

The contest has given an equal number of votes to each of three men, Gardner Buck of Belfast, sprinter and broad jumper; Arnou Weggan of Portsmouth, quartermiler, and Fred Taylor of Rutland, javelin thrower.

Michigan Meets Cornell Saturday

Ann Arbor, March 20 (AP)—Michigan and Cornell will renew athletic relations Saturday with their 24th annual dual track meet at Yost Field House.

THREATENS TO TAKE DUNDEE TITLE AWAY

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—Joe Dundee's reign as the world's welterweight champion ceases tomorrow as far as the National Boxing Association is concerned, unless he meets the association's demands.

The N. B. A., through its president, Paul Prehn, has ruled that Dundee must sign contracts before March 21 calling for a bout with a logical contender and that he must post a certified check for $10,000. The commission has named Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson as the two logical contenders.

Fields and Thompson meet at the Coliseum March 28 with the possibility the winner will be declared the holder of the welterweight title by the N. B. A. Max Waxman, Dundee's manager, wired President Prehn yesterday that the champion would sign before Thursday but Prehn said the contracts and checks must be placed in the hands of Edward C. Foster of Providence, R. I., chairman of the championship committee, by that date.

Four Greater Boston Boys Win N. E. Amateur Crowns

H. C. BOXER IS HEAVY CHAMP

Fine Fighting in Finals of Arena Tourney; Local Boys Good

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Four Greater Boston boxers, a boy from Framingham, one from Brockton, one from Providence and another from Holy Cross College, crashed their way to boxing crowns in the finals of the New England A. A. U. boxing championship which closed at the Boston Arena after two days of hot slinging.

The four Greater Boston boys to win their New England crowns were Gordon Faulkner of Somerville, middleweight champion; Leslie Baker of Watertown, middleweight champion; Paris Apice, Providence, who gave the Rhode Island state fans their only title by winning in the 112-pound division; Leslie Mello of Framingham, who won the crown in the 115-pound class; Harry Allen of Brockton left for his home with the light heavyweight title.

LILLICH HEAVY CHAMP

Joseph Lillich of New York State and a student at Holy Cross College had the pleasure of outpointing Douglas McKinnon of Quincy to gain the heavyweight title.

Leslie Baker of Watertown who was told he never could box a year ago with a severely injured left hand was back in the ring and events of his showing in the 147-pound title from Joseph O'Donnell of Roxbury.

Six months ago Dr. Thomas Broderick of St. Elizabeth's Hospital operated on Baker's port mitt and the alterations greatly helped Baker gain a title which he long sought. Baker has a very classy right hand punch, but his aggressive style and continuous left jabs gained him the award over O'Donnell.

Douglas McKinnon of Quincy and Joe Lillich of Holy Cross College met in the final bout of the evening for the heavyweight title Lillich stepped out in the first round by clever boxing, which made McKinnon look bad, won the honors taking all three rounds with his consistent left-hand jabs to the face and body.

APICE WINS

Paris Apice of Providence and John Tomaselli of Brockton were the finalists in the 112-pound class. The boy from Rhode Island had little trouble in defeating his southpaw opponent.

BRAVES PLAY YANKEES TODAY

them off, but I'm sure they will pretty soon now. The boys have confidence in themselves, and I know they're all trying, and that spirit will have to get somewhere."

"I have been more than satisfied with the way things have gone, even though the pitching has looked rough on a couple of days. We have given everybody on the squad a tryout and will keep on getting them all in there. There are three weeks left before the season opens and much can be done in that time.

"There are a few places that need bolstering on the club, and we are trying to get players from a couple of clubs. The boys all want a dollar for a nickel, but I'm pretty sure we'll be able to do something good for the club before we get back North."

It is no secret that the judge is looking for outfielders.

He is content with his infielders and battery squad.

Some days the inner works have been porous, but that was because the strategists were there trying things. The Braves can, any time they want to, put out an infield that will be airtight.

But hitting is as apt as fielding at least. Some of the young men with the most punch are a bit weak with their hands and arms. And vice versa. But it's evident to anyone who has been watching down here that the Braves can look like a real ball club with a little strengthening. Getting that strength is something else again though.

The Braves lost their Tuesday game in 10 innings, because they could not knock off any of the million or more runs that the Yankees tried to hand them. Four of the five the Tribe scored were flukes.

Three were forced in by wobbly pitching, and another slithered in after a foul fly had been caught Lester Bell's honey mitt. The only real scored manufactured. The boys had the bases filled with none out and with one out. But it didn't mean a thing.

With Harper, Joe Dugan getting into shape, and Bell almost back in best condition, things are due to improve promptly. A little bit of kick will make the ball club look like a danger spot in the league. For the pitching is there, and ball clubs always start to build from the burling hill.

NURMI ENTERED IN PENN GAMES

Philadelphia, March 20—Coach Lawson Robertson of the University of Pennsylvania announced that Paavo Nurmi has agreed to run in the Red and Blue relay carnival Friday and Saturday, April 26-27. "Robbie" had a conference with Nurmi and his adviser, Hugo Quist, in Hartford last night.

Nurmi will try for the world's outdoor two-mile record the first day and then attempt to better his own world's three-mile mark on Saturday. This will be the first time Nurmi has ever competed outdoors in Philadelphia. He has outfied to Coach Robertson that he intends to stay in this country for at least a year.

Horween to Teach at Coaches' School

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—Five of the leading football coaches of the country will teach in the Northwestern coaching school August 5-17. They are Walter Steffen of Carnegie Tech, Arnold Horween of Harvard, Charlie Bachman of University of Florida, Jesse Hawley, former Dartmouth coach, and Dick Hanley of Northwestern.

Woman Tennis Star Injured in Crash

Detroit, March 20 (AP)—Miss Helen Gransfield of Detroit, ranked number eight among women tennis players in Western Lawn Tennis Association selections for 1928, was fatally injured last night in a railroad crossing accident in which another woman was killed and three other persons were injured.

TAD'S TIDBITS

If ever there was a boy who admires great left hands, that lad is Jimmy McLarnin.

Of course, the kid from Vancouver has a wealth [illegible] of his own.

But it's not a stinging, lightning-like rapier such as was owned by Ateell, Driscoll, Hawkins Mandell, Dixon, Corbett, Mike Gibbons and others.

On Friday night Jimmy faces Ray Miller, a left hook marvel. The last time this pair met, Miller, with his terrific left, cut Jimmy so severely that the fight was stopped in the eighth round.

ONE of the most thrilling fights that ever took place anywhere was the battle between Joe Wolcott and Joe Choynski which was fought in New York quite a number of years ago.

Choynski, a terrific hitter, who had knocked down during his career such men as Bob Fitzsimmons, Kid McCoy, Jack Johnson, Jim Corbett, Peter Maher, Joe Goddard and any number of others, thought he could lick the 153-pound Walcott.

Choynski, who weighed about 165, was thought to be too big for Walcott, who stood 5 feet 1 inch tall, and was a welterweight. We have heard a great many stories about this fight from John L. Sullivan, who refereed Choynski, Jim Corbett and Choynski himself.

Tom O'Rourke dropped us a letter the other day giving a little more dope on it. His letter, in part, follows

"Everybody except myself thought it was a bad match for Walcott to put him against Choynski, as Walcott only weighed 135 pounds. The match should have drawn $20,000; as the clubhouse held only $500 people it drew $5300.

"The fight lasted seven rounds and Choynski was on the floor seven times, until he was knocked out in the seventh round.

"Corbett says Walcott did not whip the real Choynski. However Corbett forgets what I thought of heavyweights in those days of diminutive Walcott.

"He must remember me posting a certified check of five thousand dollars with the sports editor of the New York American, who photographed it on the sports page, offering it to both Corbett and Kid McCoy to fight Walcott ten rounds each on the same night, allowing Walcott one-half hour rest between fights. But both refused to accept.

I would do the same thing today, if I could produce another Walcott. I would match him against any heavyweight that I ever saw fight except a man like Jeffries and I have seen a few.

"Sincerely,

"TOM O'ROURKE

JUMBO NINE IS DEVELOPING RAPIDLY

Coach Nash's Tufts baseball candidates will continue to work out on the old campus field for the remainder of this week, weather permitting.

The squad is beginning to round into shape, and Tufts will undoubtedly be represented by one of the finest teams in its history. If hurling strength can be found that measures up to the standard of the rest of the outfit.

The struggle for berths in the outfield is becoming closer every day. There are many fine outfielders available. Fitzgerald and Ellis are the doubtful quantities.

If Fitz does not put pedestrian by the spring vacation period he will [illegible] hold down the right field berth. He is standing in his own [illegible] to much to the success of the team so he is the only batter of the [illegible] type on the squad.

Carey Elected Head of N. Y. Garden

New York, March 20—William F. Carey has been elected head of the Madison Square Garden Corporation unanimous vote of the directors. He accepted the post and succeeds [illegible] of the affairs of the [illegible] established

Yale men decide which is best cigarette...

OLD GOLD CIGARETTES WIN FIRST IN TESTS AT YALE

In the recent cigarette test made at the University, OLD GOLDS were chosen by the students as the best. The cigarettes were masked by black labels so that the names of the brands were concealed. Each label was numbered. This was judged to be the most sporting way of testing the merits of the four leading brands. Some 208 Yale students were asked to smoke the four disguised brands without knowing their identity.

They were merely to choose, by number, the one that was most appealing to the taste.

The NEWS supervised the test on January 18 at various fraternity houses and in the NEWS office.

When the votes were recorded it was discovered that OLD GOLD (Cigarette No. 3) had won. Old Gold was given 63 first choices, which was 11 per cent ahead of Cigarette No. 2, 34 per cent ahead of Cigarette No. 1, and 53 per cent ahead of Cigarette No. 4.

Tigers Will Need Plenty of Padding to Ward Off Arrows Tonight

Tigers Face Arrows in Crucial Go in Philly Rink

TAYLOR AND OATMAN TO PLAY

Win Tonight Gives Tigers Sure Hold on Top Can.-Am. Berth

Boston Tigers will meet Philadelphia Arrows in Philadelphia tonight in the final out of town game of the season for the Boston entry

Victory would assure the league-leading Tigers of finishing in a tie for first place at least.

Defeat would give the surging Providence Reds a chance to overhaul them when the two meet in the final game of the season in the Arena Saturday night

TAYLOR, OATMAN SET

Both Bob Taylor and Capt. Eddie Oatman, who have been out of action recently with injuries, are in Philadelphia with the Tigers, and both will be used as much as necessary.

Taylor's absence was felt keenly in the recent game with Newark when Leo Quenneville, the man he would have played, scored three goals.

Tigers have not practiced since the Newark game, with the exception of Deacon Waite, who went to Springfield for a workout Monday.

NO ICE FOR PRACTICE

There has been no ice in the Arena due to the boxing matches.

The Boston team will return from Philadelphia tomorrow morning, and will practice Friday in preparation for the crucial and final struggle with Providence.

Red Sox Rumbles

By JOE CASHMAN

Bradenton, Fla., March 20—Bill Narlesky came through with another fine relief performance against the Cards.

He played but two innings and in that short time he made one great play in the field and came through with a double.

It was the only extra base single the Sox made all afternoon. Bill now ranks as first-string substitute shortstop. He was a fourth-stringer when practice started.

Charlie Ruffing doesn't seem to be putting anything on the ball, but he has had more luck than any of the other Sox hurlers in the exhibition games. He pitched three innings against the Reds last week and three against the Cards, and not a run was scored on him in either game.

Phil Todt couldn't do a thing with the deliveries of the veteran Clarence Mitchell, only southpaw spitballer in captivity. He fanned twice while Clarence was on the hill

The long bus ride to Avon Park tired the players out. They didn't have a bit of pep even though they played errorless ball.

Fred Haney, old Red Sox and Tiger third baseman, has joined the Cards. He was listed as a holdout when they were in Bradenton last week. He is going to have his troubles beating out Andy High for the hot-corner berth, as the former Brave is playing great ball.

Wright Qualifies in Florida Tourney

St. Augustine, Fla., March 20—Fred Wright, Jr., of the Albemarle Country Club, playing in his first tournament in six months, finished among the leaders in the qualifying round of the Florida winter amateur championship here.

The former Walker cup team star, shooting well within his reserve, had a score of 39—41—80, tying with George Morse of Long Island, winner of the event last year.

The medalist was Jock Cattell, 18-year-old Jacksonville lad, who came from Scotland only three years ago, and who was also medal winner in the national championship of club champions played here early in the season.

Eagle Runners Get on Cinders Today

Boston College's outdoor board track will be ripped up today, marking the opening of the spring track season. From now on the B. C. runners will do their training on the cinder path around Alumni Field.

Jack Ryder's charges have a busy spring campaign ahead, with dual meets with New Hampshire and Holy Cross coming in a few months.

There are four freshman contests and the annual New England and Outdoor Intercollegiate meets facing the B. C. runners during the coming campaign.

RED SOX RECRUITS NO. 5

Edgar Carroll

Edgar F. Carroll, right-handed pitcher. Age 20, height 6.3, weight 185. Residence, Catonsville, Md. Attended Baltimore Polytech and attracted attention of Athletic scouts, who signed him in '28. Did little more than pitch to A's in batting practice and was let go. Caught on with Baltimore in '27 and was farmed out to Eastern Shore League, where he pitched in 27 and last year until circuit broke up. Jiggs Donahue recommended him to Sox, who sent him to Haverhill in New England League, where he won six and lost six. Is best looking player on squad and also Beau Brummel of outfit.

KID CHOCOLATE smiled his way into the sporting department to see Mr. Boston. Chocolate is the dapper Cuban 121-pounder who clashes with Johnny Vacca in one of the 10-round bouts at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

Chocolate is as black as the ace of spades. He says he is 21 years of age, but looks younger.

"I have heard a great deal of Kid Chocolate," said Mr. Boston. "Over in New York fellows like Damon Runyon, Billy Duffy, Frank Marlow, Harry Grayson and Ed Sullivan, who do not get enthusiastic over a boxer without some justification, will walk five miles to see the Cuban in action

"I place emphasis on the word WALK, as it takes quite an event to cause any of the young men I have mentioned to get steamed up enough about anything to cause them to take a walk instead of a taxi.

"As an amateur, Chocolate engaged in some 100 bouts. He won 85 of them by knockouts, while in the other 14 he grabbed the decisions The Kid has had 44 pro fights. He flattened 38 of his opponents, while he grabbed six decisions.

"Chocolate has taken part in 19 bouts in American rings, winning 13 by kayos and taking six decisions."

KID CHOCOLATE speaks Spanish fluently, but does not handle the English language as well as he does the padded mittens. With the aid of an interpreter, the Kid informed Mr. Boston that School st. reminds him of the streets in Havana. He also remarked that he intended to knock out a young man by the name of Vacca on Friday night.

"Don't be so sure you will flatten Vacca," advised Mr. Boston

"Al Delmont has prepared Johnny carefully for the Garden quarrel You will find yourself in the ring with a youngster who is quite a socker himself. Vacca has had his troubles when opposed by the fancy steppers, but he can stand up and hold his own with anybody who will swap punches with him. Fidel LaBarba will admit Vacca can sock."

"THE tremendous rush for hockey tickets this week proves that the ice game is every bit as popular as baseball in this city, said Mr. Boston. "If the Garden had the necessary seating capacity, 50,000 persons would have witnessed last night's game

"The Bruins have played hockey all season and have plenty of supporters.

"I also find a large number of people singing the praises of the Tigers. As pointed out in this column at the opening of the hockey season, the Tigers were represented on the ice by a bang-up outfit It furnished action in every game and has made a creditable record for the season. Boston is big enough to support two first class hockey teams.

"I BUMPED into Col Bob McKirdy on Washington st He tells me he will have weekly boxing shows at the Arena beginning a week from Monday The large turnout of fans at the recent mix between Rawson and Mills proved the fans will patronize local shows

"McKirdy has secured Fenway Park for his outdoor boxing affractions He plans to operate every Thursday night at the baseball orchard, beginning the early part of June and running through until the middle of September."

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Although the Bruins waited two and one-half years to score a victory over Les Canadiens at home, they could not have chosen a more opportune time than the first game of the divisional playoffs.

Playing their first National Hockey League playoff game, Cooney Weiland and Tiny Thompson featured.

Cooney gave the Bruins a victory with a great goal in the first period, and Tiny was the master of the Flying Frenchmen from start to finish

Cooney Weiland and Tiny Thompson are fixtures here Not solely for the great work last night but because of the wonderful art of fectiveness all season.

Among the rooters who accompanied the Canadiens from Montreal were Louis Letoneau, one of the owners, Dr Corrigan, a corps of newspapermen, Mrs. Howie Morenz, Mrs. Aurel Joliat, Mrs. Herb Gardiner, Mrs. Corrigan and Miss Corrigan, Mrs. Leonard Roundtree and Mrs. Henry Disken

Between the periods Arnold Horween, Harvard football coach, visited the press stand. Arnie looks in the well known pink and will be on hand tomorrow night for the second battle.

The Canadiens did not look like the Canadiens of old. For some reason they did not seem to be able to get the old zip in their play. But watch them from now on.

It is understood that the betting in Montreal had the Canadiens a 2 to 1 favorite, while the odds were 10 to 8 on the Bruins here.

Just before the game Judge John S. Dooley, president of the Providence Hockey Club, presented Armand Mondu with a smoking stand in behalf of the Rhode Island Reds with which club Mondu played before he was taken up by Manager Cecil Hart.

Dutch Gainor celebrated his first appearance of the game with a remarkable end to end rush. He signaled his way through the Frenchmen and got off his shot but George Hainsworth kicked it out of danger.

The fans went wild with joy when Cooney Weiland drove home what proved to be the winning goal in the first period. The house, numbering more than 15,000 persons, was in an uproar for a couple of minutes after Cooney's tally sailed into the Canadien goal.

The Tigers got a break. They were due to leave for Philadelphia on the 10:45 and they were able to stay at the Garden until just before the final whistle.

George Hainsworth has a broken nose and he played with his injured member covered with a wide strip of adhesive tape.

Along with the $10 he paid for four tickets, Sprague Cleghorn used another sawbuck telephoning from Providence trying to locate the Canadiens.

At the start of the season Tiny Thompson's clearing was crude, but now there are few goalies more skillful feeding long passes to his wings than the boy from Calgary

In the second period, Eddie Shore and Lionel Hitchman sandwiched Sylvio Mantha and the big Canadien defense man was dropped with a loud thud. It was a perfectly timed play on the part of Shore and Hitchman.

Nick Wasnie of Newark will be given a tryout by Les Canadiens next season. There is every reason for predicting that Wasnie will make the grade. He is fast, has a fine shot, and has plenty of nerve and beef to stand the punishment.

A few breaks and Dit Clapper would have been the talk of N. H. L. hockey today The former Tiger whaled 13 shots against George Hainsworth's pads last night but failed to score. The breaks are not always going to be against Dit, and he will start to rip them home soon.

Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat produced some thrills last night. Although neither Morenz or Joliat were up to their usual high grade form, they were always dangerous

Harvard Polo Team Beaten in Tourney

New York, March 20 (AP)—Pennsylvania Military College's crack indoor polo trio, defending titleholders, have taken the first step in defense of their intercollegiate championship.

With two members of its 1928 championship, in the lineup, Penn Military announced Princeton last night, 11½ to 5. Dan Jones a veteran, and Nichols, member of the P. M. C. junior varsity last year, scored five goals each for the winners. Capt. Art Borden was the outstanding figure for Princeton.

In the first game of national open championship competition, Harvard's varsity fell before the New York A. C., 10 to 9¼. In the Class "C" competition, the Squadron A team downed a second-string Yale team of the New England circuit, 7 to 6¼.

The next matches in the tournament will be held Thursday.

N. Y. A. C. Downs Harvard Polo Team

New York, March 20—N. Y. A. C polo team of Albright, Harrison and Nelson defeated the fast Harvard trio of Glynn, Gerry and Tim Clark here, 10 to 4½.

30 Sports Letters Given at Dartmouth

Hanover, N. H., March 20—Letters were awarded to 30 members of the boxing, water polo and swimming teams by the Dartmouth athletic council today.

FINAL OF TITLE POOL TONIGHT AT STATE CLUB

Tonight's game between Ireland and Lyons in the N. E. pool championship at the State Billiard Club, is the final one of the tournament. However, Lyons must win to become champion and in the event of losing he will be forced to meet Carpenter in a playoff. Lyons is the favorite to win on form shown during the tournament, yet Ireland holds the high run record of 42 balls and if he is going well will give Lyons plenty of trouble.

Brooks Carpenter of Somerville came through with an important win over Edward Jackson when he defeated him 100 to 47.

Novice Tourney at St. Joe's This Week

Another all-novice tournament will be staged by St. Joseph A. A. S. in Commercial Hall on Saturday tour boxers in the 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds and heavyweight divisions.

Entries are already pouring in for this week's show, and it is expected even better battles than were staged last week will be held. Further entries may be forwarded to William H. Cuddy, 333 Washington st., room 315.

St. Pete Chatter

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20—The St. Petersburg and other public prints in the citrus belt, still refer to Johnny Cooney, the Braves' southpaw chucker, as the "schoolboy pitcher."

The question then arises as to how long it takes a National League thrower to be graduated

It was fully 10 years before the fresh water scribes quit calling Waite Hoyt of the Yankees the "schoolboy wonder."

There is the possibility, of course, that Cooney is taking a post graduate course.

Johnny, incidentally, went along for three hitless chapters against the Yanks. He was the only chucker of a daffy afternoon who looked anything like a big leaguer.

Babe Ruth keeps hitting in his usual spring form. He hasn't made a homer yet, and if he doesn't get more swish into swing, he probably will not down hers among the palms. But then, the Bam always saves them for the real wars.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Grimes of Boston have come to camp to watch the Braves go along for a week. They take the place of Joe Driscoll and the Mrs. who now are on the way North.

Lester Bell is beginning to take his natural cut at the ball. His homer was a good clout. Les still hobbles a bit, but reports that the blisters have departed from his dogs.

Lefty Heimach, who used to be with the Red Sox, stepped in and stopped the Braves dead. The southpaw is trying this spring and has looked the great pitcher on both his appearances.

Tufts Winter Sports Finals on Today

The finals of the winter sports season at Tufts are held today with the annual struggles between the sophomore and freshman teams in wrestling and basketball

The freshman basketball team, which won 11 out of 13 contests, will be favored to win over the sophomore outfit, but the sophomores have several varsity men available, and the game should be interesting

The wrestling meet should be even closer. The sophomores, with Stella, Intercollegiate champion; Giles, varsity 165-pounder, and Lipleton in the unlimited class, who also has had some varsity experience, have a powerful outfit.

Falmouth Conquers

Falmouth, March 20 Falmouth Legion basketball team defeated Old Towne five of Abington, 25 to 13, at the junior high gym here.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

SEX education helps to eliminate the social diseases and tends to keep our youth moral. Take the mystery and nastiness out of sex, treat it as a scientific subject, don't prevaricate about it, and it is astonishing how well youth responds.

Martha Lee Tells of Feeding Children

WHILE theoretically we should not cater to the fussy finicky and hard-to-feed child the average mother is only too willing to make certain concessions in order to make necessary food more acceptable to her little folks.

Martha Lee

For the child with the anti-milk complex they will welcome the suggestion of permitting the child to enjoy his milk through a straw from his own special mug or a tall, attractively decorated glass. Some children enjoy pouring their milk into their own little pitcher into a definitive cup or glass. Don't make the mistake of filling the glass full up to the top for the child who seems to turn against milk. And don't forget that the same results—consumption of the quart or more of milk which each normal child requires every day of its life—can be accomplished by combining the milk with something else to add novel flavor, as in the form of cocoa, cream sauces, soups, chowders, puddings, custards, junket.

Cereals may be cooked in milk rather than in water or a little tiny ginger ale may be added to give zest to the milk. A tablespoon of chocolate syrup added to a glass of milk is often acceptable and considerable amount of milk may be taken served on desserts and cereals.

For the [illegible] does not care for plain [illegible] or egg nog, egg and milk [illegible], custards, cream sauces and the fluffy meringue may be served as a meringue on puddings and custards.

For the anti-cereal complex, try adding finely chopped raisins, dates, figs or prunes to the breakfast porridge. Cereal puddings and cereal muffins are really delicious if properly made—by Martha Lee's recipes, of course. Don't serve the same cereal two mornings in succession, and do serve rich creamy milk on cereals rather than the pale blue variety.

Vegetables may be served in cream sauces or in the form of vegetables cream pures, and, of course, butter and seasoning helps to get the plain vegetables by.

Dark breads may be made with raisins or dates and served alternately with white bread. Thinly spread with jelly or honey, the dark bread is often acceptable and it makes delicious thin toast, liberally buttered.

And I'm sure I don't need to remind you that one of the most valuable habits a child can form is to take a drink every time the hands are washed or every time the child goes near the water faucet.

In general, always combine a new food with one which you know the child likes. So picture them nourishing foods and tell interesting stories of children who eat properly. It is far better to explain the value of foods, prove to your child that you are reasonable and that you know the child is a part by trying to learn to like the food that is good for him rather than to try to force the child to eat against his will.

The following dishes are sure to appeal to children, and grown-ups will like them as well:

3 c. boiling water.
1½ tsp. vanilla.
½ tsp. grated lemon rind (optional).
1 can figs, chopped.

Sprinkle tapioca gently into boiling water and cook 20 minutes, adding figs with their syrup and lemon rind, if used, at the end of 10 minutes. Add vanilla, and serve either hot or cold.

CREAM OF RICE

1 c. rice.
1 qt. boiling salted water.
1 pt. milk.
1 c. dates, stoned and cut small.
3 tbsp. sugar.

Cook rice in water 10 minutes. Drain, place in upper vessel of double boiler, add sugar, milk, and simmer until milk is absorbed. Stir in the dates and cook 3 minutes longer. Serve hot with cold milk.

DATE TAPIOCA PUDDING

3¼ c. scalded milk.
1-3 c. quick cooking tapioca.
2 tbsp. sugar.
¼ tsp. salt.
1 egg.
1 c. dates, stoned and cut small.

Add tapioca to milk and bring to boiling point. Then cook in double boiler for 20 minutes. Beat egg yolk with sugar, salt and 1 tbsp. additional milk and add with dates. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white and cook 3 minutes longer. Serve hot or cold.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Spring Style Vagaries

SUCH a difference has approach ing springtime made in the evening mode heavy with rich velvet! Sheer materials, dainty and softly drapable, help to present a newer silhouette in formal wear.

Stiffened chiffon in wonderful new colorings has come to be quite the smartest evening fabric, submitting to perky flaring lines of skirt fulness with grace. And when the customary sort of chiffon is used it is posed over a stiffer material such as taffeta to achieve the richness of youth.

Not only in evening fashions but for important afternoon parties at Palm Beach stiffened chiffon in solid colors has become a favorite—a distinctly smarter style note than flowered chiffon. With these rather sophisticated costumes are worn large, sheer hats—a fact which presages their prominence during the Northern summer season.

Many new ideas are being worked out for spring-like evening wraps—and not a few are quite without fur. Evening squares are now shown for effective wear over frocks of chiffon or the popular dull flat crepe.

Characteristic of these squares is the model sketched, developed in lustrous satin in a chartreuse, combined with black satin, the motif adding square to square.

Blouses have assumed such importance that it can be said they are quite the rage!

One needs but a clever little skirt and a smart blouse to create a personality frock. And so popular is the blouse idea that many a dress shows this influence whether it be one-piece or two.

Coral colored flat crepe makes the blouse portion of the frock in the center of sketch, while black crepe is used for the circular skirt.

Eggshell shades are highly fashionable for blouses as well as the time yellows, the yellow greens and the orange shades.

Some of the new models in blouses are sleeveless with a bertha of some sort coming over the up per arm in a becoming manner As the season advances it is believed the sleeveless type will be very popular for wear with tailleurs and jacket suits.

"Reno"; America's Mad Dance of Divorce

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, Jr.

CHAPTER 26

THE Desert Rat read the warning in the eyes of Pete, the cowboy, who was still kneeling beside the body of Alexander Brett.

"Well, I guess I'd better be moving," he sighed, slowly wiping the blood from his face. He smiled at the boy wistfully.

"Don't go 'way! Stephen, don't go!" The child held him, and tears, which had not come when Pete solemnly said, "He's dead," now welled in his eyes.

"Maybe some day I" come back. I won't forget you, Alex. Be a good boy."

The group of cowboys waited silently as the old man and child clung together. No one moved; the story of Brett's persecution of his wife was public property by now, and not one of these men could find it in his heart to blame the Rat, to want to hold him for the law.

There was no sound except the little boy's sobbing as Pete turned, a battered figure, thin white hair blowing about his bruised head, and started into the desert. Silently the cowboys watched him go, and the eyes of several were suddenly filmed, suspiciously moist.

Alex smiled, and Pete picked him up in his arms.

"Don't you ever forget that man, sonny." he told him huskily.

By the time Dick and J B came galloping up and looked down at the dead man, the figure of the Rat was a mere speck in the distance—a speck that might have been a clump of sagebrush, a little higher than the rest.

"Here's the kid. Pete handed the boy up to Dick, who somberly turned and rode back to Felicia.

"I suppose I ought to feel sorry for Alex," she said simply, dully, when he told her. "But somehow I can't. After all, it was his own selfishness, his own cruelty, that brought his death. All the sorrow and pity I have is for Stephen. Do you suppose he'll be all right?"

Dick patted her hand. "He's back in the desert he loves, honey —back in the lonely wastes where years ago he found the solace man could not give him when his heart was breaking. He'll be all right.'

"I wish I could be sure."

At sunset, a cowboy rode up to the ranch house with a note for Felicia, a note pencilled on the back of a ruled sheet bearing the proud marks of Alex's little band —C-A-T, D-O-G, H-O-R-S-E. . . .

"I only tried to help the boy," Felicia read. "I've brought you misery. I'm sorry. I saw no other way—it was his life or mine. You've been good to me. Can you be kind a little longer—kind enough to forgive, and forget? Stephen Pierce."

The scrawled words blurred as Felicia's eyes filled with tears, and Dick drew her close.

"He thinks he's hurt us," she sobbed, clinging to him, her heart filled with pity for the lonely wanderer. "And he's gone back into that horrible silence to eat out his heart for what he's done. We've got to find him, to tell him—"

"There, dear," Dick comforted her. "We'll find him, we'll bring him back. Don't worry. It was self-defense; we can prove that—"

That night, when Dick came to tell her that the cowboys would start early next day in the desert in the morning to hunt Pierce, he asked: "What will you do? There's no longer any reason—any legal reason—why you must stay here."

She moved beside him on the couch. "I shall have to go to New York, of course, but I'll come back as soon as I can. I don't want to leave you, ever. And you aren't free yet, even—" she hesitated when she felt him.

"Lets take a house, Felicia," Adrienne Henley-Martin suggested. "If we could find just a small ranch—it would be wonderful for Alex."

Her daughter looked at her closely. "Is home where the heart is, mother?"

Mrs. Henley-Martin flushed, and Felicia's eyes twinkled.

"Whose heart do you think I'm talking about?" she teased, and leaned forward and kissed the sunbrowned cheek of the woman who seemed to have forgotten there was such a thing as "society" in the world.

San Lanier agreed to find them a place and for the next few days Dick divided his time between superintending the sinking of the first shafts at the mine, aiding in the hunt for the Desert Rat and riding with Lanier in search of "just a small ranch."

But, though they rode with the cowboys over miles and miles of desert and mountain trails, they found no trace of Pierce.

Then one day, as Dick and Felicia stood talking on the veranda, just after Felicia came back from the East, a lean, bronzed man alighted from a car that had just drawn up before the ranch house He waved at them and passed around toward the corral. Idly, Dick waved back.

Then he started.

"That was Sheriff Stone," he said. "What's going out here?"

Felica shrugged. "Campaigning, maybe" But she caught a sudden flash in Dick's eyes, and her own widened into bright pools of fear

"You don't think he's after Pierce?"

Dick nodded.

"I'll bet that's just why he's here You know, this is the first murder in Nevada in years, dear—the law isn't apt to let it pass without even asking questions.

"Let's follow him—tell him—" Felicia was springing down the veranda steps, drawing Dick with her, and together they hurried after the sheriff.

They found him questioning Pete, while several cowboys stood around, a little nervously.

"Sure you couldn't have missed him—gone right past him, on these hunts?" The sheriff was asking

"Positive!" Pete told him. "Why, I an' these other boys know every inch of the desert and mountain around here—an' Pierce ain't in 'em. We hunted for days—"

"There's one place ye didn't look!" said Stone suddenly.

"No place big enough for a man —" began Pete.

"Big enough for a man, or for an army!" Stone interrupted.

"Where?" Pete asked incredulously.

"Virginia City's abandoned mines!"

Silence. Felicia's mind swung back to Brett's snarl at the Rat that night on the Tahoe road. "You think you're pretty clever don't you—with your knowledge of paths through abandoned mines—"

Dick turned to the sheriff. "You think he's there?"

"Ain't sayin' he's there," grunted Stone. "Just claimin' these wet nurses to so-bosses missed a bet."

"But those mines are in ruins—crumbling, falling in. No man would risk his life in them."

"Wouldn't? Pierce risked it once —with a boy on his back!" A pause. "Anyway, there's safe spots yet in them mines. It's gettin' along into October—look at them snow caps on the mountains—an' the mines'd be warmer'n the desert.

"Besides," he concluded grimly, "I reckon Pierce'd ruther take a chance in them mines than in front of a jury. We don't count murder a nice word here in Nevada."

"But Mr. Stone," Felicia's voice quavered slightly, "—if it was self-defense—"

"Yeah. If" The sheriff's tone was ominous. "He'd have to prove that. This ain't Chicago."

Pete shifted his feet uneasily, Felicia stared at the sheriff, dumb pity for the Rat in her eyes. Dick opened his mouth to speak, shut it.

"I'm going to look over them mines, anyhow," said Stone, abruptly. "Thank ye for your help," he told Pete, "an' good-day." He strode quickly to his car, backed, swung around, and vanished up the road.

Depression clung like a cloak about Felicia all that afternoon. Even the trip up the canyon had lost its lure. Dick's efforts to reassure her failed.

Back at the ranch house that night, Dick was called to the telephone. Stone was calling from Reno.

Anxiously Felicia followed him, listened to the small, tinny voice that carried outside the receiver as she pressed her ear close beside Dick's head.

"Found him! In the mines! Got him in jail now. Goin' to buzz him in the mornin'. Thought you might want to come in, Courthouse. Ten o'clock. G'night."

"Wait!" Dick fairly shouted into the transmitter. "Can't you let him out?—how about some sort of bond? I—"

"Let him out!" The tanging voice jerred. "Say, who do you think you are—Scarface Al?"

The connection was broken with a sharp click.

SHE NEVER WASHES DISHES
. . . with two maids to do all the work, of course her hands are lovely and white and smooth.

Love Takes the Cake

"YOU can't sell your cake and bake it, too. I seem to be selling plenty of it, but, oh, dear, I'd rather make it!"

This was the silent wail that rose in the heart of Laura Maston one frosty morning when she pulled her velvet beret well down on her white forehead and fluffed her yellow curls into intriguing frames from the lobes of her ears. She added a bit of rouge—not too much—for that wouldn't do for an efficient young saleswoman, whose slogan, after all, is business and not beauty. Then she set forth to the office of a famous firm on lower Broadway.

Laura Maston's work was unique. Just now it seemed rather terrible to her

All year, excepting Christmas week, she tried to sell—and usually succeeded—orders for pies, cakes and puddings to be delivered as holiday gifts to officers and clients of organizations able to pay the high price per thousand which she quoted. Laura was obliged to exude Christmas spirit in great quantities, all day long, through dog days or January sleet.

Sometimes—today, for instance—it was trying.

An hour later, as she waited in an anteroom for the summons to step into the presence of the customers' man of a bond house, she reflected bitterly that she wished she had chosen the occupation of baking cakes for Henry Lewis rather than selling them for the Christmas Cake Company, Inc. Henry Lewis had been such a dear —she put it to herself that way because it seemed easier than any other—but he hadn't any gumption. "Guess not!" That was the word she had used when she told him flatly that she wouldn't marry a failure.

"It isn't that I want money," she had told him. "I don't demand that you earn a large salary. But I want you to go ahead—want you to be someone I can be proud of."

Fool! Fool!

She raged at herself inwardly What HAD started her pitying fit of Hank this morning? Probably because he had been employed in a bond house back in Chicago. Well she wasn't stuck in Chicago! Thank goodness, she had taken the opportunity to come to New York!

She was aghast to find a tear trickling down the side of her nose.

Fool! Fool!

She mustn't be a baby! Here was a prospect—someone who had sent for a saleswoman of Christmas Cakes. If she lost the order —well, she wouldn't!

A trim secretary appeared.

"If you will come this way," she began.

Mentally repeating a phrase or two of her choicest sales patter—"The sweetest wrappings, and a spray of holly" — "Delivered promptly to any address in the city, or sent by mail to"—Laura followed.

She entered a sunny office, and glancing at the man behind the massive mahogany desk was amazed to find herself facing—Hank Lewis!

"Hank!" she cried.

In a moment he was beside her.

"Laura!" There was solicitude in his voice. "What's wrong? Are you ill?"

"Dear old Hank! Just like old times back in Chicago.

"No. I wanted to sell you some cake. . . ."

"Cake! Do you think that's why I sent for you? Talk cake to me when it's taken me two solid months to find you? Cake?"

Then, because Laura, stretched out her arms to him, he suddenly kissed her.

It was not until fifteen minutes later, when the ringing of a telephone bell recalled them to their surroundings, that Laura, straightened her beret and asked, "How —how did you find me?"

Hank laughed.

"Every year the firm puts in an order for your darn cakes. When I telephoned, they said they'd send a saleswoman, Miss Maston over in the morning. And here you are. So you're through with selling cakes? Ready to give up the career?"

"Oh, Hank," sighed Laura ecstatically "I'll bake 'em, all the rest of my life—for you."

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

DO not know what flowers will cluster there on Heaven's eternal fields, or what faint scents the rare, celestial air in matchless fragrance yields. Nor can I picture the ethereal Spring that greets those timeless skies where birds of sweeter song on brighter wing through bluer vistas rise But this I know, though there the soul forgets all cares of former days, if in those meadows bloom no violets one heart will mourn Earth's ways. One heart will dream of mad March winds again that rove in fierce unrest, of violets veiled in sudden showers of rain to gladden Earth's bare breast.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

She finds the unusual and tells of good values

FOR EASTER MONDAY PARTIES a smart little shop offers for sale some of their slightly used bridal and evening gowns —billowy taffetas, sprightly georgettes, beaded and lace, price —$1 to $5. They are almost gifts!

IF YOU PAT on a specially prepared cream around your eyes every night, working your fingers gently towards the nose, you will find those wrinkles and crowsfeet vanishing, and your skin so healthily nourished as to prevent new ones from forming. Be young! it costs but $1.75.

THE FLOWERS THAT BLOOM in the Spring have much to do with your Easter ensemble. There is a shop that makes a specialty of real-looking flowers—pansies, clover blossoms, buttercups, and such, priced 50 cents up. Also, fragrant sachet packages of crushed flowers to tuck in with your "hankies" or keep in your bag, priced 25 cents.

"SICK" HAIR can be restored to a thick luxuriant growth by using a scalp tonic once or twice a week that corrects and perfects the condition of the scalp, making it "fertile" for the growing of hair, and discouraging grayness. Price $1.00.

HATS! THE TOPIC OF THE HOUR! You'll find them growing "all in a row" in glorified Spring colors, priced $3 to $5 at—I'll tell you if you ask me. Straws, felts and combinations!

TRIM AND SLIM ankles and legs should show beneath your Easter finery. For dark, discolored "knotty" veins are most unpleasant to have—and to gaze upon. A silk elastic stocking that can scarcely be seen under your sheer silk ones is priced $6.75.

THE BRISK MARCH WIND that blows roses into your cheeks also blows them off—unless you use a certain rouge that defies the wind. It comes in cherry and white—is like the blush of a primrose—and you may order by mail. Price $1.00.

A NEW GOWN SHOP opens up in splendor—with a special price of $8.75 for their exceptional dresses. There are even some ensembles at this price!

IT'S TIME TO THINK of waves—the kind that don't come out! A special price of $8.00 for permanents includes all the curls you want, shampoos and setting wave.

A LADY IS TOLD by her hand—and her gloves. For long-wearing gloves of excellent quality there are sure quite such good values as the imported kid gloves I know about priced $2.95. You'll adore the Sun-tan embroidered in rose petit point.

THE COMPLEXION OF YOUR HANDS is quite as important as that of your face. There is a delightful hand cream especially adapted for daytime use. It is put up in tubes—is neither sticky or greasy, and permits you to attend to your household interests—even to handling fine sewing without inconvenience. A fragrant violet odor—and makes the hands smooth as velvet—50 cents.

I SHALL BE very glad to tell you more about these items—and where to buy them if you will check the ones in which you are interested—and enclose your name and address with a 2-cent stamp

The RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY

The Adventures of Great Detective Recounted

CHAPTER 3

Old King Brady has a dream that Alexis is in trouble and starts looking for him. He visits the Russian consul and confirms Alexis' story. The loan shark's daughter calls on Mr. Brady in response to an ad in the "personal" column in the newspaper.

"LOOK here, Harry," said Old King Brady on the following Monday, "We have a breathing spell now, and I intend to prove whether I was humbugged or not. You get the court interpreter and go and interview the Warschawsky woman and get full particulars.'

"What has suddenly started your interest in that case, again?" demanded Harry.

"Well, to be frank with you, I dreamed three times that the boy was in trouble." Old King Brady has a way of talking about his dreams, and sometimes he thinks they come true—more often not. However, Harry obeyed orders.

When Old King Brady started out he headed straight for the Russian consulate. The consul received him graciously and asked what he could do for him. The old detective did not waste any words. "I want to know if there is a nobleman by the name of Count Peter Witsky in Russia."

The consul invited Old King Brady into his private office and, taking down several books, was able to trace him quickly. "Yes, there is a Count Peter Witsky from Warsaw, Poland. Three years ago he was convicted of murder and instead of being executed was sent to the Siberian mines for life."

Old King Brady related what the boy had told him. "And now," he concluded, "the boy has disappeared and I am anxious to know if what he has told me is true. I shall make every effort to find him.

"If you find him, bring him to me and I will take care of the Russian end of it. You don't happen to know anything about this Grohogan, of course? With that name he probably came from Georgia, which is a Russian province on the Black Sea."

Old King Brady asked if there were any Georgians in New York. They found six listed. Among them was the name of Isaac Grab. "Is this the loan shark whose place was raided about ten days ago?" asked the old detective.

"Same man," replied the consul.

The old detective left the consul's office once more a firm believer in Alexis. Harry's report after seeing the Polish woman confirmed this belief.

"Well," said Old King Brady, "we assume that one of two persons is at the bottom of the boy's disappearance—Grab or Grohogan, preferably the latter. Do you recollect the name of that lawyer in the Bronx who gave up the papers?"

Harry did. "John Donsky, and I looked up his address. Here it is—No. — Bathgate ave."

Old King Brady called on Donsky that afternoon. He was a surly, elderly man, who spoke good English. "Mr. Grohogan is a friend of mine," he said, "but I haven't seen him since he left the hospital last summer. He used to be a client of mine, but he is not now."

Old King Brady got no more satisfaction out of Donsky. He returned to his office puzzled.

Two days later Old King Brady called Harry's attention to an advertisement in the "Personal" column of the morning paper. It read: "Will meet the eye of J. G. who formerly kept the loan office Second ave., he will do well to call at the office of the Brady Detective Bureau, New York city, where he will hear something to his advantage."

"The man is in trouble," explained Old King Brady, "and he does not fear us. We are only private detectives. Curiosity will impel him to come here." He was interrupted by the announcement of a caller in the outer office, "Miss Grab."

"What did I tell you!" chuckled the old detective. "Get to the listening panel!"

The person who entered old King Brady's office was a sharp-featured female of about 25. Almost everyone around lower Second ave. knew her by sight, for the loan shark had carried on business there for several years, and his daughter assisted him.

"I am Miss Grab," said the young woman. "I called in answer to your advertisement."

"Oh, yes. Be seated," Old King Brady replied. "Your father could not come, I suppose?"

"No," snapped Miss Grab. "You know why. There is a warrant out for his arrest."

"I know it. It would have been just as well if he had come. I should not have arrested him. He stands in great danger, however. You know, probably, that he raised $5000 on a note signed by Popoff & Tanguayeff of Cincinnati, which will be due at the —— Bank in two weeks." Old King Brady regarded her quietly.

The young woman's eyes opened wide. "What do you mean?"

"Simply that your father signed and endorsed a note and there is no such firm in existence. Since he has been crowded out of business he can't take care of it when due. By the way, I hold the note."

"I don't believe you have it," and Miss Grab looked frightened.

"Stay where you are, and I'll show it to you."

He passed out into the outer office where he told Harry to snadow her, and then on into Alice's office. "I suppose you know the daughter came. Get onto the job, but be careful." He then went back into his own office holding the note.

"There you are," said the old detective, "now the question is, would your father like that note? If so, there is a way he can get it without paying cash."

"Of course he wants it," cried Hilda. "Let me have a look at it."

"Not at all," replied Old King Brady. "That note doesn't leave my possession until your father and I come to terms."

I, was just as well Hilda did not see it for, although Old King Brady had the original, this was just a clever copy.

Controlling herself outwardly Hilda wanted to know what the terms would be.

"Listen!" said Old King Brady "What do you know about Alexis Witsky?"

"Nothing much. He came around our office trying to get hold of an old tin box containing some worthless letters and papers," she replied carelessly.

"And you got hold of those papers—how?"

"By my father closing a chattel mortgage. They came to us along with some other stuff."

"And you know nothing about Alexis Witzky now?"

"I know nothing of him, and I'm sure my father doesn't."

"Very well. My terms for the paper I just put in my pocketbook are these: Give me the tin box with everything inside, tell me what happened to Alexis Witzky and you get it without charge."

"Why, Mr. Brady," she said, "We haven't got the box and the papers —"

"But you did have them!"

"Yes. But my father sold them."

"To whom?"

"I don't think I ought to tell. That's my father's private business. Anyhow, they are out of his hands, and we have no idea where the boy is."

"Go and talk it over with your father and see if you don't come to me with a different story, young woman, if you want to get your hands on that note."

"Perhaps we could be willing to buy the note at a reasonable discount."

"What do you call a reasonable discount?"

"Fifty per cent."

"You loan sharks make me tired! Go, Miss Grab, advise with your father. He had better come to see me himself."

Hilda left the office looking very savage.

Alice had already left. Harry followed her by a different route. His car was not seen Young King Brady so he did not need a disguise. He passed her twice and looked at her impudently. He saw her stop irresolutely. A passing taxi stopped and she got in. At first, Hilda crossed over to talk to her. Harry walked on and gave her another look. He crossed his arms and looked back. The taxi had moved on with Hilda in it.

Her First Triumph

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

FROM the time she learns her A B C's and gradually finds that putting them together weaves the most fascinating tales of romance, you'll find her with a book. How she revels in the tales of the Knights and their ladyes fair; and what dreams she dreams of the Prince who is to come and carry her off. And finally she meets him and Love claims her—then what?

No more stories of romance for her! She has found her Prince and Love and Happiness have come to her. But the time of her very first and greatest triumphs is after she has read reams of cook books and recipes, and experimented with things until she almost gives up in despair and burns her dainty fingers, and at last—makes a pie that fairly bristles with toothsomeness—THAT'S the greatest triumph of her life!

And when at last she puts it before him and he exclaims over its deliciousness—then she's repaid for all the tears and fears! The triumph of Love! And it's just such little things as this that bring its great manifestations.

Woman Sleuth Plays Big Part in the Story himself from taking her in his arms and kissing her.

Between her dizzy enticements and the quiet charms of Peggie he was drawn this way and that.

He found a way at last to remove Peggie too sought the same relaxation.

Next day he took lunch with Peter Wheeler. "Can you tell me anything of Senator Bonham?" he asked.

"Now you mention it," smiled Peter. "I had an inquiry from him yesterday yourself!"

"About me?"

"Yes—said he admired your work. Of course he didn't come to see me himself, but I recognized his scout and made him confess. You see the Senator is one of the most confirmed girl hounds in New York, he has oodles of dough and now he's Washington's most respected bootlegger. The poor devil who wrote him up in that divorce case is now doing time for Sing—not a pleasant devil to run up against."

Bonham's name came up again, this time from Jacqueline as she went to dine with Maurie. She unbuckened herself freely.

It was quite a long story, but she divulged the fact that Bonham had been the head of a chain of clairvoyants scattered across the country. It was easy to pass a dupe from one to another until he was cleaned out. Bonham owed her a grudge for the divorce scandal and ever since her return from Europe had subjected her to persecution.

"What cuts me most," she confided, "is that he has bribed my brother to do his dirty work. I made a mistake in bringing Miklos to New York. He has no conscience where money is concerned. I find that he is the medium through which the dupes are finally brought to my house. He is introduced as not only my brother but as my assistant—he is a gypsy —what could be more plausible?

"So I've decided to wander-again —get away from the city to the mountains."

"Does that mean the Rockies?" Maurice ventured.

"Very likely, for a while at least. Then if I want a change, there is always Paris. I have my father's old studio there. And if I tire of that again, I can always wander somewhere else—the world is wide."

"When are you going?" Maurice asked.

"Just as soon as I can. That's where you can help me—you are the only one I can trust to keep it quiet and not interfere. Hasaan is a good soul and has been loyal so far, but I begin to be afraid. The Senator does not hesitate to spend money when he really wants something.

"Now I want you to buy my railroad tickets and get me a compartment to Montreal, and from there to Banff. Also a sleeping-bag and blankets for camping out. I've telephone or telegraph with Louis Grant—Black Louis, as the Mac Leans call him—out beyond the Blackfoot reserve and he will meet me, he concluded. "The boy has disappeared and I am anxious to know if what he has told me is true. I shall make every effort to find him.

"If you find him, bring him to me and I will take care of the Russian end of it. You don't happen to know anything about this Grohogan, of course? With that name he probably came from Georgia, which is a Russian province on the Black Sea."

Old King Brady asked if there were any Georgians in New York. They found six listed. Among them was the name of Isaac Grab. "Is this the loan shark whose place was raided about ten days ago?" asked the old detective.

"Same man," replied the consul.

The old detective left the consul's office once more a firm believer in Alexis. Harry's report after seeing the Polish woman confirmed this belief.

"Well," said Old King Brady, "we assume that one of two persons is at the bottom of the boy's disappearance—Grab or Grohogan, preferably the latter. Do you recollect the name of that lawyer in the Bronx who gave up the papers?"

Harry did. "John Donsky, and I looked up his address. Here it is—No. — Bathgate ave."

Bisch Influence on Clothes

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

IT is said that clothes make the man, implying, of course, that clothes enhance the personality value of a man, that the finer his clothes the more acceptable and better liked he will be.

There is a whole lot in that old saying.

Women certainly realise the truth of it. They know how much clothes mean in getting their own personalities across to others.

However, what I want to stress today is not so much the effect o clothes upon others as the effect of clothes upon the wearer himself.

Every man knows how different he feels when he wears a dress suit as compared to a pair of overalls.

Note also how out-of-place one feels when wearing a business suit or a street dress, as the case may be, in a gathering where the boiled shirt and the decollete are the order of the day.

Then observe yourself when you get into an old suit, patched or perhaps torn at the knees!

Or when you don flannels or golf togs, or get into a bathing suit!

Isn't it true that not only do you feel out of it if your clothes do not match the occasion, but actually that you try to live up to your clothes?

The man in evening dress feels impelled to act formally and display all the polished manner he can muster.

The man in flannels begins to jump around and be active and athletic.

Put on dungarees and immediately you want to mess around with the car and get dirty.

High-heeled shoes put a woman in an entirely different humor than do low-heeled ones.

When silk stockings were not worn as commonly as now, what a difference it made with a girl's emotions to wear a pair!

Undoubtedly the stimulating effect of clothes upon the wearer has had much to do with the rules of style for various occasions.

Many women can and do change their moods with change of dress.

Wear dark clothes and your feelings are likely to be subdued and even depressed. Wear bright colors and you feel gay.

Remember Mark Twain and his white flannels even in winter? Well, old Mark knew a lot about human nature.

MERELY MARGY

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

OH, ARAB, ISN'T IT WONDERFUL TO BE HERE AT PALM BEACH, WARM SUNSHINE AND THINK OF IT, BATHING IN THE SEA!
YEH, NOTHING BUT SUNSHINE EVERY DAY!
HERE WE ARE DOWN IN THE WARM OCEAN, AND THE REST OF THE BUNCH UP NORTH IN THE ICE AND SNOW!
YEH, BUT I MISS THE ICE AND SNOW, I WONDER WHO WON THE SKI JUMPS THIS YEAR?
AND KNT BASIL WEALTHINGTON A WIZZ? THINK OF IT! AN AUTHOR, AND I DIDN'T SUSPECT IT AT ALL, SO, I CAN HARDLY KEEP FROM RUNNING MY FINGERS THROUGH HIS CURLY HAIR!
AND I CAN HARDLY! KEEP FROM RUNNING MY FINGERS ROUND HIS CURLY THROAT!
ARAB, YOU ARE SO VIRILE!

"MY dear, I'm on the VERGE of coLAPSE at this point—I mean I'm ACtually WHIPT down to a NUB, no less, because I had this treMENdous confab with ARab while I and he were kind of CASurally sprawling on the BEACH, and I've never seen ANYbody in such a THOIoughly fuGUBrious and LACHrymose MOOD, my dear! I mean I was FRANtically trying to imPRESS him with the fact that we ought to be TERribly thankful we were down here at Palm BEACH amid the saLUBrious TROPical vegeTAtion effects and with divine SWIMming and everything to REVel in and all, and nothing to do but think of the REST of the crowd FREEzing helplessly midst the ICE and SNOW up NORTH, but, my dear, the ohYESE oaf merely heaved a WISTful SIGH and he remarked that he MISSED the ice and snow and he WONdered who won the SKI jump this year—can you BEAR it, my dear? ACtually, I've never HEARD of anybody so GRIM, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, I proceeded to talk about how simply MARvelous BASil was, and, my dear, I've HONestly never SEEN such an expression of feROcity as Arab sumed when I COYly admitted I covld HARDly keep from runninG my FINgers through Basil's curly HAIR—can you cope with it? ACtually, my dear, I was SIMply TERrified because he replied in FREZNel tones of WRATH that HE could hardly keep from running his fIgers round BASil's curly THROAT at this point—can you BEAR it! ACtually, my dear, Arab's so VIRile, sort of, at TIMES, he FRIGHtens me! But I'm simply FRANtic to tell you what happened AFterards, my dear—I mean I ACtually AM!"

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

The World's Greatest Authority

SOME AUCTION BRIDGE PENALTIES

SOUTH, (the Declarer) leads to a trick and East plays before West. Penalty: Declarer may require West to play his highest or lowest card of the suit led, or to win or lose the trick. If West has none of the suit led Declarer may call his highest of any designated suit; if he holds none of the suit called, the penalty is paid.

Should West be called upon as above to pay one of the designated penalties and fails to act as directed when able to do so, he is subject to the penalty for a revoke, namely, the surrender of two tricks to the Declarer at the end of the hand.

South is the Declarer. East is about to lead to a trick when it is West's turn to lead. West says to East: "It is my lead." There is no penalty. West is within his rights. But Dummy has no similar right to warn Declarer; although should he do so, no penalty can be imposed. The offense would be a violation only of the ethics of the game.

South (Declarer) leads the Jack; West plays the Queen; North plays low.

West says to East: "It's my trick, partner." To give such information is contrary to the law. Penalty: Declarer may call a lead when it next becomes an adversary's turn to lead. This means that an adversary may be required to lead a designated suit (not the highest or lowest card of a suit). If the adversary has no card of the suit called, the penalty is paid.

Should a player say: "I double four Hearts" when the bid was three Hearts, he must declare again and his partner is barred from further participation in the auction.

The Contract and Auction bidding of a selected hand will be given in tomorrow's article.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him, care of the paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

The "BAER" Facts -:- By Bugs Baer

NOW that Spring is here and gone, it is possible to check up on the survivors of the big blizzard of 1888.

Up until that time, liars had been only local talent. But after '88 they became nationalized and demanded international representation.

That blizzard started March 12, 1888, and hasn't stopped yet.

My old man used to tell about it in accents firm and unverified. Every time he recited the atmospherical perjury, he stopped to shake the snowflakes from his beard.

Up until 1906 people didn't realize what a terrible storm it was.

Then they started remembering. And when memories are thrown into reverse, there is a grinding of biographical gears that would curl the hair on a tiger-skin rug.

The old-timers will tell you why we do not have Winters any more. It ain't the janitor's fault.

The best statistician of the big blizz of '88 was Mr. Miller. He added a foot of snow every year. In —ine, 1927, he had it 17 feet deep and then got a sunstroke trying to dig himself out of his own story.

Every boy should believe what his papa tells him. But when my old man said that the blizzards of '88 was so deep that men didn't have to wear trousers, we grew skeptical.

He claimed that it was no use wearing trousers because nobody could see them. All the oldest inhabs wore were rubber boots and a sealskin hat.

The old man is still living over in Philadelphia and it is still snowing over there.

He showed us proof last week. There was a slight flurry of blizzarootis. The old man stepped out and picked up a snowflake.

He handed it to us to read.

It was dated 1888.

So that is absolute proof that the blizzikus of '88 shall not perish from the earth nor the exaggeration thereof.

We happen to know the real cause of that blizzaroo. We were two years old at the time and aging rapidly.

What made it seem so deep and last so long was civic pride. My old man shoveled the snow off our pavement over onto Mr. Miller's.

Not to be outdone in Oriental courtesy, Mr. Miller shoveled his snow and our snow back onto my old man's pavement.

Which naturally made the snow seem twice as deep. Each citizen was getting two snowstorms for the price of one.

This municipal competition kept up all Winter, Summer, Fall and into the next season. They kept shoveling and digging until their hands got blistered. Then they took a rest and joined the mother lodge of the Ancient and Uncorroborated Survivors of the Blizzboz of '88.

ELINOR GLYN SAYS:

By ELINOR GLYN

I MET a woman yesterday, pretty and young to look at, who said she had been married for 12 years to the same husband and still loved him.

But she confessed that last year she had met a man called Jack, whom she knew would attract her awfully—if she saw him often—so I asked her what she did about it. She said she avoided meeting him, told herself that she was not attracted at all, concentrated upon her children and counted her blessings with Jim—her husband—and went over his charms—finally she got him to take her away for a little trip, and now she has conquered all emotion for Jack, and is serenely happy again with her husband and babies.

What a lesson to so many women —who, while cold-blooded, know that they have everything they want as they are—and yet, as soon as a new attraction crosses their paths they let themselves go—encourage it—and finally break up their homes and are divorced.

The point is to resist immediately a vagrant fancy, for if you do not, you have not much chance when it really takes hold of your imagination or your emotions—and the old fable of the dog and the shadow will be enacted again.

LOVES OF STAGE BEAUTIES

By RUTH MORRIS

THE life of Fanny Kemble is a network of contradictions. Inheriting the talent of a long line of acting Kembles, she nevertheless possessed none of their love for the theater; hating the stage, she achieved pre-eminence in its ranks; craving the quiet of a non-professional life, she returned, as though willed by fate, to the boards she professed to despise.

Fanny had a tremendous talent which she scorned and continually minimized. She is said to have been a vest-pocket edition of her aunt, Sarah Siddons, one of the greatest tragediennes of the English stage. She had Siddons' superb eyes and sombre beauty. She possessed the same ability to project character—lacking only that tremendous fascination for the theater that would have led to the very peak of the profession.

Fanny Kemble never had to undergo the long apprenticeship in the theater in which love for it is often born. She was educated in France as a gentlewoman who would turn occasionally to the politic writing of novels and verse. But her father, Charles Kemble, was not one of those dual souls who combine magnificent art with business acumen and at 18 it became evident that Fanny would have to earn her own living. Her parents decided on a theatrical career for her.

Fanny was frightfully bored with the project. The stage, she said, was degrading. But poverty being worse, she consented to study the part of Juliet in which she was to make her debut under the Kemble banner. A period of three weeks limited her apprenticeship; at the end of that time she was to emerge as a promising young actress—a position she had neither wanted nor worked for.

It had been decided to muster Fanny's young brother into the role of Romeo—a prospect as distasteful to him as Juliet had been to his sister. Accordingly, at the first rehearsal, the young rogue played Romeo with such intentionally comic values that the elder Kemble retired to the back of the theater in an agony of mirth and dismissed his son from the cast. Therein probably died a great comedian.

Fanny played Juliet at Covent Garden for 120 performances, her popularity with the public ever growing. This "Romeo and Juliet" was a strictly family affair; it had been directed by Charles Kemble, who recruited distant cousins to enact the various Montagues and Capulets; its costumes were executed by Mrs. Kemble in a manner that defies our present day modishly clothed representatives. Mrs. Kemble refused to have her daughter appear in accurate Veronese costumes, with the result that Fanny played the languishing Juliet in the ruffles and furbelows of the nineteenth century.

The London run over, Charles Kemble took his star on a tour of England, Ireland and Scotland, where success was duplicated. Searching for new audiences to conquer, the pair set sail for America in 1832.

There was some anxiety as to how New York audiences, accustomed to the noisy comedy and bombastic drama of a younger country, would receive Fanny's more subdued art. But worry on this score was needless. Critics and public alike hailed the "grace and deep power of the art of Fanny Kemble." Among the critical fraternity, none was more worshipful than Washington Irving, who arranged many entertainments in New York for the visiting star.

It seemed to Fanny that America would really fulfill her dream of retiring from the stage. In 1834 she met and married a wealthy Philadelphian, rejoicing that at last she was free from a career that seemed to her nothing more than horrid money-grubbing. But happiness did not last. Home life may have bored her; domestic unhappiness may have driven her back to the only alternative she knew. Kemble traditions and love of the theater may have been more deeply seated and enduring in her than she guessed—or would admit. Whatever the reason, in 1837 she returned to England and the stage as Julia in "The Hunchback."

Later, she again gave up the stage, and once more returned—this time as a reader of Shakespeare. Contemporaneous accounts record the wonder of these readings—of how Fanny, without the aid of costume, make-up or scenery, could conjure up and cast out of her superb skill an entire Shakespearean drama.

Her later years were divided between England and America, during which time she wrote several autobiographical works. She died in London in 1893, a charming, sensible woman who was kept only by her hatred of the stage from achieving first place on it.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS FOR PRACTICAL MEN

MANY a man has lost employment simply because he struck an unpleasant attitude in the presence of his employer. Do you know that the position of the elbows indicates ease and refinement, whether on the rostrum, on the street or in exclusive social circles? When the elbows are carried out, the employer says to himself—

"Mr. Good-to is self-conscious. He should carry the head high and somewhat back, turned a trifle to the side, else I shall seek and find another for his place as floorwalker in my large department store."

Self-consciousness is just another term for timidity. A timid man is shifty—and will not look you in the eye. And a man who will not look you in the eye is a liar. And a liar is a thief. And so on, ad infinitum.

The ringside fan is
Oh! so lazy—
Gets his exercise
By proxy.

Fights his battles
Oh! so gory
With a rush of Oratory.

AS relief for the present theatrical depression, Barrett Clark, writing in The Drama, urges producers to incorporate and sell shares in their plays to the public.

Well, why not? They have cooperative cheese factories in Oregon.

New York theatergoers have been well trained for Clark's plan. Already they pay about as much for a seat in a theater as it costs for a seat on the stock exchange.

The chief drawback to Clark's proposal is the bullishness of prices and the bearishness of the entertainment.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Help me shift the furniture, dearie.

ABILITY WILL WIN

By LUCY LOWELL

I AM amused and interested by the amount of homely wisdom expressed in a certain bit of E. W. Howe's philosophy. Read this:

"If you succeed in life, you must do it in spite of the efforts of others to pull you down. There is nothing in the idea that people are willing to help a man who can't help himself, but as soon as a man is able to help himself, and does it, they join in making his life as uncomfortable as possible."

And isn't it true?

Something in human nature derives a great kick out of playing big brother to the down and outer, providing that he is a genuine dyed-in-the-wool down and outer and totally unlikely to rear up all of a sudden, get on his feet and go around threatening to rival the place, position, possessions, intelligence or security of his benefactor.

For, of course, the thing at the bottom of that pulling down process is envy; the plain, old-fashioned fear that someone else will appropriate all—or at least most of—the fame and acclaim there is. Odd how human little underhand twist works in the human heart. "There is always room at the top," it is said, and with truth. But those scrambling toward the top for the most part seem to believe their ascent will be made easier and each successive step more secure by striking out with the sort of well-aimed blows which will dislodge others bent upon the same purpose as themselves.

These are too short-sighted and too self-centered to see that in unison is strength; that as they help others the others, perforce, must help them.

After all it is only ability which wins, and the one who has this need neither fear the down pull nor give it.

DINE AND DANCE

Big Program at New Hollywood Barn Cafe

Tonight will be "Show Night" at the New Hollywood Barn Cafe, 336 Newbury st., and manager Fred Soracco announces a big program of entertainment.

The program will include many extra acts in addition to the regular bill. Featuring the regular bill this week are Pitts and Marie, sensational tango dancers; Veronica Oliver in popular songs; June April in a specialty singing and dancing act. Harry Taylor, master of ceremonies, is pleasing the crowd again with his tenor voice.

Fred Soracco

The Barn features a special $1.50 dinner every evening from 6 to 9 o'clock without cover charge. In addition there are three shows, at 7 o'clock, 9:30 and at 11:30 o'clock.

Dancing follows until 2 with music by Larry Smyth's orchestra.

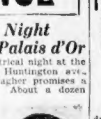
Fourth of Loving Cup Dance Series Tonight

The fourth of a series of dance tournaments for silver loving cups will be held at the Symphony restaurant, 253 Huntington ave., tonight. Every Wednesday night the tournament has aroused much interest, and a large number of entries have been made for tonight.

A new program of vodvil is being presented all this week, with entertainers making their first appearance in Boston, Perley Stevens and his Velvet Tone Recording orchestra are offering an unusual program of dance music.

Theatrical Night at Palais d'Or

Tonight is theatrical night at the Palais d'Or, 281 Huntington ave., and Jimmie Gallagher promises a lot of surprises. About a dozen extra vodvil acts have been billed to augment the regular show.



Jimmy Gallagher

Jimmie had his tonsils out about ten days ago but he is improving rapidly. He has some new parodies on Miss O'Flynn which are well worth hearing, now that his voice is in good shape again.

Thursday night is treasure night and valuable gifts are given to the winners. Friday night the big balloon night is just as popular as ever.

Jimmie Gallagher and his band are still playing that red hot dance music.

Irish Program on Bill at Mah Jong

Winton Bee, host at Mah Jong, announces an added attraction for tonight—Theatrical Night. The Hon. Billy Barker, well known throughout Boston clubs, with his group of singers and dancers, will furnish an Irish breakdown. Scotty Holmes and Billy Cronin promise to go an Irish program—something well worth seeing. Chet French and his Hawaiian girls promise a new program for tonight.

Hugo to Supervise All Party Catering

Hugo, himself, announces a new feature in connection with his restaurants at 150 Boylston st. and 129 Summer st. Banquets, club meetings, bridge parties and supper parties will be catered to in the usual Hugo style.

HEARST TROPHY SCORE TURNED IN BY B. U.

Boston University was listed today as among the institutions whose student rifle teams have already turned in their targets to the Director of the William Randolph Hearst National R. O. T. C. Rifle Trophy championships.

April 10th is the "deadline" for submitting scores, today's bulletin reminded contestants.

Officiating under the supervision of Maj. General Paul B. Malone at Sixth Corps headquarters, Chicago, are already checking and grading the inarkmanship evidence, it was announced.

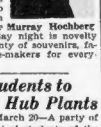
Every effort is being made to complete the records several weeks before the close of the school year in order that the championship teams in all sections may have time to receive the handmedals and trophies awarded.

Many of the 412 teams from universities, colleges, military academies and high schools throughout the country have yet to turn their targets in.

Among those which, like Boston University, have been prompt in making returns, are the following: Xavier high school of New York City; Howe high school of Howe, Ind.; Benton high school of St. Joseph, Mo.; Bowen and Morgan Park high schools of Chicago; University of Montana; Oregon State Agricultural College; Oklahoma Military Academy; Cheyenne, Wyo., high school; San Antonio high school; Salt Lake City high schools; El Paso high schools; Tennessee Military Institute; University of Alabama; Oulchita College, Ark., and the Owensborough, Ky., high school.

Serenaders Big Hit at Yen Ho Restaurant

Murray Hochberg and his serenaders, now featured at the Yen Ho restaurant, Tremont st., came here direct from a long Broadway engagement.



Murray Hochberg

Although only here a few weeks they have made a decided hit with the big crowds of diners and dancers at Yen Ho. Popular song hits are played by request at each performance.

The vodvil bill this week is headed by Bob and Mattie in specialty dance numbers. Friday night is novelty night, with plenty of souvenirs, favors and noise-makers for everybody.

Maine Students to Tour Hub Plants

Orono, Me., March 20—A party of 84 senior technical students of the University of Maine left for Boston accompanied by several members of the faculty on inspection trip to cover several days. The party will be divided in groups.

The electrical engineers will put in considerable time in the General Electric plant in Lynn and at the telephone building. The civil engineers will examine the new North Station, the Watertown arsenal, Edison power station and will be entertained at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

The mechanical engineers will visit the General Electric plant, Mystic Iron Works, the Ford assembly plant in Somerville, Moth Aeroplane Works in Lowell and Dennison plant in Framingham. The chemical engineers will visit the plant of the American Sugar Company in South Boston and other places.

Sloan to Sell Used Car Idea to Germany

Berlin, March 20 (AP)—The General Motors Company looks to transplanting of the used car idea to Germany to aid in the conquest of the German European market, Alfred P. Sloan, the company's president, told employees at the Borsigwalde works outside Berlin today.

He said the American system of rapid turnover and tremendous sales of used cars at prices as low as $100 could be brought to Europe and used to popularize motor transport and private car ownership.

GLEASONS WILL FILM DOMESTIC COMEDIES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, March 20—There is no reason under the shining sun why Mr. and Mrs. James Gleason cannot give Pathe the same brand of domestic comedies that Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew furnished during the heyday of their enormous success.

Since the death of the Drews such comedies have been conspicuous by their absence. Now Pathe steps into the breach calling the world that James and Lucile Webster Gleason will make a series of short reel comedies, with the same plain, every-day humor.

Talkies? Certainly. You wouldn't expect the Gleasons not to take advantage of their years of stage training. The first of these talkies is "Tee for Two." A golf comedy by Norman Sper and George L. Rogan, and the second, "Believe It or Not," a sketch in which the Gleasons appeared in vaudeville.

Jimmie Gleason, whose dialogue is nothing less than epic, will do a little writing and all the directing. He has added Jed Crowley, Sue Moris and Brooke Benneat to the cast—and now everything is set to go.

THE call of the west which in modern parlance means the summons of the talkies has reached Vivienne Segal. Miss Segal has signed a contract with Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation to go to Hollywood to play the lead in the film version of "Rainbow." They tell me that Jesse Lasky and Darryl Zanuck, general manager are much pleased with this day's work.

Lila Lee, who had been encouraged to believe that she would be given this desirable part, has been soothed with the promise of First National to play opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Drag." A pretty promise—is it not—and one Lila deserves.

LOUIS B. MAYER is a busy man these days. What with conferences, here and there, and certain Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer duties that must be given care, there aren't many minutes left, but he probably won't be too busy on Thursday to escort the "Trader Horn" company to Washington to the guest President Hoover. I believe this is the President's first meeting with a film company since he became President and it is particularly fitting that Mr. Mayer, who is a close friend of the Chief Executive, should be on hand to do the honors.

In the "Trader Horn" company will be Harry Carey, who has the role of Trader Horn; Edwina Booth, who will play Nina T., and Duncan Renaldo, the romantic lead. The entire party are sailing on the Ile de France on Friday, March 29.

LET it never be said of Viola Dana that she's not going to rise to the emergency of talkies. Viola has gone to San Francisco to play the lead in "Crossroads" with the Henry Duffy Players. She opens there March 30, with Frank Craven directing the play. What a wise girl she is to get the benefit of stage training before she makes talkies.

With Frank Craven directing her, we may expect to hear of Viola knocking them cold when she returns to Hollywood. By the bye, one of our gossiping friends writes that Viola has been seen dining with Rex Lease several times of late. Both Viola and Rex have recently been divorced—of course not from each other, so that they should have a sympathetic understanding.

THAT energetic young man, Winfield Sheehan, has established offices in his hotel and is working twice as hard as he ever worked in California. He is signing this one and that one. Seymour Felix, famous stage producer who spends half his time between New York and London, has just agreed to come to Hollywood to put on a musical comedy for the Fox company.

Felix staged "Rosalie," and now he has a chance to prove to Hollywood what he can do with the talkies. De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, Winnie's incomparable trio have composed an original score for this coming movie.

THE sailor rowing in the lagoon on his holiday has nothing on me. The very first place I visited in New York was the Roxy Theater. S. L. Rothafel, who has been building bigger and better programs since the days when I started writing movie columns, asked me to come and take a look at his birthday program. You wouldn't believe it possible that a mere movie such as "Speakeasy" could have such adornment.

Extravagant costumes that are as elegantly contrived as the fantastic Diaghileff draperies simply make one groggy with surprise. What water has gone under the bridge and what enormous changes have taken place since Roxy came to Chicago to establish a prologue in the old Colonial Theater. Hundreds of people were standing in line, proving that these well-dressed choruses and their songs and dances are popular. The picture, "Speakeasy," seemed only incidental. Perhaps it was because there was a long program before it unreeled.

IMAGINE my surprise at finding Hobart Henley visiting Roxy's Hohen-Stauffen New York director. "The Lady Lies" is the famous Players-Lasky. He is so entirely sold on the "talkie" idea that I suspect he'll consider it a terrible comedown if he ever has to make a silent picture. Claudette Colbert, who is one of the popular young actress on Broadway, has the lead. Walter Houston and Charles Ruggle have the two important male parts. "The Lady Lies" is a stage play by John Meehan and with, so Hobart says, plenty of good lines.

Peppy Dancers at Yoeng's Kenmore

Harry King, manager of Yoeng's Kenmore, announces a new cabaret show all this week which is different from the usual cabarets given in local restaurants.

Henry Davis

Plenty of singing and peppy dancing girls add much flavor to the show. Yoeng's is one of the popular places for a noonday luncheon for reasonable prices, served from 11:30 to 2 o'clock, during which there is a cabaret performance and a chance for a few dances while on the lunch hour.

Henry Davis and his broadcasting orchestra will play any of the popular song hits upon request.

3 Months for First Victim of Jones Law

New York, March 20 (AP)—Ernest Dougall, a wartime lieutenant of infantry, was given three months in the Federal House of Detention today in the first sentence in this district under the Jones law, which makes violations of the Volstead Act a felony punishable by a maximum of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The sentence was imposed by Federal Judge Frank Coleman, noted for his leniency in liquor cases before the Jones law was signed by the President.

'THE RINGER' IS GREAT HIT AT COPLEY

Unless all signs fail, E. E. Clive has brought another instantaneous hit to the Copley Theater in "The Ringer," mystery comedy by none other than Edgar Wallace and it is the first time the play has been given in America. Boston has a chance to see it before Broadway and from the enthusiasm shown by the audience it promises to duplicate its success in London and Berlin. Moreover, the Copley has a noted guest star in the person of that capable actor, Pedro de Cordoba. With E. E. Clive, he shares the principal honors in the latest swift-moving drama of crime, crooks and suspicion.

Pedro de Cordoba

It is a smart, brisk, breezy mystery comedy that Edgar Wallace has written, and the Copley cast play it to the hilt. De Cordoba, cast in a difficult part, does wonders and Mr. Clive matches him at every step.

The audience, taking part in the festivity, shakes, shivers and laughs by turns as murder is committed on the stage, and not a soul in the house knows who did it.

Through all scenes, that mysterious master murderer, "The Ringer," in on stage, plotting further dark doings. But neither the audience nor the Scotland Yard men can pick him out. If they could, the play would be over in the twinkling of a second.

But Wallace is too clever a playwright to allow the finger of suspicion to point too strongly toward his criminal. He keeps the suspense taut till his audience is ready to shriek; he puts in half a dozen unsuspected thrills and leaves the whole with light and agreeable comedy. No wonder he has the largest income of any living author!

SEEK RULING ON RIGHTS OF TWO POLICE BOARDS

The city of Fall River is going to carry its battle over its two police commissions to the full bench of the Supreme Court. This was announced today in that city following news that Judge George A. Sanderson of the Supreme Court had upheld the old police commission, appointed by the governor, as against the new commission, appointed by the city manager.

Judge Sanderson decided the State-appointed commission was the lawful one, and that Fall River's adoption of a new charter last January did not give it the right to name its own commission.

The city will ask the full bench to rule on the case.

'Legit' Theater Die?, Never! Declares Gest

Philadelphia, March 20 (AP)—Morris Gest disagrees with William A. Brady, who thinks the legitimate stage will be dead in three years.

"The theater," says Gest, "is flourishing today as it never has in past generations. Actors are getting greater salaries and they are going to get still greater ones."

Quits U. S. Job for Radio Post

SAY CONGRESS HAS POWER TO ENACT TEMPERANCE LAW

wide contest, but they have a vitally important value, in general.

BOTH FAMOUS

The authorities who passed on questions and answers were: Atty. Maurice E. Harrison and Hon. James M. Beck.

The latter was formerly the nation's solicitor-general at Washington, is ranked as American's greatest constitutional lawyer, and is likewise famous abroad as statesman and able lawyer.

Atty. Harrison was formerly dean of the Hastings Law College of the University of California, and is now president of the San Francisco Bar Association, enjoying fame as one of the leading experts on American constitutional law.

Atty. Harrison was asked to answer specific questions on the powers of Congress.

The questions and his replies were studied and approved by Atty. Beck.

Questions and answers follow with a general opinion in a preamble:

PREAMBLE—It is our opinion, that Congress has the power at the present time, irrespective of the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, to enact such legislation that the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of light wines, cider and malt beverages can immediately be resumed throughout the United States, without any possibility of successful injunction proceedings, excepting only where these acts are prohibited by State or local laws.

DISCUSS LAW ONLY

No opinion is intended to be expressed herein as to the policy or advisability of the legislation under discussion, but this opinion is confined to the legal power of Congress in the premises, and the effect of possible action on its part. Our answers to your specific questions are as follows:

QUESTION 1—Can Congress now enact legislation under which there can be no penalty or punishment for manufacture, transportation and sale of light wines, cider and malt beverages throughout the United States, except in States that prohibit these beverages by State or local laws?

ANSWER—Yes.

QUESTION 2—Would it be necessary to repeal or amend the 18th Amendment before it could enact and put into effect the legislation mentioned in the last question?

ANSWER—No.

QUESTION 3—Can Congress enact this legislation in such form that the manufacture, transportation and sale of light wines, cider and malt beverages cannot be prevented or delayed, in states where these acts are not prohibited by state laws, by injunction proceedings or court orders?

ANSWER—Yes.

QUESTION 4—Would the repeal of the Volstead Act, and the immediate enactment of a new enforcement law, prohibiting only distilled liquor and fortified wine, have the legal effect referred to in Questions 1 and 2?

ANSWER—Yes.

IMPORT DUTIES

QUESTION 5—If Congress should enact the legislation described in Question 1, would the United States government be able, without further legislation, to collect the import duties and internal revenue taxes on light wines and malt beverages?

ANSWER—Yes.

QUESTION 6—Can Congress at any time hereafter increase or lower, to any extent it may please, the present rates of import duties and internal revenues upon light wines and malt beverages?

ANSWER—Yes.

QUESTION 7—In order to accomplish the results specified in Questions 1 and 3, is it necessary that a new enforcement act should fix any limit of alcoholic content to declare that light wines, cider and malt beverages are not intoxicating?

ANSWER—No.

QUESTION 8—If Congress should enact the legislation described in Question 1, would anybody be enjoined or prosecuted under the 18th Amendment or any federal prohibition law for manufacturing, transporting or selling light wines, cider or malt beverages?

ANSWER—No.

QUESTION 9—If Congress should enact the legislation described in Question No. 4, would the shipment of light wines, cider and malt beverages from one state into dry states be prohibited under existing federal laws?

ANSWER—No. The Webb-Kenyon law, enacted by Congress in 1913.

SUMMING-UP

ADDENDA—By way of further comment on the above replies to your questioning with regard to the power of Congress to act on the subject of prohibition while the Eighteenth Amendment remains in force, we beg to submit the following as our opinion:

(A) The Eighteenth Amendment provides no penalty or punishment and, therefore, unless an enforcement act prohibits any particular beverage, the manufacture, sale, etc., of that beverage, cannot be punished or prevented by court action.

(B) Congress has the power to repeal the Volstead Act as well as any other laws enacted by Congress by a majority vote, and, in case of presidential veto, to override by a two-thirds vote.

(C) After having repealed the Volstead Act, Congress would have the legal power to enact, by majority of vote as above stated, an enforcement act prohibiting the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation and transportation of only distilled liquor and fortified wines; and would have the power to override the veto of such an act by the executive in the manner above stated. If the Volstead Act were repealed and such a new act adopted, a violation thereof could be inflicted by any federal court for the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation or transportation of light wines and beer or other beverages not coming within the prohibitory provisions of the new act.

(D) If the Volstead Act were repealed, and if Congress, thereupon and thereafter, enacts a new law, such as is described in the last preceding paragraph, no suit could be maintained either by the government or by private individuals for an injunction against the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation or transportation of light wine or beer.

(E) If the Volstead Act were repealed, no court proceeding could be maintained against Congress to enact any prohibition enforcement act whatever.

CALLED "SOUND"

Dean Harrison declared that in connection with the general subject, attention should be called to the fact that Congress has expressly exempted from the provisions of the national prohibition act, the Panama canal and railroad, and has made no provision for the enforcement of prohibition in the Philippine Islands.

In addition the government has, since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, entered into treaties which, by removing all punishment in effect sanction and allow the shipping of all classes of liquor, including the importation and transportation of all classes of liquor, including distilled liquor, through our ports and foreign ships, though the importation and transportation of such liquor is prohibited by the Eighteenth Amendment.

The legal authority added, that in our opinion, the foregoing statements are so clearly sound, and are based upon such elementary principles of law as to require no extended discussion nor citation of authorities.

IN BATTLE FOR TAMMANY JOB

New York, March 20 (AP)—With district leaders already picking the next Tammany chieftain shall come from the ranks, Martin G. McCue, a former prize fighter, and John F. Curry, one-time insurgent, appeared as leading candidates to succeed George W. Olvany.

A caucus has been called for tomorrow at which the Braves are expected to settle upon the man who will be elected chairman when the executive committee meets next day to task final action on Olvany's resignation and pick his successor.

Both McCue and Curry qualify under the dictume that the new leader must come from the ranks. McCue, who is clerk of the surrogate's court,is a leader in the 12th assembly district.

Curry, commissioner of records, is the fifth assembly district leader. He opposed Mayor Walker's candidacy in the late municipal election, but now is understood to be friendly toward the mayor.

Supreme Court to Decide Street Issue

Judge Charles Donahue of the supreme court will report to the full bench of the Supreme Court for final determination the bill in equity recently brought by 10 taxpayers to enjoin the Boston street commissioners from discontinuing Tremont st., which runs between Boylston and Lagrange sts. beside the Hotel Touraine, as a public way. Judge Donahue heard the case some time ago, and had it under advisement.

Final Dartmouth-Tufts Debate Mar. 21

Tufts and Dartmouth debaters meet tomorrow in Goddard Chapel, Tufts College, in Tufts' final debate of the year. The subject will be "Resolved, that co-education in institutions of higher learning is preferable to segregation of the sexes."

Bill to Raise Salary of Governor Killed

By a vote of 9 to 21, the Senate refused to substitute a bill to increase from $10,000 to $15,000 the salary of the governor of the State.

DEAFNESS

Miss Mary Conley, Winthrop St., Cambridge, Mass., says:—"I was so deaf that I could hear very little. I also had buzzing noises in my head that nearly drove me crazy. I went to many doctors, whose skill was unavailing. In my case, as in many others I have seen, I could not afford. I read of Dr. Walsh, and a neighbor told me how Dr. Walsh had helped her. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and he has helped me wonderfully."

Blind—And Dumb!

If Love Were Not Dumb as Well as Blind, Romances Would Be Fewer

Only one man in 100,000 doubts what his sweetheart tells him, according to Vice-Chancellor Backes, of New Jersey. Wherefore, the court decided that Robert P. Cain could not be held responsible legally for failing to check up Rose Bournonville's statement before marrying her. The bridegroom said he must have been "awfully dumb" to have believed what the bride said, but the judge consoled him with the statement that he was only one of a multitude in his dumbness.

There is common sense in the Vice-chancellor's ruling. If love were not dumb as well as blind, romances would be few and marriages fewer. When a lass tells a lad that she has never been kissed, he should believe it as a matter of faith and duty. Even if he knows it to be untrue he should believe it.

Contra-wise, when a youth tells a maid she is the only girl he ever loved, she should believe it against the evidence of her own senses. When she vows that she would love him in a hovel, when he swears they will abide in a castle, or its modern equivalent, neither should doubt the other, for it is doubt that drives love down stairs into the street.

Now you may say that sane and sensible people cannot believe such things. If you say so, you have never been in love. For love is the great leveller that takes wisdom from the wise and gives it to the foolish, takes folly from the foolish and gives it to the wise, until all are equal before the little god who is blind, like them—but not quite so dumb!

Poor Old Rhino

He Is the White Kind, and Fast Dying Off

A WHITE RHINOCEROS. ALMOST THE LAST OF HIS RACE

When a small boy you had mixed feelings about Red Indians.

You were delighted when your favorite Wild Westerner let the crack of his rifle be heard and "another redskin bit the dust."

On the other hand you were inclined to weep, in sympathy, when Fenimore Cooper described the noble Chingachook, alias the "Great Serpent," a splendid red man, friend of the whites, mourning over his vanishing people.

It really WAS sad to see the poor Indian, tomahawk in one hand, human scalp in the other, driven pitilessly toward the western sun.

But just think about this poor rhinoceros. This picture was taken when he was only 15 feet from the camera. He isn't beautiful, he isn't intellectual, about the only intelligent thing he ever does is to listen to little rhinoceros birds eat the insects on his back, warning him by their cries when danger comes.

They don't warn him for HIS sake, but simply make a noise because they are frightened.

Half the time, he doesn't know enough to take warning, resembling in that some young white men of this day.

If he knew enough to be warned, he wouldn't be dying out. But he is dying out.

In all the world, according to British authorities, there are only about 100 of these white rhinoceroses left alive.

They are rare, in zoological gardens, and won't be there at all soon, nor will they be visible in the jungle. They soon must go to join the dodo, the great auk, the aurochs, and others that men have killed off.

Don't forget please to weep a tear or two, for the poor British big game hunter, and the imitation American male and female big game hunters that think they must KILL something, when they might stay home and DO something.

Isn't it terrible to think that these big game hunters won't be able to kill any more white rhinoceroses?

Also, you intelligent readers, study the head of this rhinoceros, and you will know why he is dying out. Not much you will observe ABOVE THE EARS.

On the other hand, if you look at a human head, you will see that ALL the intelligence is above the ears.

This rhinoceros only knows enough to hate what he doesn't understand, and he doesn't know enough to understand much.

That's why many human beings don't get along.

Is It Worth It?

Love is impossible to explain, of course, but its vagaries often are illuminating. Mrs. Enid Ebenhoch, of Columbus, asked the courts to part her forever from her husband because he refused to kiss her. Why did he refuse? Because he was a trumpeter and he feared that kissing would spoil the professional perfection of his lips.

Truly, there are times when man's inhumanity to woman passeth all understanding. If a trumpeter acts that way, what should be expected of a saxophone player? No wonder the marriage license clerks have so little to do these days!

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND.

A DEMURE, old-fashioned girl is like the family Bible these days. Everybody respects and admires her, but nobody ever thinks of taking her out.

One of the funniest things in this egregious old world is to hear a fat red-faced, little bald man describing the fascinating blonde queen he fears he may some day be weak enough to fall for.

About the most deadly "compliment" that a man can pay a woman is to assure her that "there's nothing wrong with her," yet that is the most glowing praise that some wives ever receive.

A radio is like a husband. The moment you try to get it to show off for company, it either goes right into the silence or starts sputtering static.

The acid test of a man's love was his willingness to risk death or pneumonia for the sake of a kiss. But now that the flu epidemic has passed, there is no way of gauging the depth of his devotion.

Courtship: A midvictorian custom which once preceded marriage and was somewhat confused with a quaint, old emotion called "love."

Men will fight for anything—just for love of a fight; but when two women cross swords and wits it is for love of a man.

Marriage, fountain pens and cigarette lighters all work, SOME TIMES—and most of the excitement in life consists in keeping your beautiful faith that NEXT time the thing will "click."

There was a time when no lady ever breathed a swear word—but that was when a run in her stocking was a personal and private matter.

To a bride in the first flush of furnishing a blue-and-white kitchenette, a place in the Hall of Fame would seem like a cruel demotion

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOMEONE has sent me this beautiful line: "WE ARE ALL WOVEN TOGETHER IN THE GREAT WEB OF HUMANITY."

Beside me, on my table, is an old piece of tapestry.

It has the mellow beauty of the forest floor in Fall.

There lie the ashes of a thousand ruddy hours—copper and scarlet, lavender and rose, leaf green and coral, azure, amethyst.

Color like perfume.

Color like a song, a haunting song that echoes in the soul.

You lift the fabric, wondering how such magic could be wrought with common wool. And then you see it is not beautiful because one thread is red, or one thread orange, blue or green or gold.

BUT THAT RICH BEAUTY RISES FROM THE MINGLING OF THE THREADS.

The red seems redder because other threads are green.

The blue are bluer because they lie next the gold.

And all the glowing threads are woven in with threads of brown or gray—dull, sturdy threads that hold the weave in place.

There was a time when no lady ever breathed a swear word—but that was when a run in her stocking was a personal and private matter.

To a bride in the first flush of furnishing a blue-and-white kitchenette, a place in the Hall of Fame would seem like a cruel demotion

There was a time when no lady ever breathed a swear word—but that was when a run in her stocking was a personal and private matter.

To a bride in the first flush of furnishing a blue-and-white kitchenette, a place in the Hall of Fame would seem like a cruel demotion without that strengthening warp of gray.

The warp would lack all beauty if deprived of that bright woof.

THE BEAUTY AND THE STRENGTH OF THE WHOLE PIECE DEPENDS UPON THE BLENDING OF THE THREADS AND THE MINGLING.

Without that blending and that mingling they would be just threads.

Each single thread would have a little color or a little strength, but they would pass as quickly as the dust along the wind. But, mingled so, they last on through the years and spread their beauty like a perfume or a song.

Our lives are like that piece of tapestry.

They find fulfilment through their blending and their mingling with all other lives.

"WE ARE ALL WOVEN TOGETHER IN THE GREAT WEB OF HUMANITY."

Lives are made richer when they mix their color with other lives.

Lives are made stronger when they share and borrow strength.

And all experience widens when we comprehend that truth.

As children we see lives as single threads. We only see our own small thread of green or red or blue. But when we're older we must see the other strands if we would grasp life's vast significance or find a refuge from its awful pain.

YOU CANNOT KNOW THE DIGNITY OF LIFE UNTIL YOU SEE IT AS ONE ENDLESS, MOVING WEB, AND FEEL THAT YOU, TOO, HAVE A PLACE WITHIN THAT WEB.

YOU CANNOT STAND THE AGONY OF LIFE UNTIL YOU FEEL THOSE SOMBRE STRANDS OF BLACK ARE JUST AS TRULY A PART OF BEAUTY AS THE GOLD OF JOY.

NOR CAN YOU FACE LIFE'S GNAWING LONELINESS UNLESS YOU SENSE THAT YOU ARE NOT ALONE, BUT MESHED WITH MILLIONS IN ONE MIGHTY PLAN.

If you will give up your small dream of self, and grasp that vision of the woven whole, all life will change for you from that day on. Nothing will ever seem so small again; nothing will ever seem so hopeless or so cruel. For you will see beyond your one, frail strand and catch a vision of your place within the web. And through that vision there will come new pride, new tolerance and wisdom, and new joy to endure.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Choose what is best; custom will make it agreeable and easy.
—Pythagoras.

The genius of conversation consists much less in showing a great deal of it than causing it to be discovered in others.
—La Bruyere.

Who shoots at the midday sun, though he be sure he shall never hit the mark, yet as sure he is he shall be higher than he who aims at a bush.
—Sidney.

Any one who hopes to achieve success, even the average, must know more, or at least as much, about some one thing as any other one, and not only know, but know how to do—and how to utilize his experiences and knowledge for the benefit of others.
—Vail.

Nothing deters a good man from what is right.
—Seneca.

The best way for a young man who is without friends or influence to begin is: first, to get a position; second, to keep his mouth shut; third, observe; fourth, be faithful; fifth, make his employer think he would be lost in a fog without him; sixth, be polite.
—Sage.

You believe that easily which you hope for earnestly.—Terence.

Which of us is not affected, almost to despair, by the splendid vision of earth and sky?—Koble.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 20—Among the unsung heroines, to my notion, are those constituting the army of beautiful girls struggling so valiantly and honorably merely to exist in the metropolis. Most of them, through sudden reverses of family fortune, were cast upon their own resources.

They had no training to cope with their sisters in the business world, and yet survive—uncomplainingly, hopefully and respectably. Three young ladies of my acquaintance, nurtured in homes of refinement and graduates of select finishing schools, are cases in point.

All are employed at salaries of not more than $25 a week each. They occupy a comfortable apartment by renting rooms to paying guests. They do their own cooking and housework, and by frugality are able to attend the theater and symphony concert now and then.

These are examples easily multiplied into thousands and are ignored by the various welfare organizations chiefly because they neither seek nor want help. They carry on and are not the sort to be dredged out of murky waters and consigned to nameless graves.

They are, indeed, almost invariably light hearted and strangely enough devote their slight spare time to helping others. They have a way of laughing at dilemmas that would be the utter despair of the more frivolous creatures who take a "sugar daddy" and the easiest way.

Few smoke, nor do scarcely any drink, yet not in this age of hectic hurrah would they be called prudes. They have a girlish freshness and buoyancy and they are most engaging—square shooters who seem to many of us to be on the losing end of a rather one-sided game.

It is heartening therefore to record that during the past year society editors report more than a dozen of these "working girls" contracted extremely brilliant marriages with scions of not only rich but illustrious families. And that, fellow Kiwanians, is as it should be.

AND around the Y. M. C. A.'s of the boroughs nightly will be seen innumerable young men courageously battling the metropolitan Goliath. They are reading, attending night classes or playing harmless games. The lights o' Broadway are just so many lights. They retire early to be up early, and for those of us who have frivoled away much of our youth there is a conviction they are lads the next generation will be reading about in the up-and-at-'em success stories.

CANDOR—we love to be candor—compels the observation, however, there are a number of highly successful men not conforming to the copy book formula. There is one who has been booted out of three colleges, married a marvelous lady whom he deserted shamefully, is slightly potted half the time and is a conscienceless liar, yet a great industrial organization pays him a staggering sum to sit at a desk three hours every morning, merely to suggest ideas. Ideas, too, that have compensated them handsomely, despite the price.

SUCCESS of this sort packs the bread lines with those who think they can follow the same slip-shod method and achieve similar results. The ratio of those who do is not one in a million. And such odds are too long for even the sure thing gambler.

I AM among the increasing number of human jelly fish completely fed up with police inutility. Last evening I inquired, as politely as my bringing up warrants, of a cop if an automobile might be parked near a certain restaurant outside the congested zone. "Not unless you want a ticket!" he fairly snarled. I wanted to ask now the 10 spankeasies on the block—including the one he had just left, wiping his mouth on his coat sleeve—were getting along, but was too much of a ninny.

Relativity of Time

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"MY girl friend and I visited a cinema house yesterday and saw your movie explaining Einstein's Theory of Relativity. We understood everything quite beautifully down to the curves in lines and bends in rays and relativity of speed and size. But what we couldn't understand was the relativity of time. The illustration with the two lighthouses was perfectly clear, but when you shot the poor man forward to overtake time, and he went backward to 1492, we were left dangling somewhere in the universe, as we couldn't keep up with you. We have been thinking so much that we have contracted a miserable headache between the two of us, and it has availed us nothing. So we decided to write to you and ask to be set right.—Anna Sydow."

YOU make me feel like Great-heart in "Pilgrim's Progress," when the charming widow and daughters of Christian besought him to conduct them safely past the dreadful castle of Giant Despair. Greatheart was a wondered that the gentle sex should venture near such a place, but he was fortered by his mission and gladly and stoutly did his duty by destroying even the castle itself. I cannot pretend to such a feat, but I will do my little best to help you.

You have taken a twin headache from the dizzy experience of the man who shoots up the stream of time and finds himself arrived some four hundred years sooner than he started. But the headache comes from looking through the wrong spectacles. Try this: Imagine the picture of the world, as it is at any moment, being borne away through space by a spreading wave of light, which is followed by a similar wave bearing the picture of the world as it is an instant later, and these by others with like pictures ad infinitum. If you could ride with the speed of light on the first of these waves, evidently the picture of the world would never change for you, and you would forever seem to be living in 1929.

But, if you could go faster than light, as the man in the movie does, then you would (like him) overtake the waves ahead, 10 after another, and thus you would appear to be running backward in time, and living over in reverse order the past centuries.

If you traveled twice as fast as light, you would overtake the past centuries at the rate of one century every hundred years, winging its flight through the universe of space-time. If your speed was yet greater you would pass the fleeting years very rapidly. If the speed was infinite you would be back in the time of Columbus before one could say "Jack Robinson."

Perhaps this illustration will help you get rid of the headache: Suppose a long train of cars leaves the station just ahead of a train that carries you on a parallel track. By the time you are started the last car of the first train is speeding along just beside your window.

But your train at once develops a speed say twice as great as that of the other train. The result will be that you will pass the other train, going in the same direction. First you will pass its last car, then the next to the last, and so on until you have run by the whole series of cars, in reverse order, and the last one that you see will be the first one of the train.

Substitute a century of time for each of the cars and a train of light waves for the railroad train, and set your own conveyance be the magic projectile of the man in the relativity film. Then you will be wearing the right kind of mental spectacles for viewing the film without nervous distortion.

Boston American's Policies For Boston-New England

FOR BOSTON:

1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

FOR NEW ENGLAND:

1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.
